DR. A. J. BASS CONFESSES THE MURDER OF PEARMAN

Columbia, Mo. Dentist Admits He Planned and Executed $200,000 Insurance Plot Alone and Unassisted,

ADMITS STORY OF GUNMEN IS FALSE

Cajoled Victim Into Believing He Would Share in Spoils — His Attorneys Are Expected to Present Plea of Insanity.

By JOHN T. ROGERS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BENTONVILLE, Ark., April 19.—Dr. A. J. Bass, 55-year-old retired dentist of Columbia, Mo., now says that he conceived and executed the $200,000 insurance fraud murder of William R. Pearman alone and unassisted from the original inception of what he thought would be the "perfect crime" to the final disposition of Pearman's body in a ravine near Gravette, Ark.

In his cell this afternoon, he amended his confession made last night that he killed Pearman in his automobile near Rocheport, Mo., the night of March 26, and struck out all references to a gang of St. Louis gunmen that he said had bullied him into organizing the insurance fraud, trailed him the night of the murder and helped him dispose of the body.

"I didn't like to admit that I would do such a thing except under great pressure," he said. "In this case I was not under such pressure. It all came out of my own erroneous fancy."

Bass Drops Gunmen Story.

Dr. Bass made his latest statement to Boyle G. Clark, his Columbia attorney, and the writer, after Clark had told him that "nobody believed the story about the gunmen."

In substance, Dr. Bass now says that he tricked the former Columbia automobile mechanic into supposing that he would share in the proceeds of the fraud by the substitution of a body; that he shot Pearman near Rocheport, in Boone County, while his victim sat beside him in a drunken stupor; that he kept the body in the rumble seat and drove the next day to Gravette, 375 miles away, to dispose of the body which he later identified as that of William Folta, the name which Pearman had used in obtaining the fraudulent insurance.

Jurisdiction in Question.

Jurisdiction is the principal question that remains to be threshed out. Dr. Bass' lawyers plan to take steps to have him transferred to Missouri for trial with a view to urging an early hearing at which a plea of insanity will be made. Authorities here are agreed that he is insane and many Columbia friends and acquaintance hold the same opinion.

The question was raised today whether the murder, described by Dr. Bass, took place in Cooper, Howard or Boone County, but the dentist said tonight he was positive the section of Missouri Highway No. 40 on which he killed Pearman was in Boone County.

Although Pearman's son, Robert, has issued a statement questioning the confession and holding that Dr. Bass could not have shot Pearman in the right side of the head while holding a revolver in his right hand and driving an automobile, Dr. Bass insists that was what he did. Robert Pearman's assertion that his father's body was found in a pool of blood, indicating he was killed on the spot, was disputed by Sheriff Fields, who said the ground was dry and the body doubled up in rigor mortis.

Prosecuting Attorney Combs here said he would insist on seeing a Missouri warrant charging the dentist with murder before surrendering the prisoner, now under indictment for murder in this county.

Dentist's Various Stories.

The confession of murder, made last night and amended today, continued the amazing story which Dr. Bass began last week, when he told of hiring St. Louis gunmen in 1928 to kill Machir J. Dorsey, insurance company executive of Indianapolis and a cousin of Mrs. Bass, a plot which was abandoned when the dentist learned that Dorsey had

FORMER HEAD OF OIL FIRM SENTENCED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Gets Two Years and $10,000 Fine for Permitting Rum Runners to Use Oil Storehouse.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 19.—Joe Tingle, Oklahoma City, Ok., oil salesman, formerly president of the Tingle Oil Co. here, today was sentenced to two years in the Federal penitentiary and was fined $10,000 following his conviction in Federal court April 3 on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition liquor law.

His attorneys filed notice of appeal, and the oil man said he would return to Oklahoma City to await action of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals on his appeal.

Tingle was accused of being in league with a group of liquor runners who, the Government contended, used the storehouses of the Tingle Oil Co. here to manufacture and store contraband liquor.

COMMUNISTS AND POLICE CLASH IN SAN FRANCISCO

Marchers Use Placards to Knock Off Hats of Officers; Five Arrested; One Injured.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Four men and a woman, alleged Communists, were placed in jail here today, following a clash with police in a demonstration at the United States Custom House, and another man was injured and sent to a hospital.

The Communists, parading in protest against the impending deportation of eight Communists, knocked off policemen's hats with placards and sticks. About 25 uniformed policement and 12 plain clothes men fought the marchers with their fists.

Ida Rothstein, 45 years old, who says she is district organizer for the International Labor Defense League, is the woman arrested.

JAPAN APPROVES DRAFT OF NAVAL AGREEMENT

With Sanction of Tokio Government Assured, U. S. Delegates Are Sure of Final Action Tuesday.

QUICK SUBMISSION TO SENATE FORECAST

Belated Explanation of Americans' Proposal of a "Super-Rodney" Made in London.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1930, by the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, April 19.—Word having been received from Japan that the Tokio Government had approved the naval treaty draft, American delegates tonight were confident that the final plenary session for signing of the treaty by all Powers concerned would be held Tuesday as scheduled.

Unless some unforeseen difficulty causes a postponement, our delegates will leave London that night and sail for home on the Leviathan early Wednesday.

Theodore Marriner, head of the Western European division of the State Department, who has taken a prominent part in the treaty negotiations as adviser, received instructions today to cancel his vacation plans and return home with the delegates. This seems to indicate intention on President Hoover's part to submit the treaty to the Senate without delay.

A belated explanation of the American delegation's proposal of "super-Rodney" for the American battleship fleet came today from an official source. This proposal was made early in the conference and aroused a storm of criticism. It did not appear in the official statement of American objectives given to the press.

The story now goes that the delegation, fearing Britain might make some objection to modernization of our battleship fleet which is now being carried out, put up the Rodney for bargaining purposes and that when no such objection appeared, the Rodney was allowed to drop quietly out of sight.

Elevation of guns to increase the range is an important feature of the modernization program. Our delegates were assured by Admirals Jones and Pratt that improvements under way would make our London treaty fleet of 15 battleships fully equal to Britain's 15.

Text of Safeguarding Clause Made Public in Tokio.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 19.—The safeguarding clause of the naval treaty being drawn up here, which the naval delegates have kept rigorously secret until after final approval of their home Governments was disclosed today in dispatches from Tokio.

The clause provides for an increase in the navies of either Japan, America or Great Britain—the three signatories to the projected limitation treaty—if the building programs of non-signatory nations are considered excessive.

The clause follows:

"If, during the term of the present treaty, requirements of national security of any of the high contracting parties in respect to vessels of war limited by part three of the present treaty are, in the opinion of that party, affected by new construction of any Power other than those joining in part three of this treaty, that high contracting party will notify the other parties to part three as to the increase required to be made in its own tonnages, specifying the proposed increase and the reasons therefor.

"The other parties to part three of this treaty shall be entitled to make a proportionate increase in the category or categories specified."

Conference observers noted that in the safeguarding clause the consultative idea is omitted altogether.

Secretary of State Stimson devoted much of his Easter recess from naval activities preparing the address which he will broadcast from London Monday to the luncheon of Associated Press members in New York.

This afternoon he and Mrs. Stimson visited Cliveden, the country home of Lord and Lady Astor.

Premier McDonald will leave for London tomorrow, returning a day sooner than expected, for the final plenary session, which has been

TENTATIVE PLAN FOR CITY-COUNTY UNION COMPLETED

Draft, Prepared by Prof. Reed, Submitted by Metropolitan Committee for Public Discussion.

PROPOSAL STILL SUBJECT TO CHANGE

Constitutional Amendment to Enable Creation of Greater St. Louis to Be Voted on Next November

Announcement was made last night of the official tentative plan of the metropolitan federation of St. Louis and St. Louis County as the new City of Greater St. Louis, by the City and County Metropolitan Development Committee. It embraces the recommendations made in recent months by the various committees of the Council on Metropolitan Government, a citizen advisory body.

Prof. Thomas H. Reed of the University of Michigan, consultant of the Metropolitan Development Committee, drafted the tentative plan, which is submitted by the committee for public discussion. The committee has reserved the right to make changes in the proposal that may be suggested by the people. The committee was established by the Chambers of Commerce of the city and county and financed by the Industrial Club.

Soon initiative petitions will be circulated for an enabling constitutional amendment, to be voted on throughout Missouri next November. If the amendment is adopted, it is proposed to have separate elections in the city and county early next year on a charter for Greater St. Louis.

Greater St. Louis would be a new municipal government embracing all of the present city and county, but the existing municipalities would be preserved independently, and the remaining unincorporated area in the county would be formed into a new municipality with a simple government. There would be no more county government as such, but the present county area would be retained for purposes of judicial districts, taxing and election of certain officials.

Details of the proposed Greater St. Louis government were announced as follows:

A council of 11 would be the governing body, with the presiding officer elected at large, four members by districts in the county area and six by districts in the city.

The St. Louis Comptroller would be ex-officio Comptroller of Greater St. Louis and the County Treasurer in office when the plan becomes effective would be ex-officio Treasurer of Greater St. Louis for the balance of his elective term, but thereafter the people of the county area would elect a Treasurer to have custody of school funds and other money in that section and to be ex-officio Treasurer of Greater St. Louis.

Modern accounting and budget procedure would be required and provision made for "speedy, equitable and efficient" methods of condemnation and special assessment for public improvements.

The Metropolitan Council would appoint a Public Service Director, who would be, in effect, manager of Greater St. Louis, also a planning commission and a public library board, with "county" as well as city representation on both bodies.

The Public Service Director, controlling administrative departments as agent of the Council, would appoint a Welfare Commissioner, a Public Works Commissioner and a Park and Recreation Board as the heads of three respective departments, having jurisdiction throughout Greater St. Louis.

Joint Institutions.

Public charitable institutions, poor relief, hospitals, children's institutions and welfare work, adult correctional institutions and public health administration would come under the Welfare Department. Design, construction and maintenance of main streets and highways and of all sewers in Greater St. Louis would be the job of the Public Works Department. Control of all public parks and playgrounds, except school playgrounds, would come under the Park and Recreation Department, closely allied with which would be the

U. S. PLANS TO STOP INDORSEMENT GRAFT BY ATHLETIC STARS

Trade Commission Seeks to Halt Practice in Sport Goods Business.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The Evening Post says that a campaign to eradicate the indorsement system involving sporting goods houses and prominent athletes has been started by the Federal Trade Commission. Its purpose is to wipe out all business arrangements between sellers of sport supplies and amateur and professional athletes.

The paper says a conference of representatives of sporting goods houses has been called secretly for May 7 at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., with the announced intention "to end graft in American sport."

The call was issued to about 50 companies by M. Markham Flannery, director of the trade practices conferences of the commission. Garland F. Ferguson Jr., commission chairman, is to preside.

Under a code of rules proposed for consideration, the commission would have broad powers to proceed against a house on complaint of a rival, and the athlete also probably would be called to account.

If the commission is successful, the incomes of many prominent athletes who make a practice of indorsing articles for advertising purposes will be reduced considerably. Last year, the commission found, "one sports goods company paid $370,000 in athletic graft."

CHARLES SCRIBNER, HEAD OF PUBLISHING HOUSE, DIES

Taken Ill Friday With Heart Attack, He Succumbs at New York Home at 75.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Charles Scribner, chairman of the directors of the publishing house of Charles Scribner's Sons, died suddenly at his home today. He was 75 years old.

Scribner had been at his office as usual on Thursday, but on Friday a fainting spell led to the summoning of a physician who placed a nurse in attendance. His death was caused by heart disease.

Scribner was born in New York. His family dated back to early colonial times. The first member recorded in America was Matthew Scrivener, a member of the Council of Virginia Colony in 1607. Records of the town of Norwalk, Conn., show that the name was changed to its present form by descendants of Benjamin Scrivener after 1742.

The publishing and book selling business of the family was established in 1846 by Scribner's father. In 1870 Scribner's Magazine was founded but was later sold, and became the present Century. The Scribner's Magazine now published was started subsequently.

Surviving are his widow, a daughter, Mrs. George R. D. Schieffelin, and a son, Charles Scribner Jr. of Far Hills, N. J., vice president of Charles Scribners Sons; also a brother, Arthur H. Scribner, president of the firm.

HOOVER TO WORSHIP TODAY WITH QUAKER BRETHREN

Wife Unable to Attend Services; Easter Egg Rolling Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Tourists will join the President and official Washington in ceremonies tomorrow commemorating the Resurrection. At the Friends' meeting house, President Hoover expects to participate with his orthodox Quaker brethren in the usual Sunday service.

Mrs. Hoover will be unable to attend the church tomorrow because of a sprained back, suffered last Sunday when she slipped and fell as she arose from a couch. Mr. Hoover's two sons, Allan and Herbert Jr. are not in the city.

In the afternoon, if Mrs. Hoover feels able, she will go with the President on an automobile ride into the country. On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Hoover are to be hosts to children at the annual Easter egg rolling on the White House lawns.

MICHIGAN WOMAN WHO GOT LIFE FOR LIQUOR VIOLATIONS FREED

Mrs. Etta Mae Miller Not to Stand Retrial Granted by Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press.

LANSING, Mich., April 19.—The case against Etta Mae Miller, the first Michigan woman sentenced to life imprisonment for liquor law violations, was quashed by Circuit Judge Charles B. Collingwood today.

The ruling frees Mrs. Miller from the necessity of standing a retrial granted her by the Supreme Court. She was sentenced under the old habitual criminal act, which classified liquor law violations as felonies and provided for a mandatory life sentence for four convictions. The State Supreme Court ruled this clause was superseded by the Cuthbertson act making four liquor offenses punishable by a sentence of seven and one-half to 15 years.

GOVERNOR REFERS YOUNG BROTHERS POINT TO SHARTEL

Attorney-General Who Was Brokers' Counsel to Decide Matter of State Policy Growing Out of Collapse of His Clients' Firm.

RESULT OF BUSINESS BUREAU'S COMPLAINT

Question Is Whether Securities Commissioner Should Have Investigated Firm Which Failed for $2,000,000 and What Can Be Done to Prevent a Repetition.

The receiver's examination of the files of the bankrupt brokerage firm of W. H. Young & Bros., Inc., with home offices in the Central National Bank building, and 65 branches in 15 States, shows that Attorney-General Stratton Shartel was the firm's attorney at Jefferson City until last June, about six weeks before the St. Louis Better Business Bureau began to urge State Securities Commissioner Fenton T. Stockard to investigate the company's practices.

Gov. Caulfield has just referred to Attorney-General Shartel the resolution of the St. Louis Better Business Bureau asking him and "all others directly or indirectly responsible for the administration of the Missouri securities act" to correct a condition under which the Young Bros. flourished in the sale of dubious securities, with a loss of possibly $2,000,000 to investors.

Gov. Caulfield has said that in his view he has no supervision over the work of the Securities Commissioner and has asked the Attorney-General for an opinion on the question whether the Governor has any power in matters within the departments of other elected State officers.

Shartel's Unusual Position.

Thus the Attorney-General is called upon to advise the Governor in an important matter of state policy growing out of the practices of a firm which he represented as attorney at the state capital during a part of his term as Attorney-General.

Shartel has not yet had time to reply to the Governor's request, having gone to Washington. In his absence it is not known when he began to represent Young Bros. at Jefferson City, but he terminated his connection suddenly June 29 last.

Files of the brokerage company show Shartel and President William H. Young began a correspondence in 1928 which was continued up to the first of this year; that the firm sent Shartel checks at intervals for services rendered, including one for $1000, June 1, 1929; that Shartel and Young called each other "Bill" and "Strat" and exchanged compliments and gifts; and that Shartel conferred with Secretary of State Becker and Becker's subordinate, Securities Commissioner Stockard, as the company's attorney.

As has been told, the firm was sued into bankruptcy a month ago, with several of its subsidiaries later joining it. Young Bros. had issued $1,400,000 of the company's preferred stock, now worthless, and it is estimated the total loss to its customers may approximate $2,000,000, including securities floated by subsidiaries. Few tangible assets have been discovered.

Request to Caulfield.

Commissioner Stockard's failure to investigate Young Bros. has been criticised by the Better Business Bureau, whose directors adopted a resolution last Monday requesting Gov. Caulfield to act to prevent future losses in fraudulent ventures.

Shartel wrote to Young on June 29:

"Dear Bill—I am sorry to advise that I think it best for me to resign from the position that I have held with your organization, and with the very kindest feelings, I hereby tender my resignation.

"With kind regards to yourself and Fred, I am

"Sincerely yours,
"STRATTON SHARTEL."

While Shartel's reasons for resigning were not stated in his letter, these seem to have been understood by Young Bros., judging by the following note written by President Young two days later accepting the resignation:

"Received your letter of the 29th tendering your resignation which we will accept with a great many regrets."

Six months thereafter, on Jan.

2 U. S. OFFICERS SLAIN IN SLEEP IN NICARAGUA

Marines Attached to National Guard Shot by Native Sergeant Demoted for Drunkenness.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 19.—Acting Capt. Veryl H. Dartt of Nashville, Tenn., and Acting Lieut. James O. Young of Toledo, O., United States Marines attached to the Nicaraguan National Guard, were shot to death as they slept at Jicaro yesterday by a disgruntled Nicaraguan Sergeant.

The Sergeant, recently demoted to the rank of Corporal because of drunkenness, overpowered a sentry and turned a machine gun on the officers' quarters, firing 52 shots before the awakened guardsmen surrounded and killed him. His name was given as Morales in reports received today in Managua. In addition to killing the two American officers, the machine-gun fire seriously wounded Sergt. Gonzales.

The scene of the killing is the Jicaro headquarters of the National Guard First Battalion, which is stationed at the northernmost outpost, near the Honduran frontier. It was officially reported that all other sections were quiet.

Acting Capt. Dartt was a Lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps. He was recently married at his Nashville home, and his widow, Mrs. Ruth S. Dartt, now resides there. Lieut. Young was a Sergeant in the Marine Corps. His mother, Mrs. Susie B. Webster, lives in Toledo, O.

First reports of the shooting were received in Managua with the arrival of an airplane from Icaro carrying the bodies of the two dead officers. The transport Chaumont sails April 23. The bodies probably will be sent home aboard it.

It was not known whether Morales was drunk when he committed the crime, but it is supposed that his motive was revenge.

FRANCE ABOLISHES TEACHING THAT WINE DRINKING IS EVIL

Attack Is Successful on Public School Text Which Cited U. S. Prohibition.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 19.—French children may no longer be taught in state school rooms that wine drinking is an evil. Wine growers and manufacturers of spirituous liquors made an attack in the Chamber of Deputies recently on text books in public schools with the result that the Minister of Education, Pierre Marraud, promises that phrases which disparaged wine drinking and praised prohibition practices in the United States will be eliminated.

The fight, led by Edouard Barthe, representative of the wine-growing department of Herault, centered on a book called "The Natural Sciences." It is used by hygiene classes of secondary schools.

2 CONVICTS SLAIN IN RIOT AT PRISON IN RHODE ISLAND

Two Others and a Guard Wounded After Gangsters Take in Weapons to Few of 500 Prisoners at Cranston Institution.

TRUSTY WHO GIVES ALARM SHOT DOWN

Notorious Extortionist Kills Self Rather Than Surrender—Warden's Daughter Menaced by Bullets and Tear Gas Fumes.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 19.—A desperate attempt to escape on the part of about 15 convicts was brought to an abrupt end at the Cranston State Prison this afternoon with the deaths of two prisoners, the wounding of two others and the probable fatal wounding of a guard.

One of the two who died, a trusty, with hope of pardon in the near future, gave his life to sound the alarm. He was shot down by the infuriated prisoners whose plot he frustrated. The other took his life when hope of freedom faded.

Although beset on all sides, the rioting convicts declined to hold as hostage the daughter of their Warden, who unsuspectingly appeared in their midst.

The jail delivery was attempted with aid from the outside. Two men, traveling in an automobile bearing number plates stolen from a Massachusetts car, entered the prison in the guise of visitors and distributed firearms. They made their escape when it became evident the riot was futile and their abandoned blood-stained car indicated that they had not got off unscathed.

Alarm Sounded by Lifer.

Peleg Champlin, a lifer, and the first to fall, had sounded the alarm, according to Chief of Police John F. O'Neil of the Providence police, when he was shot to death by the desperadoes responsible for the attempted break. Champlin, who went to jail for killing the man who had violated his home, had become a trusty and was under consideration for a pardon. He was in charge of a cigarette stand near the visitors' cage, where the outbreak started.

John ("Pretty") McNeil, notorious gangster and extortionist, the other prisoner who died, pressed a revolver to his head and pulled the trigger as Sergt. Wilson of the Cranston police came down a spiral stairway covering him with his automatic.

James McVay, a guard, suffered a bullet wound near the heart and was taken to the Rhode Island Hospital.

Nick Cossasso, serving a life sentence for murder, was shot in the hand, it is thought accidentally, as he was not connected with the rioting. He was removed to the infirmary.

John Gilbert "Whitey" Miller bank robber, also was wounded.

Warden's Daughter Released.

When the outbreak was at its height, Thelma, the 19-year-old daughter of Warden Charles E. Linscott, stepped into the line of gunfire and tear gas fumes. She had been to the prison barber shop to have her bobbed hair trimmed. Guards shouted pleas to the beleaguered prisoners that she be released.

"We did not know there was a lady here," they replied, and surrendered a potential hostage that might have brought a dear ransom.

Although the State Prison houses approximately 500 inmates, only a small portion of them are thought by officials to have taken any part in the attempted delivery.

The outbreak occurred shortly after 2 p. m. during the visiting hours. The two outside confederates drove up to the prison gate, entered the prison building and mingled with the group of visitors outside the prisoners' cage. Apparently at a prearranged signal, they passed weapons to their friends inside. Firing started immediately. Champlin was slugged and then shot. McVay fell and his pockets were rifled of keys. Some of the rioters brandished and discharged two pistols.

Wailing of the prison siren sounded above the din inside the prison and spread an alarm to

CONFEREES AGREE ON ALL BUT FIVE OF TARIFF DUTIES

Sugar, Cement, Lumber, Shingles and Silver to Be Voted on Separately in the House.

"BOOKS CLOSED" ON RATES, SMOOT SAYS

Adjustment of Differences Over Administrative Provisions of Bill to Start Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Complete agreement on all except five rates in the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was reached by the congressional conferees today, and Monday was fixed for starting the adjustment of differences over the administrative provisions.

While 10 duties were reconsidered today and changed from the basis previously determined by the conference committees, Senator Smoot (Rep.), Utah, chairman of the Senate group, announced that from now on the "books were closed" on rates.

"There will be no further reconsideration of rates," Smoot said, adding that the five levies in disagreement and to be voted upon separately in the House were sugar, cement, lumber, shingles and silver.

Another week or 10 days is expected to be required to settle disputes over the administrative clauses. A report then will be drawn showing the two houses in agreement on all but the five rates and the Senate provisions for a farm export debenture and a legislative instead of an executive flexible tariff policy.

15 Months Spent on Bill.

The House will vote on the rates and the Senate will instruct its conferees what to do on the two controversial administrative clauses. With these questions settled, the bill, in the making for more than 15 months, will be ready for President Hoover's signature or veto.

The average rate of protection for the whole bill as rewritten in conference has been increased considerably over the 38.99 per cent carried in the measure as it passed the Senate. The latter figure was about half-way between the present average protection of 34.61 and the House bill average of 43.15 per cent.

The completion of the adjustment of rate disputes stop any further action on the proposed Senate increases on narrow laces, which were eliminated this week by the conferees and the existing 90 per cent duty restored.

Hundreds of telegrams from lace mill owners and workers in Connecticut, New York and New Jersey were received by the conferees saying the domestic lace industry was facing ruin unless higher protection against foreign labor were granted.

Plate Glass Rates Cut.

Reversing prior actions, the conferees today arrived at a duty of 17 cents a square foot, as against 19 cents now in effect on plate glass, between 384 and 720 square inches; and 17½ cents, as against the present 22-cent rate on plate glass between 720 and 1008 square inches.

Other reconsiderations resulted in the following rates, compared with present levies:

Crude Aluminum 4 cents a pound, now 5 cents; aluminum foil, 40 per cent, now 35 per cent; glass prisms and chandeliers, 60 per cent, now the same; gauge glass tubes, 60 per cent, now 55 per cent; plain wall paper, 10 per cent, now the same; printed wall paper, 1¼ cents a pound and 20 per cent, now the same.

Pen knives valued at not more than 40 cents a dozen, 1¼ cents each and 50 per cent, now 1 cent each and 50 per cent; manila and other hard fiber cordage composed of three or more strands with each strand consisting of two or more yarns, 2 cents a pound, now ¾ of a cent; if smaller than ¾ of an inch in diameter, an additional 15 per cent, now no additional duty.

Cashew nuts, 2 cents a pound, now 1 cent; frozen eggs, 11 cents a pound, now 7½ cents; staples in strip form for uses in paper fasteners of stapling machines, 2 cents a pound, now 6-10 of a cent.

Bank Robber Fatally Shot.

ROBBINSDALE, Minn., April 19.—An unidentified man who held up the State Security Bank of Robbinsville tonight, was shot and fatally wounded as he stepped from the door of the bank with his loot.

County Towns Fear Sale Of Water Company at Big Profit Means Higher Rates

City Now Empowered to Supply Them But Water Company President Had Clause Inserted in Proposed City-County Merger Plan to Prevent Competition for 15 Years, Unless City Buys Company's Plant.

Means to defeat the probable consequences of the recent sale of the St. Louis County Water Co. to an Eastern holding corporation at a price more than $3,000,000 in excess of the latest valuation will be discussed at a special meeting next Monday night of the St. Louis County League of Municipalities, an organization of Mayors, City Attorneys and engineers of county towns. The meeting will be held at the City Hall of University City and will be open to the public.

The probable consequences which the County communities wish to avoid are a direct increase in water rates, or sale of the system to the proposed greater St. Louis municipality at an inflated price which would increase the burden on the taxpayers either through higher rates for water or greater taxes.

Two possible avenues of defense have been discussed: First, communities not bound by contract to the county company might purchase water from the St. Louis municipal waterworks, and second, the city-county municipality, if created, could reserve the right to serve water to all citizens within its boundaries in case the privately owned system refused to serve them as cheaply as the municipality could.

Clayton Fights the Sale.

The Clayton Board of Aldermen already has taken steps to oppose approval of the sale by the Public Service Commission. The Commission will have to act upon a petition filed by the Commonwealth Utilities Corporation for authority to acquire and hold more than 10 per cent of the stock of the water company. Commonwealth Utilities is a Delaware corporation and is a subsidiary of United Gas Improvement Co. of Philadelphia, a giant public utility holding company.

The grounds of the protest made by the Clayton aldermen are that the sale price, $8,350,000, is so far in excess of the State's valuation of the property that it would lead inevitably to an increase in rates or to the sale of the plant to the proposed new city-county municipality at an inflated price. The aldermen are expected to adopt a resolution embodying this protest at their regular meeting Tuesday night.

The latest valuation of the property by the Public Service Commission was $5,303,339.

May Buy Water From St. Louis.

Inquiry by the Post-Dispatch discloses that the city of Webster Groves, one of the largest customers of the St. Louis County Water Co., is now considering the possibility of purchasing water from St. Louis. Webster Groves has its own municipal water distribution system but buys the water at wholesale from the county company. It pays 18 to 21½ cents a thousand gallons and retails the water to its citizens at about 45 cents a thousand gallons for the average family consumption. Out of the retail rate the city absorbs the cost of all water used for fire hydrants and other municipal purposes, and also the loss by leakage from its own mains.

A 20-year contract under which Webster Groves purchased water from the county company expired in October, 1923. The city refused to enter into a new contract and since then has been buying water at a rate approved by the Public Service Commission which is nearly double the old contract rate.

Shortly after expiration of the contract Webster Groves officials discussed with St. Louis officials the possibility of buying water from St. Louis, but at that time the city was not in position to provide it. Since then St. Louis has completed the new $12,000,000 Howard Bend plant on the Missouri River which was designed by former Water Commissioner Edward E. Wall with the view of ultimately supplying all of St. Louis County.

Mayor Edward F. Wilson of Webster Groves said he would inquire into the possibility of obtaining water from St. Louis.

"We don't want an increase in rates," he said. "We are not bound by any contract and are free to buy water wherever we can get it most advantageously. If the city of St. Louis is willing to sell to us we will be glad to discuss terms. So far, my administration has not had any negotiations with the city."

Kirkwood Built Own Plant.

Kirkwood had a contract with the county company, similar to that of Webster Groves, which expired in 1921. When the company proposed to practically double the rates, Kirkwood refused to renew the contract, bought water on a monthly basis for a time and then built its own waterworks, obtaining the water from a deep well in the Meramec River. The city also would be free to buy from St. Louis and might do so if it could obtain water more cheaply than its own municipal system can provide it.

There is no doubt of the right of St. Louis to sell water in the county. It is now supplying several county customers and last year collected more than $6000 in rates from them. It has never been the policy of the city, however, to solicit customers who could be served by the county company. Some indication of the rate St. Louis could provide water for is shown by the cost of water distributed in St. Louis last year, which averaged 7.85 cents a thousand gallons, including depreciation on the plant and sinking fund for bonds. The maximum meter rate now charged by the city is 20 cents a thousand gallons.

The county company, under a grant from the County Court, has broad rights in the county but no exclusive privileges. The court's grant dated Oct. 27, 1902, and made to the West St. Louis Construction Co., predecessor of the St. Louis County Water Co., reads in part:

"Now, therefore, be it ordered that the West St. Louis Construction Co., its successors or assigns, are hereby granted permission, authority and right to lay and maintain conduits, mains and pipes under, along and across all public highways as they now exist, or as may be hereafter laid out or opened, within the present limits of St. Louis County, under and upon the following conditions and provisions."

Another clause in the grant provides:

> A material failure and persistent refusal upon the part of the said company to comply with any and all conditions, provisions and agreements hereinabove mentioned within a reasonable time after due notice in writing to said company by this Court, shall work a forfeiture of all rights herein under.

There is nothing in the grant giving the company any exclusive privileges, leaving the County Court free to grant other water rights as it may see fit.

Protection for 15 Years.

One of the matters of grave concern to the county communities is the recommendation on water systems made by the City and County Metropolitan Development Committee, the organization sponsoring the proposal to create a greater municipality combining the city and county, whose report was made public yesterday.

The text of this recommendation follows:

> It is recommended that the metropolitan government have authority (not necessarily exercised) to acquire, take over, own, manage and control as one unified system the municipally and privately owned waterworks systems now in existence in the metropolitan area.
> That the privately owned companies now in existence in the metropolitan area may be acquired by agreement at a valuation determined by the Missouri Public Service Commission, and unless acquired, in the meantime there shall be no competition or duplication of plant facilities or service within the area now served by the present privately owned companies and the municipally owned plants for a period of 15 years.

The subcommittee which drafted this recommendation is composed of Walter L. Hensley, lawyer; George H. Williams, former United States Senator; Henry Carter, real estate dealer; A. T. Terry, real estate dealer; Frederick B. Eiseman, vice president Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., and William F. Dowdall, sales manager of George H. Burr & Co.

Active in the discussions of the committee was W. H. Henby, president of the St. Louis County Water Co., who at one time said his company would be glad to buy the city's new Missouri River plant. The Post-Dispatch learned that Henby sought to have the committee adopt a provision that the new municipality would not use the power of eminent domain, or condemnation, to acquire privately owned water plants. Failing in this, he sought a provision that the new municipality could not acquire privately owned plants until after 15 years, in which he also was unsuccessful.

Then Came the Sale.

However, the provision as finally adopted, if made effective, would protect his company against municipal competition for 15 years. It was after this provision was adopted by the subcommittee that the sale of the water company at a large profit to its common stockholders was announced.

Analysis of the recommendation shows that if the Public Service Commission set a valuation on the county plant lower than its present owners were willing to accept, the private owners would not be obliged to sell to the greater municipality and meanwhile for 15 years the municipality would be estopped from extending its own mains into the county and serving its citizens who might not be satisfied with the private company's service.

Certainly the present owners would not be willing to sell the plant to the municipality for less than they paid for it, $8,350,000, and it is natural that they would seek a profit.

Robert A. Roessel, chairman of the City and County Metropolitan Development Committee, said he was opposed to the 15-year protection of the private company against municipal competition. He said he understood the committee did not intend to include that provision. He views the recent sale of the water company as a move to get an excessive price for it if the greater municipality buys it. He said the sale price undoubtedly would be used in an attempt to have the Public Service Commission fix the valuation at that or a greater figure.

Neither the present owners of the water company nor the former owners who sold out at a handsome profit are fully known, since the Public Service Commission law does not require public utilities to file their stockholders' lists. The only persons known among the former owners are the old officers and directors, who are: W. H. Henby, president; D. R. Francis Jr., vice president; Charles M. Polk, vice president and general counsel; W. A. Brennan, secretary; C. E. Jutz, treasurer, and A. L. Shapleigh, T. H. Francis, P. W. Chapman and H. L. Harker, directors.

SHARTEL GOT FEES, 'DID NOTHING' FOR YOUNGS, HE SAYS

"They May Have Regarded Retainer as Campaign Contribution"—Received $3000 From Firm.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Attorney-General Stratton Shartel frankly admitted tonight that he had received $3000 from the St. Louis brokerage firm of W. H. Young & Bros., Inc., now bankrupt, during 1928 and 1929. He declared he had agreed merely to represent the firm in the local courts of Cole County and denied that he had ever urged Blue Sky Commissioner Stockard to do anything for the company.

"The arrangement I had with the Young Brothers looks improper" Shartel said, "but I positively know that I did nothing during that short time that has injured any person in the State of Missouri. The truth is that I did nothing for them.

"As I look back now, I can see that their purpose was to become friendly with me, having in mind that I might be elected Attorney-General. They may have regarded this retainer in the nature of campaign contribution made in the hope that it would establish friendly relations. At that time I had no reason to question the soundness of their company, or their need of a local attorney in Cole County. It was a new company and I did not know what local litigation it might have. The Youngs understood—in fact, I wrote them a letter in June, 1928—that I would not represent them in any way inconsistent with my official duties."

Shartel gave a brief summary of the arrangement he had with the promoters, whereby he was to receive $1000 every four months. He said that he told them that if he were elected, he would do no work for them after he took office in 1929.

"And I did nothing for them after Jan. 15, 1929," he added.

"The Boy That Delivers the Goods"

Asked about the letter in which William Young wrote: "You surely are the boy that delivers the goods," Shartel said that as he remembered it, Young had asked about the company's yearly license.

"It just happened that Commissioner Stockard sent them what they wanted," he said. "I know that I did not go to his office and I am sure that I did not solicit or urge him to do anything. I may have met Commissioner Stockard on the street and casually asked him, 'What about the Young Brothers' license?' I had nothing whatever to do with obtaining permits for the sale of any kind of stock, and as a matter of fact I never knew the name of any stock they handled. I did nothing improper for Young Bros.

"The company had regular counsel who handled all work with Commissioner Stockard's office. I was not counsel for Young Bros. insofar as the Blue Sky department was concerned. So far as I know, the Attorney-General's office has never rendered an opinion to the Blue Sky Commissioner. The Commission has its own legal department which operates separately from the Attorney-General's office."

Shartel said that although his arrangement to be the Cole County attorney for Young Bros. while Attorney-General looked "improper," his conscience was clear.

"There are no legal and ethical objections against the Attorney-General's having a private practice as long as he does not neglect his official duties," he declared.

Shartel stated that the resignation found in Young Bros.' files, dated June 29, 1929, was the formal conclusion of the arrangement entered into the year before.

"I had no intention of continuing the arrangement if elected Attorney-General," he declared.

"Dear Bill" and "Strat."

The Attorney-General said that it seemed natural to address his letters "Dear Bill" and sign them "Strat." "They were energetic young men and personal friends of mine. Karl Rundberg of Jefferson City, their local representative in Cole County, brought them to my office and recommended them highly to me. I had no reason to mistrust them, but as a matter of fact I knew nothing about them.

"After I became their local attorney, they did not ask me to do anything and I had no litigation for them in the local courts or elsewhere. I know that it looks as if I took money for doing nothing, but I did not know when they would have litigation. They knew that I would not represent them in any way inconsistent with my official duties. That was stipulated in the arangement I made in 1928."

Shartel arrived in Washington today to represent the State in an estate tax case scheduled for hearing before the United States Supreme Court Monday.

Young Bros. Permit Referred to Shartel

2, last, President Young wrote to Shartel:

"As you know, Fred and I went to Jefferson City the other night and everything was beautiful, and all I can say is thanks and a Happy New Year."

This note of thanks was written to Shartel four months after the Better Business Bureau had urged Commissioner Stockard to make a thorough examination of the Young Bros.' business practices. The Commissioner had declined to make the investigation on the ground that he had no legal right to do so, and in giving this view to the bureau, Aug. 31, 1929, he wrote: "They are skating on the thinnest ice that they can find with the hope that it will not break through."

It is upon this very point, the Securities Commissioner's duties and powers with respect of investigation in such cases, that the Better Business Bureau differs with the opinon there expressed by Stockard. In their resolutions memorializing Gov. Caulfield, the bureau says it has been advised by competent counsel that the Commissioner "has ample power and it is his duty" to make examinations and investigations of questionable financial enterprises whenever sufficient evidence is presented to him; and, further, that ample information as to the conditions and practices of the Young Bros. "was in the hands of the Commissioner of Securities months before the failure of the concern."

The resolution also declares that Stockard's failure to investigate resulted in the loss of large sums of money to the firm's clients. In conclusion, the resolution asks the Governor, the Secretary of State, the Securities Commissioner and "all others who are directly or indirectly concerned or responsible for the administration of the Missouri securities act to correct a condition which, if allowed to continue, will inevitably result in future losses through fraudulent ventures."

Renewed Despite Protest.

Licenses of Young Bros. and their salesmen to do business in Missouri were renewed the first of the year by Commissioner Stockard over the protest of the St. Louis Better Business Bureau.

On Oct. 16, 1928, when Shartel was serving as Attorney-General by appointment of Gov. Baker, and was the Republican nominee for that office, to which he was elected the following Nov. 6, he wrote to Young:

"I certainly thank you for your kindness to me last Sunday, and I want you to know that I shall do everything that I can to be of service to you, as long, of course as such work is consistent with the duties of my office."

Young communicated with Shartel on Dec. 21, as follows:

"I failed to give you the check necessary in connection with salesmen's licenses for the coming year, etc., and I am therefore enclosing check in the amount of $53, which I will appreciate you presenting to Mr. Stockard together with papers I left with you.

"I certainly wish to thank you for the personal assistance you have already rendered, and it is very gratifying to know we have your help, which we know we can depend upon.

"With kindest regards, and the season's greetings, I remain," etc.

"Box of Fine Cigars."

"I want to thank you for the box of fine cigars which you sent to me," "Strat" wrote to "Dear Bill," Jan. 3, 1929. "It was certainly mighty nice of you and I enjoyed them very much. Be sure to come in to see me whenever you are in Jefferson City. With kindest personal regards and best wishes for the New Year, I am," etc.

"Thanks very kindly for your nice letter of Jan. 31 inclosing check," Shartel advised Young, Feb. 1, 1929. "I appreciate this and hope that I can give you good service.

"Of course, it must be kept in mind that I can do nothing that is inconsistent with the duties of my office and I like to repeat that at every opportunity that I have."

"Well, you surely are the boy that delivers the goods," Young complimented Shartel, Feb. 8, 1929, "because 48 hours after I sent you my letter requesting you to check up regarding the issuance of a certain paper that we were very much interested in we received it, and I want to take this opportunity to again thank you for the wonderful co-operation you are giving us."

The Young brothers' files in the hands of the receiver, Emmett Williams, do not disclose the nature of the paper referred to.

The law of Missouri is silent on the question of the right of the Attorney-General to engage in private practice of law. Hence Attorney-General Shartel was within his legal rights in accepting outside practice in so far as it did not conflict with his duties as Attorney-General.

In this particular case, however, the nature of the business of Young Bros. was such that it might at any time have become the business of the Attorney-General to institute proceedings against them.

The blue sky law, under which Young Bros. operated, provides in Section 16, Page 211, Session Acts of 1923, that whenever the Securities Commissioner, who administers the blue sky regulations, is of the opinion that any person or company coming under the law is engaged in or is about to engage in illegal or fraudulent practices, he may report the facts in his possession to the Attorney-General, who, if in his opinion the facts warrant, shall file an injunction suit in the Circuit Court.

Gov. Caulfield upon receiving the Better Business Bureau's resolution pointed out that he had no supervision of the work of the Securities Commissioner, who is appointed by the Secretary of State, himself an elective officer. The Governor referred the Bureau's resolution to Attorney-General Shartel for an opinion whether or not the Governor had any power in matters within the departments of other elective State officers.

Postoffice inspectors are now investigating to ascertain if the mails were fraudently misused by Young Bros. in selling stock. William and Fred Young have posted $15,000 bonds here to answer any charges that may be brought against them in the State Courts. They are at liberty under $500 bonds in Barton County, where they are charged with making illegal sales of stock in violation of the Blue Sky law.

Stockard Says He Never Consulted Shartel on Question.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 19.—F. T. Stockard, Commissioner of Securities, said tonight, in reply to a question, that he had never consulted Attorney-General Shartel as to the question of his authority to make an examination of Young Bros. Stockard is a subordinate of Secretary of State Becker.

TWO CONVICTS SLAIN IN PRISON RIOT; GANGSTERS RUN IN FIREARMS

which the full prison force, local police, Providence police and State troopers responded. Vans of reserves left this city for the scene.

Although many shots were fired, tear gas probably had more effect than bullets in stemming the riot. Firing in the visitors' waiting room and the pen in which prisoners are confined when they receive visitors, continued after all doors were locked. The rioters were making a last desperate attempt for freedom by firing into the locks of the doors in the hopes of opening them.

At 3.30, a little more than an hour after the first shot was fired, the outbreak was to all intents and purposes at an end.

Immunity Appeal Refused.

When the rioting prisoners became convinced their plot had failed, they delegated Father J. J. Sullivan, the Catholic chaplain of the prison, to act as an emissary with an offer of surrender in return for immunity. This the Warden refused to grant and with augmented forces, bullets and tear gas bombs were directed into the section of the building in which the prisoners were confined.

Father Sullivan had been in the visitors' section with some 40 women and children who fled to sheltered wings of the building in terror as the firing started.

The jail delivery failed by only a hair's breadth, and Pele Champlin gave his life to deprive the conspirators of that. The prisoners had McVay's key to the pen in their possession, but, with the siren screeching, their nerve failed and they fumbled with the lock. It was then that the outside conspirators lost heart and fled.

Warden Linscott, rushing from his home in an adjacent building met the two confederates at the prison door. One of them pressed a revolver to his body and pulled the trigger. Twice the hammer fell on an empty or faulty cartridge and the pair fled to their waiting automobile and speeded away, under a hail of fire.

HOTEL GUESTS REFUSE TO GIVE CENSUS DATA

317 Living in West End Reported to U. S. Prosecutor—Court Action Threatened.

Census enumerators working in the West End yesterday complained to Assistant District Attorney Claude M. Crooks that they have encountered considerable difficulty in gathering data from dwellers in apartment houses and apartment hotels.

More than 300 persons refused to give any information, the enumerators said, and many others declined to answer fully the questions put to them, while answering other questions without hesitation.

In a list sent to Crooks by the supervisors he was advised that 65 persons refused to give information in the Congress and two in the Senate apartment holtels at Union boulevard and Pershing avenues; 50 declined in the Commodore at 5316 Pershing avenue, 16 in the Westmoreland at 5330 Pershing avenue, 57 in the Branscome at 5370 Pershing avenue, two in the Pershing at 5386 Pershing avenue, 113 in the Fairgrounds Hotel, Natural Bridge and Spring avenues, and 12 in the North Side Y. M. C. A., 3100 North Grand boulevard.

Crooks said the enumerators reported they were having much less difficulty now with foreign-born residents than with the apartment dwellers.

He said he has written letters to the managers of apartments and hotels complained of and requested that they explain to their guests or tenants that the law requires them to answer the questions, and that refusal to do so may be punished with a maximum sentence of six months in jail or a fine of $500, or both.

"I cannot understand why people situated as those who have been reported to me, who speak the English language and ought, at least, to know and appreciate the purpose of the census refuse to give the required information," Crooks said.

"If the issuance of a warning does not have the desired effect we will issue informations against them to compel compliance with the census law."

SON OF BISHOP CAN'T REMEMBER KILLING LODGER

James M. Maxon Jr., Admits He Had Been Drinking Gin "That Makes You Do Crazy Things."

FATHER ON THE WAY TO HIM IN NEW YORK

Alleged Slayer Arraigned and Held in Tombs Without Bond—To Be Rearraigned Wednesday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 19.—James Mathew Maxon Jr., former Columbia University journalism student and son of the Episcopal Bishop Coadjutor of Tennessee, was arraigned in West Side court today and held without bail on a charge of homicide. He will be rearraigned Wednesday in Homicide Court. Until then he will be in a cell in the Tombs.

Maxon's father is on his way to New York to help his 21-year-old son.

Maxon, who admits he had been drinking gin "that makes you do crazy things," says he does not remember just what happened when he returned to his West End boarding house early Friday morning. He insists he does not remember attacking his landlady, jerking a few gas jets from the wall, breaking up the furniture or beating to death David Paynter, 73-year-old printer.

Found in young Maxon's room along with short story manuscripts, a girl's fur coat and a letter signed "Cherie," was a note from his father, bespeaking the worries of the parent over his son's habits.

Pleads for Consideration.

The letter, dated Chattanooga, Tenn., April 12, follows:

"Dear James:

"Your letter came asking for $15. This I cannot send you. I sent you an allowance of $100 last week and it should be ample for your wants.

"I told you before repeatedly that I do not want you to telegraph me for money. It costs money which I haven't got to spare. Furthermore, there is no necessity for it. You have all the allowance I can afford to give you.

"I know full well what I have sent you and on what you have earned you can live comfortably and pay for your education nicely. You will never get anywhere by spending money riotously, and ill-advised. I will send you $100 the first of May and again the first of June. You haven't written. me when school is out and, I take it, it is early in June.

"You can do much to help me by careful economy if you will. I had put aside in my allowance $1000 to $2000 for you, but you have already exceeded it, so do your very best to bring down expenses—your very best.

"You do not know what worries I carry. We all send love.

"DADDY."

Southerner Comes to Aid.

Another Southerner came to the aid of Maxon as his attorney. Martin W. Littleton, a Tennessean, former president of the Southern Society and one of New York's leading corporation lawyers is the man.

Littleton explained in a matter of fact way as though it might happen to any young man, his client's position as he saw it.

As Littleton told it, Maxon went down to the landlady's apartment to investigate a gas leak in his room, the other lodgers thought he was a burglar, and in their effort to capture him started a general fight in which David Paynter, aged 73, was accidentally killed—by whom, he does not know.

"I didn't even know who Paynter was, or that he'd got hit," is what Littleton said Maxon told him. There wasn't any reason for killing anybody. None of us had any grudges."

Mr. Littleton said Maxon told him he had been drinking—and probably too much, but he said all the others had been, too, that a drinking party had been in progress all evening in the landlady's room.

Story of Other Lodgers.

The story of the other lodgers is that Maxon, tearing about the house in a drunken fenzy, broke into the landlady's room, frightened her and killed Paynter when he came to her assistance.

Earlier in the evening he had a girl friend in his room, reading to her a story he had written. While she was still there, he said, the landlady came up and brought him a drink.

Young Maxon had taken his room at Mrs. Hickey's boarding house on Sunday. Six months ago he came to New York after attending Knox College and the University of the South at Sewanee. He was said to have worked for a time on a newspaper in Chattanooga. He entered Columbia here, but left college in February.

The jail delivery failed by onl a hair's breadth, and Pele Champlin gave his life to depriv the conspirators of that. Th prisoners had McVay's key to th pen in their possession, but, wit the siren screeching, their nerve failed and they fumbled with th lock. It was then that the outsid conspirators lost heart and fled.

Warden Linscott, rushing fro his home in an adjacent buildin met the two confederates at th prison door. One of them presse a revolver to his body and pulle the trigger. Twice the hamm fell on an empty or faulty ca ridge and the pair fled to the waiting automobile and speede away, under a hail of fire.

SON OF BISHOP CAN'T REMEMBER KILLING LODGER

James M. Maxon Jr., Admits He Had Been Drinking Gin "That Makes You Do Crazy Things."

FATHER ON THE WAY TO HIM IN NEW YORK

Alleged Slayer Arraigned and Held in Tombs Without Bond—To Be Re-arraigned Wednesday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 19.—James Mathew Maxon Jr., former Columbia University journalism student and son of the Episcopal Bishop Coadjutor of Tennessee, was arraigned in West Side court today and held without bail on a charge of homicide. He will be rearraigned Wednesday in Homicide Court. Until then he will be in a cell in the Tombs.

Maxon's father is on his way to New York to help his 21-year-old son.

Maxon, who admits he had been drinking gin "that makes you do crazy things," says he does not remember just what happened when he returned to his West End boarding house early Friday morning. He insists he does not remember attacking his landlady, jerking a few gas jets from the wall, breaking up the furniture or beating to death David Paynter, 73-year-old printer.

Found in young Maxon's room along with short story manuscripts, a girl's fur coat and a letter signed "Cherie," was a note from his father, bespeaking the worries of the parent over his son's habits.

Pleads for Consideration.

The letter, dated Chattanooga, Tenn., April 12, follows:

"Dear James:

"Your letter came asking for $15. This I cannot send you. I sent you an allowance of $100 last week and it should be ample for your wants.

"I told you before repeatedly that I do not want you to telegraph me for money. It costs money which I haven't got to spare. Furthermore, there is no necessity for it. You have all the allowance I can afford to give you.

"I know full well what I have sent you and on what you have earned you can live comfortably and pay for your education nicely. You will never get anywhere by spending money riotously, and ill-advised. I will send you $100 the first of May and again the first of June. You haven't written me when school is out and I take it, it is early in June.

"You can do much to help me by careful economy if you will. I had put aside in my allowance $1000 to $2000 for you, but you have already exceeded it, so do your very best to bring down expenses—your very best.

"You do not know what worries I carry. We all send love.

"DADDY."

Southerner Comes to Aid.

Another Southerner came to the aid of Maxon as his attorney. Martin W. Littleton, a Tennessean, former president of the Southern Society and one of New York's leading corporation lawyers is the man.

Littleton explained in a matter of fact way as though it might happen to any young man, his client's position as he saw it.

As Littleton told it, Maxon went down to the landlady's apartment to investigate a gas leak in his room; the other lodgers thought he was a burglar, and in their effort to capture him started a general fight in which David Paynter, aged 73, was accidentally killed—by whom, he does not know.

"I didn't even know who Paynter was, or that he'd got hit," is what Littleton said Maxon told him. "There wasn't any reason for killing anybody. None of us had any grudges."

Mr. Littleton said Maxon told him he had been drinking—and probably too much, but he said all the others had been, too, that a drinking party had been in progress all evening in the landlady's room.

Story of Other Lodgers.

The story of the other lodgers is that Maxon, tearing about the house in a drunken fenzy, broke into the landlady's room, frightened her and killed Paynter when he came to her assistance.

Earlier in the evening he had a girl friend in his room, reading to her a story he had written. While she was still there, he said, the landlady came up and brought him a drink.

Young Maxon had taken his room at Mrs. Hickey's boarding house on Sunday. Six months ago he came to New York after attending Knox College and the University of the South at Sewanee. He was said to have worked for a time on a newspaper in Chattanooga. He entered Columbia here, but left college in February.

Text of Dr. Bass' Confession

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FOLLOWING is that part of the confession made by Dr. A. J. Bass, in which he tells how he killed William R. Pearman, whose life had been insured for the benefit of Bass for $200,000 under the name of William Folta:

"ON Wednesday, March 26, I drove from Columbia to Kansas City to confer with Pearman on taxes due on land I had sold to him in the insurance fraud.

"Pearman already had caused me alarm by openly boasting he soon would be well off financially and intended to set up a waitress, of whom he was enamored, in a new home at Columbia.

"I had given Pearman to understand that I had made a deal with a St. Louis gangster to furnish a body to be identified as his own in order to collect on the insurance, but I did not tell him that the gangster had failed to do it.

"In due time that day I conferred with Pearman and arranged to drive him back to Columbia that night. There was no moon, and we chatted about inconsequential matters as we drove along. I kept thinking what a hateful thing I was about to do, because Bill Pearman and I had never had a cross word. I had known him since he was a little boy.

"My car, a coupe, like others of its model, has an offset above the back of the seat, extending back to the rear observation glass, upon which one usually lays packages. I usually carried my revolver on the seat between my legs, but on this night I placed it on the offset and laid my arm across the back of the seat, driving with my left hand.

"Pearman, who had been drinking that day, was leaning forward with his head down. We were near Rocheport when I observed this and said to myself, 'It is now or never.' I quietly took my revolver, which was laying by my hand, and as I drove on a straight stretch of pavement, shot Bill in the head.

"He slouched forward, his head against the instrument board, but I drove on as though nothing had happened for a little distance. Then I stopped the car and fired two more shots to make sure of the job. I then climbed out of the automobile, took out the rumble seat and locked him in the rear compartment.

DR. A. J. BASS.

"I drove to my home in Columbia and put my car in my garage. My mental state was frightful when I entered my home and, with Bill Pearman dead and locked in my car, there was no sleep for me that night.

"I rose early, as usual, and went about my usual affairs, around the house, and about 8 or 9 o'clock got my car and started out. I drove to Gravette, Ark., by way of Springfield, threw the body in the ravine and started back to Columbia. I was worn out before I reached Springfield and took a nap for an hour or two in the road in my car. During the afternoon I stopped near Waynesville for lunch.

"I wanted to get back to and be seen in Columbia before the body was found. I wanted to be at my farm outside Columbia before dawn so the man in charge there could say I was there, and as Columbia is 375 miles from Gravette, I hoped I could show, if necessary, it would have been impossible for me to drive 750 miles in the comparatively short time I was away from the farm.

"I drove back very fast, reaching the farm about 3 a. m., and let Jacobs, the man in charge, know I had returned.

"I rose early and about 8 o'clock washed blood off the back rest of the rumble seat with gasoline and replaced the seat, which had no blood on it. I also had my car washed and awaited developments. Hours passed and I grew increasingly nervous, so much so that I drove to Ashland to get away from the thing that haunted me. I visited around Ashland a few hours and returned to my farm. Still no word of the finding of the body, and I nervously spent that night at my home in town. Still no sleep and the awful thought of what I had done precluded the possibility of rest. Another day dawned, Saturday, and no word from Arkansas.

"Later Sheriff Fields of Bentonville telephoned me that a body had been found at Gravette and in the pocket of the man's coat was a letter from a lawyer at Texarkana addressed to William Folta, the name I had given Bill Pearman, and that my name was in the letter. I told the Sheriff I knew Folta and would come down and look at the body. The thing was in the open at last, and I had no choice but to go through with it."

Dr. A. J. Bass Confesses He Murdered Pearman

canceled a $100,000 insurance policy.

Dr. Bass named three men, known to St. Louis police as the gunmen who, he said, he hired in the Indianapolis plot and who forced him into a second fraud, but no warrants were issued against them. Photographs of the three men were obtained from St. Louis police and Dr. Bass identified two of them.

Dr. Bass still insists that the Dorsey confession is true in detail and that the gunmen had blackmailed him persistently and extorted money from him. Their only connection with the Pearman-Folta case, he said, was in that he negotiated with one of the gunmen to supply a body in order to complete the fraud, a deal which was not consummated.

Dr. Bass confessed the murder last night to John R. Duty, his local attorney, and the writer, in the presence of Duty's stenographer, Miss Ollie Collins, who recorded his statement. Attorney Clark, arriving from Columbia today, immediately took exceptions to the dentist's assertion that gunmen were responsible for his acts.

Story of Gang Plot Doubted.

Attorney Clark issued a statement in behalf of himself and the Rev. Carl Agee, pastor of the Christian Church of Columbia, to whom the doctor had "told his troubles" after the Dorsey plot. The statement:

"I am of the opinion, as is the Rev. Mr. Agee, that Dr. Bass played a lone hand in the Pearman case, and that no gangsters were involved; that Dr. Bass killed Pearman and disposed of the body himself; that he had no aid from any other source, in view of his experience in the Indianapolis case, when the gangsters failed him.

"We have made a check at Columbia and found Dr. Bass was absent from Columbia 26 hours, which would have given him ample time to drive the round trip of 750 miles to Gravette, Ark., where the body was found, and return home. I will talk to him again during the afternoon in an effort to clear up the point about the gangsters."

Story of Previous Murder Plot.

In his first confession, signed last week, the dentist related that he and Dorsey, chairman of the board of the Northern States Life Insurance Co. at Hammond, Ind., negotiated a land deal and agreed to exchange $100,000 insurance policies as security. His story was that he had promised gunmen $8000 to kill Dorsey, but when the plot was abandoned after he had taken a killer to Indianapolis, the gunmen insisted on payment until he handed over $4000 in cash at a meeting at the Washington Hotel in St. Louis.

During this period, he confided in the Rev. Mr. Agee, in whose church he is a deacon. He told the pastor a story of being harrassed by gunmen, who had extorted $4000 from him and were demanding more. The Rev. Mr. Agee sought to talk him out of his fears and advised his wife to take steps to have him committed to an institution. After the Pearman-Folta fraud got under way, the dentist avoided his pastor.

Although there was no confirmation of gangster activities in the Pearman case, the dentist's account of dealings with gangsters in the period which followed the Dorsey plot is substantiated in part. P. T. King, Assistant Chief of Police at Columbia, has said that he accompanied Dr. Bass to St. Louis in April, 1929, and was present with a private detective and Walton F. Barron of Columbia, then living in St. Louis at 4228 McPherson avenue, in a West End drug store when the dentist talked with gangsters who, King understood, had demanded $8000.

Barron, now in Columbia, has denied knowledge of gangsters and declared that King "hasn't got the facts quite right." It was Barron's McPherson avenue address that Pearman used as the home address of Folta in obtaining the insurance.

Arranging $200,000 Fraud.

Dr. Bass' account of the method used in obtaining the fraudulent insurance, taken from last night's confession, follows:

"I took Pearman over to Kansas City and introduced him to S. K. Johnson as William Folta. Johnson, Pearman and I went to Texarkana. We showed the land to Pearman and came back to Kansas City. Johnson drew up the contract of sale and an attorney in Kansas City later drew up the notes and a deed of trust aggregating $223,000.

"I made the suggestion to Johnson that Folta, whom Johnson did not know as Pearman, was going to put up $200,000 life insurance as additional collateral for these notes. Johnson said he had a friend by the name of Shaw who was agent for the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. of Fort Wayne, Ind., which was a good company, that he himself held $25,000 insurance on his life in that company and that if we had made no other arrangements he would be glad to see Mr. Shaw get the business.

Policy Taken Out in Folta's Name.

"I told Johnson that we had not. He telephoned Shaw and Shaw came to his office and was introduced to Folta and myself. Shaw took the application for the insurance in the name of William Folta, Pearman using the name of Folta, giving the family history of William Folta, which previously had been procured by Pearman and me from the family of Folta at Martinsburg Mo."

(Pearman or Folta then underwent two medical examinations before he was accepted. After he was accepted, the insurance company turned over the application to an inspection bureau in Kansas City. This bureau obtained reports from St. Louis, St. Joseph and Kansas City on references supplied by Dr. Bass to the effect that William Folta was a rich soap manufacturer of Japan, worth in excess of $250,000 and with an income of $50,000 a year. On these reports, four $50,000 policies were issued Dec. 24 last, after Dr. Bass paid the first year's premium of $3102.)

Until last night, Dr. Bass had insisted that he had no personal part in the actual murder of Pearman, giving the impression that the gunmen he named, or their associates, were the murderers. Attorney Duty and the writer had questioned him by turns for three days when he admitted he had done the killing.

He had been questioned for about 8 hours yesterday, when at 6 p. m. he led Duty aside and asked, "Mr. Duty, if you did this thing, woud you admit it?" The lawyer replied that he would. Returning to the writer, Dr. Bass asked, "Are you a friend of mine?" The writer replied, "I wouldn't hurt you."

"Well, I did this thing," said the dentist, bursting into tears and covering his face with his hands. When he regained his composure he began his confession, which was interrupted frequently by tearful expressions of regret for the shame it would bring on his family.

At the conclusion, he apologized to the stenographer because she had been compelled to "listen to this blood-curdling thing." He wept for "poor Bill Pearman" and expressed sympathy for Pearman's wife and two children. "I planned all this myself; Pearman was my victim," he declared. As his questioners prepared to leave, he faced them with tears in his eyes and said, "Gentlemen, I will sleep tonight."

Pearman's Son Doubts Some Details of Dr. Bass' Confession.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 19.—Some details of the confession of Dr. A. J. Bass that he killed William R. Pearman in his automobile on Highway No. 40, near Rocheport, and hauled the body to Arkansas, are viewed with skepticism by Boone County officials and by Robert Pearman, 22-year-old son of the slain man.

Sheriff Clyde Ballew and Prosecuting Attorney Reagan, as well as young Pearman, doubt the statement that the dentist shot Pearman in the right side of the head while holding a revolver in his right hand and driving an automobile. Sheriff Ballew's theory is that Pearman was shot somewhere in Southern Missouri and the body hidden there while Bass returned to Columbia to establish an alibi.

Robert Pearman's opinion is that Dr. Bass sought to fix the murder in Boone County in order that he might be tried in his home county. He thinks his father was killed where the body was found because of a report he has heard that it lay in a pool of blood.

Prosecutor Reagan and Sheriff Ballew intend to ask fro the dentists's retrn to Columbia for trial if it is definitely established that the murder was committed in Boone County. They think that Dr. Bass has not yet told the complete story of the murder.

Seeking to verify the dentist's account of his movements, authoritives learned today that he left Columbia the morning of March 27 and returned to his farm home south of here on the morning of March 28.

WOMAN IN BANK EMBEZZLED $9000 OVER 11 YEARS

Mrs. A. G. Quint, Pleasant Green, Mo., Couldn't Get Things She Wanted on $45 a Month Wage.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., April 19. — It was not a desire for luxuries, but merely a longing for a pleasant home and the better things of life which could not be obtained on $45 a month that led Mrs. Carrie B. Quint, 30-year-old bookkeeper, to embezzle $9,000 from the Bank of Pleasant Green causing the closing of that depository yesterday by its directors.

Mrs. Quint and her husband, Alfred George Quint, garage owner at Pleasant Green, held the confidence not only of the bank officials but of the entire community.

Mrs. Quint is unable to explain why she stole the bank's funds.

"I can't tell you why I did it," she said between sobs. "I couldn't get the things for my home that I wanted on the salary and I just couldn't help taking the money from the bank."

Mrs. Quint was released from jail last night on $3000 bond and her case was set for the next term of Circuit Court here when she will face specific charges of embezzlement, according to Prosecuting Attorney Walter D. Semple. She went to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baslee, near Bell Air.

The bank is in charge of George Freund, examiner for the State Finance Department, who says he is not certain whether it will reopen or not. If it does not there is a possibility of a loss of as much as $62,000 to the depositors, it is estimated. E. W. Hite is president of the bank and W. B. Rissler, cashier.

Mrs. Quint surrendered to the authorities Thursday evening when she realized that her defalcations had been discovered. She signed a statement admitting the embezzlement and said she had taken the money over a period of 11 years. She was able to conceal the shortage from the examiners because it was her duty to total up the checks and read the totals off to the examiners. She would add to the total reported and take out the difference for herself. For instance, according to Semple, the day's check total would be $2000. Instead, Mrs. Quint would report to Rissler a total of $2050 and take the $50 from the cash drawer. This shortage, then, would be added to the figures when the bookkeeper would read them to the examiners. It was a novel method of embezzlement, Freund said.

Only One Member Left In the Last Man's Club

To Charles Lockwood Falls the Obligation of Drinking a Toast to 32 Civil War Comrades.

By the Associated Press.

ATWATER, Minn., April 19.—The famous Last Man's Club, today is down to the last man.

Originally there were 33 members, Civil War veterans from B Company, First Minnesota Volunteer Infantry. Death took them, one by one, until only two remained—Peter O. Hall, 91 years old, of Atwater, and Charles Lockwood, 89 years old, of Chamberlain, S. D.

Today there remains only Lockwood. His comrade of war and of peace died last night.

Thus to Lockwood is left the ceremony of drinking a toast to the 32 who have gone; toasting them in the bottle of Burgundy wine purchased July 21, 1886, when the club was organized.

July 21 of each year has been the date on which the Last Man's Club met. It was on that day that B Company went under fire at Bull Run. Each year the club has met, but each year the membership has dwindled.

At each annual gathering the bottle of Burgundy has been brought from the bank vault where it is kept and placed on the banquet table, a reminder that the day would come when one of them would one day sit alone at that table and drink a toast to the dead.

The last man is Charles Lockwood. Yesterday he was up and about the farm, doing his chores as usual. He is suffering from a slight cold, but plans to attend the funeral of Hall here Tuesday.

Three years ago, when only three members of the Last Man's Club were left, the bottle of Burgundy was opened.

One of the three put the bottle to his lips. He tasted it and the bottle was resealed. That man was Peter Hall.

Burgundy, Bought in 1886, Has Turned to Vinegar.

By the Associated Press.

MITCHELL, S. D., April 19.—A bottle of Bergundy wine, purchased in 1886 to be used as a toast to his departed comrades by the final survivor of the Last Man's Club of Stillwater, Minn., has turned to vinegar.

This secret was disclosed today by Charles Lockwood, the last survivor of the club, who stopped here on his way from his home at Chamberlain, S. D., to attend the funeral of Peter O. Hall of Atwater, Minn., who died Friday night.

BRICKS THROWN AT TAXIES BY TWO MEN IN A COUPE

One Breaks Windshield, Another Smashes Plate Glass Windows of Drug Store.

Two men in a small coupe drove past Sixth and Chestnut streets three times last night about 9 o'clock, on each occasion throwing a brick at taxicabs standing at the intersection.

The first brick struck a fender on the cab of John Collins, 3503 Morgan street, the second went through the windshield of one owned by Arthur Donovan, the third glanced off of Collins' cab and went through a plate glass window of a drug store on the southeast corner.

Collins and Donovan said they knew no reason for the attack. Each owns a Columbia-Premier taxicab, formerly operated by a company which went bankrupt.

12-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED IN FRONT OF HOME BY AUTO

Stanford Childers Crossing Street With Brother When Hit—Motorists Do Not Stop.

Stanford, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Childers, 3737A Chouteau avenue, was killed about 8:30 o'clock last night, when struck by an automobile, the driver of which sped on without stopping.

The boy and his 10-year-old brother, Robert, were crossing Chouteau avenue in front of their home, Robert a few steps in advance. An eastbound Ford coupe in which two men were riding struck Stanford as he reached about the middle of the street. He was pronounced dead of a fractured skull and other injuries when taken to city hospital.

Stanford was a pupil at the Wyman School. His father, a steam shovel operator, has been employed out of town and had written of an intention to return home to spend Easter with his family.

Darting away from a group of companions at play in Overland yesterday afternoon, Ponder McClain, 10 years old, was struck by an automobile and fatally injured.

The accident occurred in front of 2512 Woodson road at 1:45 p. m. Ponder, the son of Earl McClain of 9535 Tennyson avenue, Overland, an expressman, was struck and knocked down by the bumper of the machine, a heavy sedan. He died of a skull fracture 15 minutes later at Overland Hospital.

John J. Bresnahan, 36, of 3525 Clark avenue, service car operator, was the driver. He had rented his car for the day to a salesman. The salesman is reported to have fled when the accident happened.

Bresnahan was arrested for the Coroner. An inquest will be held.

Man Killed by Auto on Alighting From Street Car.

August Mansfield, 41 years old, 6800 State street, East St. Louis, was killed last midnight when struck by an automobile as he alighted from a street car at Seventieth and State streets. The driver, Roland Young, 19, 530 North Nineteenth street, said that Mansfield ran in front of the machine and that he could not avoid striking him. He was held by police. Mansfield suffered fractures of skull, right arm and left leg.

TROOPS PURSUING INSURGENTS AFTER RAID IN INDIA

Seven Killed in Attack on Police Arsenal in Chittagong — British Soldiers Chasing Invaders.

By the Associated Press.

CALCUTTA, April 19.—British troops and police tonight were pursuing the insurgents who this morning raided the police arsenal at Chittagong and killed seven persons.

The Magistrate at Chittagong reported that the raiders, who are reported to be in the surrounding hills, are equipped with modern arms, and that the pursuing forces are scantily equipped. A detachment of British troops was sent out from Calcutta after the raid, however, and expects to reach Chittagong tomorrow morning.

Sir Stanley Jackson, Governor of the State of Bengal, returned from Darjeelinghoday after hearing of the attack, while Viceroy Lord Irwin renewed the special Bengal ordinance which confers extraordinary powers for the suppression of disorder. The ordinance recently expired and was not renewed, although reservation was made that the Governor-General could again invoke it if necessary.

Searching for Arms.

Calcutta authorities, meanwhile, began a wide search for hidden arms and ammunition. Armored motor cars carrying machine guns were stationed at strategic points throughout the city and environs.

The raid today ended a week which already had caused disorders in Calcutta, Karachi and Poona. The death toll rose to eight, for one Indian was killed in the fighting at Karachi and the number of injured in all the trouble totals about 100.

Information regarding whether the insurgents obtained arms and ammunition from the arsenal was difficult to learn. The Chittagong magistrate, while reporting that the raiders were well armed, was not specific as to whether arms were obtained in the attack. The Government communique said merely that the place had been destroyed.

The raid followed the ominous quiet of Good Friday. Telephone and telegraph wires to Calcutta were cut, and the Calcutta-Chittagong Railway line was blocked by a derailed train.

A report from Chittagong said several European women and children had been placed on steamers to release their men for duty, presumably meaning for pursuit of the raiders.

The roundup of Bengal Nationalist leaders in Calcutta continued all day and nightfall found 20 of them behind the bars, while one minor leader who was arrested yesterday was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Mahatma Gandhi, the Nationalist leader, addressed a group of followers at Bardoli today and appealed for a continuance of the civil disobedience campaign without violence. Mrs. Gandhi continued to lead women's activity against liquor and foreign cloth.

TENTATIVE PLAN FOR CITY-COUNTY UNION COMPLETED

Zoological Board of Control. The city's 2-mill zoo tax would be collected in the "county" also.

Power to create other departments and services as they may be needed would be lodged in the Council, particularly for establishment of a police force to patrol highways and protect the outlying or rural municipality, creation of a traffic engineering division and formation of a Water Department whenever the proposed authority for Greater St. Louis to take over private and public waterworks is exercised.

Health and traffic regulations for all of Greater St. Louis and building and smoke regulations for those sections now lacking them would be given the council.

Utility Franchises.

Authority to grant public utility franchises would rest with the Council, but proceeds from franchises would be distributed equitably among the municipalities.

Although the city would continue to have its own appointive Assessor and the county its elective Assessor, a metropolitan Board of Equalization, with representatives of each area, would be provided to adjust assessments between city and county, but only for the purpose of Greater St. Louis taxes. This feature is still under discussion because its proponents realize the possibility of conflict of assessment methods. The board would also have to devise and recommend to the two Assessors scientific valuation methods.

The city and the county area would continue to elect their own Collectors of Revenue, and in the county the Collector would handle on a single tax bill municipal taxes as well as those for school districts and Greater St. Louis.

Judicial circuits in the city and "county" would continue to be separate, together with related offices. That is, there would be separate Circuit, Probate and minor criminal courts, prosecuting officials, Sheriffs, Coroners, Public Administrators and Recorders of Deeds. The metropolitan Council would levy separate tax rates in the city and the "county" for support of these courts and offices and maintenance of the courthouses, insofar as fees and fines do not cover the expenses.

"County" Justices of the Peace would lose criminal jurisdiction and a tribunal corresponding to the city's Court of Criminal Correction would be set up there instead.

Division of Authority.

All existing municipalities, includng St. Louis, would retain their present names and powers except as the powers are affected by those conferred on Greater St. Louis. They would retain local management of police, fire protection, zoning, local street and highway construction and maintenance, street lighting and cleaning, garbage collection and disposal, location of public utility facilities in the thoroughfares, general police regulations, issuance of licenses, building inspection, markets and scale inspection. St. Louis would retain control over the Municipal Bridge, Lambert-St. Louis Field (the municipal airport) and docks and wharves.

School districts would not be affected, but all schools left to the present local management.

For the outlying or rural municipality three governing commissioners would be elected as the County Court is chosen now, and a clerk, attorney and engineer would be elected. When the plan becomes effective, the County Court Judges then in office would become the commissioners for the remainder of their elective terms. This new town would have power to adopt police ordinances—something now lacink in county government—and would be called on to maintain lesser streets and highways, issue licenses and create special districts for various public services in the built-up neighborhoods. Revenue for this town would be provided by a fund equivalent to 20 cents on the $100 assessed valuation in this town, paid over by Greater St. Louis, but it would have the power to lay its own taxes in addition upon approval of its people.

Annexation Provision.

All of the municipalities—and Greater St. Louis would consist entirely of municipalities—would be free to annex themselves, upon the vote of their people, to other towns in the federation. In the case of the outlying town, if some portion thereof desired annexation to a neighboring municipality, not only inhabitants of that section, but the people of the whole rural town would have to give approval.

Limitation of the bonded debt and the tax rate for Greater St. Louis will be provided in the enabling constitutional amendment. Not only bonds for income-producing utilities, like the city water works would be exempted from the debt limit, but also bonds to be paid out of the proceeds of special improvement assessments. The latter would be a new means of financing public works. The tax rate for interest and principal on bonds would be apart from the general tax limitation, as at present. The whole subject of taxation is still under consideration. It is hoped to require only a negligible increase of taxes, and in some sections there might even be a decrease.

Greater St. Louis would assume the indebtedness of the county. It would have the powers of eminent domain (condemnation), levying of special improvement assessments and creation of special taxing districts to provide utilities or services for the districts' areas. The planners are working on an improved procedure for fixing benefits and damages in condemnation cases and for levying and financing special assessments, which would be provided for Greater St. Louis and made available to the constituent municipalities as alternatives to present methods.

All elective officers of city and county in office should the plan become effective would be retained in office, with any necessary changes of duties, until the expiration of their terms. All regular appointive officers and permanent employes of city, county and suburban departments whose functions are transferred to Greater St. Louis would be retained at their present salaries by Greater St. Louis, naturally subject to future promotion, demotion or removal, as they are now, but with the same protection against arbitrary action now afforded city employes.

Donated to the Art Museum

"HERCULES KILLING THE HYDRA," the work of Mathias Gasteiger of Germany has been given anonymously to the City Art Museum.

$5000 Statue Given to City Art Museum by Anonymous Donor

Eight-Foot Bronze "Hercules Killing the Hydra," Work of Matthias Gasteiger of Munich.

An eight-foot bronze statue, depicting the myth of "Herakles (or Hercules) Killing the Hydra" has been presented to the City Art Museum by an anonymous donor. The bronze, which is the work of Matthias Gasteiger, sculptor of Munich, Germany, cost about $5000.

The statue was exhibited in plaster at the annual Glaspalast exhibition in Munich in 1927. It was seen there by William B. Papin, treasurer of the Museum board, and when Papin returned to St. Louis he suggested the bronze be obtained for the St. Louis museum.

The killing of the Lernean Hydra was the second of the 12 duties, known as the Labors of Hercules, imposed on Herakles by Eurystheus, King of Argos. The bronze shows the mythological strong man getting into action. Poised upon his left foot, his club drawn back, he is about to strike the many headed monster which is twined about his leg.

Action is predominant in this work of the sculptor, and his modeling of the muscles, and the treatment of the tremendous physique generally, gives the piece a fine feeling of realism, mythological though its inspiration is.

The sculptor, Gasteiger, is one of the important contemporary Germans in his field. He is 59 years old, and was a pupil of Syrius Eberle in Munich. By the time he was 21 he exhibited in Munich a piece called "Brunnenbuberl" or "Fountain Boy," which attracted much attention. Gasteiger gave it to the city and it now stands in the Karlsplatz. Much of his work is to be seen in German cities, among it being a limestone bust, "Judith," and a bronze "Adam and Eve," both of which belong to the Leipzig Museum.

MIXUP RESULTS IN FREEING OF YOUTH WHO ADMITS GUILT

W. E. Turner, 20, Alton, Got Auto in University City With Forged Check, County Police Say.

A youth who confessed forging two checks and admitted taking an automobile he obtained with a forged check from St. Louis to his home, more than 200 miles away, was released by Clayton authorities today after he had offered to plead guilty and serve six months in jail. The reason for the release was because one Assistant Prosecuting Attorney was too busy to handle his case and another knew nothing about the charge against the young man.

Willie E. Turner, 20 years old, former student at the University of Kansas, was arrested at his home in Alton, Mo., last week upon complaint of Harold McCarthy of the McCarthy Motor Co., 6320 Delmar boulevard. McCarthy said Turner, under an assumed name, purchased a Ford roadster April 7, making a payment with a $96 check on an Oklahoma bank. McCarthy wired the bank for confirmation of the check, and in the meantime permitted Turner to take the car out to show his wife.

The young man failed to return. McCarthy was informed the check was a forgery and wrote to Ford dealers within a 300-mile radius of St. Louis, asking them to watch for the car. When it was found in Alton, Turner was arrested and returned to University City.

After confessing, according to police there, that the check was a forgery, and that he had used another forged check for $50 to start a bank account, Turner waived preliminary hearing and was taken to Clayton. His case there was handled by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Bryant. Turned offered to plead guilty to a charge of driving an automobile without the owner's consent, if Bryant would recommend a sentence of six months in jail.

Bryant agreed, but when Turner was called before Circuit Judge Lashly yesterday, Bryant was busy and sent another assistant, Thomas G. Woolsey, into court to handle the case. Judge Lashly questioned the youth, who said he had had McCarthy's permission to take the car to show to his wife, but did not explain that he had taken it all the way to Alton. Turner also told the Court: "That check was good. They didn't try to find out about it. They just arrested me."

At that Judge Lashly refused to accept a plea of guilty, and ordered Turner freed on the charge of driving an automobile without the owner's consent. Woolsey sent him to the Sheriff's office with a deputy, who returned Turney's confiscated property. The young man then departed.

Later, when reporters questioned Woolsey about the case, he said he had not handled it prior to the court hearing and did not know that Turner had admitted the check was a forgery or that he had forged another check.

INJUNCTION FILED TO PREVENT BUILDING OF FILLING STATION

Moorland Land Co. Charges Property Was Sold Under Restriction Barring Oil Market.

An injunction suit to prevent construction of a filling station at the southeast corner of Wydown boulevard and Hanley road was filed in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday by the Moorland Land Co., which charges the property was purchased by Alexander Moretta, 6532 Clayton road, one of the defendants in the suit, under a restriction agreement whereby a store could be constructed there, but not a filling station.

The other defendant is the Lubrite Refining Co., to which, the petition alleges, Moretta has leased the property.

Dr. John A. King, retired physician, died of pneumonia Friday at Maplewood, N. J., where he was visiting relatives. He was 88 years old and had not engaged in active practice for about 15 years.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. He was a widower and resided with a nephew, Willard Phelps, of 7036 Lindenwood place.

TRACING POISON AFTER ROBBER ENDS LIFE

Chemists to Determine Nature of Drug Which W. J. Hyman, Student Flyer, Took.

Chemical analysis is being made to determine the nature of the poison with which William J. Hyman, 27-year-old student flyer, residing with his wife and 7-month-old child at 5100 Greer avenue, ended his life at the Deer Street Police Station after he had been arrested as a holdup man Friday night.

At the inquest yesterday the Coroner's autopsy physician testified Hyman had swallowed a corrosive poison, the exact nature of which he could not determine. Pending the chemical analysis, the inquest has been held open, but Coroner Dever said a suicide verdict would be returned.

Hyman was identified by Harry Whittman, a clerk in the Star Square Auto Co., branch store, 4959 Delmar boulevard, as the armed and partly masked robber who held him up Friday afternoon and obtained $35. Whittman said he recognized Hyman, having formerly worked with him at another Star Square store, and laughed, thinking the holdup a joke, but Hyman prodded him with a revolver and told him he "meant business."

The license number of the automobile in which the robber escaped was traced to Hyman, and when he returned home for dinner he was arrested and taken to the police station. Where he obtained the poison which he swallowed has not been learned.

TRIAL OF FLOOD CONTROL SUITS TO BEGIN ON TUESDAY

Preliminary Legal Tangles Cleared Away for Condemnation Cases at Cape Girardeau.

JURIES LIKELY, JUDGE INDICATES

Federal Jurist to Appoint New Viewers for Additional Awards in Mississippi County.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., April 19.—Actual trial of flood control condemnation suits will begin here Tuesday in Federal Court, with all the preliminary legal tangles cleared away.

It will be much earlier than many expected the cases to be brought to trial. Expeditious settlement has been urged by landowners as their crying need, and has been an obvious aim of Judge Faris in every decision he has made. He remarked yesterday, however, in stating that he would not devote longer than next week to these cases, that he had received no co-operation, and was about ready to let them take their regular course. "If it takes till Gabriel blows his horn."

He left until Tuesday his actual decision on the jury question, which he called the most puzzling ever before him. According to his opinion delivered yesterday, however, trial will be by jury.

New Estimates May Be Made.

By his decisions this week, awards will go to trial without preliminary filing of itemized reports, and one possible outcome of trial is that viewers will be sent back to make new estimates of awards. A Government motion to reject the present estimates was combined with the exceptions to be considered in actual trial on Judge Faris' ruling that this would save time where speed was urgently required.

At 10 a. m. Monday, he announced, he will appoint new viewers for additional suits in Mississippi County, but retain the same commission in New Madrid County, where no awards have yet been reported. Awards reported to the Court in 17 Mississippi County cases have been vehemently attacked out of court by both sides.

Cites Influences.

"I am disposed, if there is no objection," the Judge said, "to appoint the same viewers in New Madrid County that I have had, but you may pick out a new set for Mississippi County. I am not going to appoint those for you gentlemen. There have been too many letters written to them, too many interviews in the papers by various parties, and too many speeches made in so-called public protest meetings. Necessarily, these gentlemen, I take it, if they are human—and I know them all to be in that category—would be affected by these things one way or the other. And I am going to appoint a new set in Mississippi County. These matters ought to be carried on decently and in order. No one, by any means, hook or crook, ought to get any advantage, or attempt to get any advantage over anybody else.

"The matter is at least quasi-judicial until it reaches the court. After that, when exceptions are filed, it becomes wholly judicial. Occurring as they did, in what I may call the quasi-judicial stage, these things did not, in my opinion, amount to contempt of court. But at best, they were ill-advised and in exceedingly bad taste."

Question of Jury Trial.

The entire difficult question of jury trial hinged on one sentence in the flood act: "In all such proceedings the court, for the purpose of ascertaining the value of the property and assessing the compensation to be paid, shall appoint three commissioners, whose award, when approved by the court, shall be final."

John C. Dyott, special Government counsel, who had ferreted out the line of reasoning that made the question, at first generally considered absurd, the "most puzzling" in the whole puzzling affair, contended that the sentence precluded jury trial or appeal from the Judge's decision.

Landowners' attorneys argued that the sentence was not so far-reaching, and left gaps which had to be filled in by recourse to a law, in effect since 1888, leaving procedure up to State practice and therefore providing a jury. That law is cited in the Government's petitions as authority for the Secretary of War to bring the suits.

Not Bound by State Law.

That fact, in Judge Faris' opinion, did not bind the court, since the Secretary of War had no right to construe the law for it. Neither, he held, would section seven of the bill of rights, preserving the civil right to jury trial, apply to these suits exercising the right of eminent domain. Nor, he said, could the Government, exercising a paramount power, be bound by State law.

Thus, he narrowed the question down to the one sentence of the flood control act. If the sentence had been ommitted, he remarked, "the law would have been just as perfect as it is, and, of course, I am not ascribing perfection to it." He added that Congress must have had some reason for including the senctence, but that, to repeal for these cases he law of 1888, such intention would have to be explained in unmistakable language.

"No man can tell by reading the language what thought was in the mind of Congress," he said. "I am forced to the conclusion that if Congress did have in mind repealing the older law so far as concerned these cases, it did not use language sufficiently strong and clear. I reach the conclusion that a jury ought to be required in this sort of case."

The case in which that question will come to decision, when a jury is called for Tuesday, is suit for possession of two parcels of the farm of T. D. Black, near Anniston, Mississippi County. Viewers reported awards amounting to $6682 for the total.

Required for Setback Levee.

Land taken under these suits is required for right-of-way of a setback levee already under construction between Bird's Point and New Madrid.

The levee will limit the Southeast Missouri floodway, relied upon under th e$325,000,000 flood control project to relieve the Mississippi of excess flood water and protect Cairo, Ill.

Altogether about 90 suits will be tried in the rightlof-way condemnations. Besides the 17 in which awards have been submitted to the Court by the viewers, Dyott announced that 22 were ready for the viewrs to estimate awards.

The levee right-of-way is only the beginning. Following it comes another strip of right-of-way for a $602,000 ditch to carry off drainage blocked by the levee, and then flowage rights for the 131,000-acre floodway itself. The litigation is expected to involve altogether about 900 suits, some of which Judge Faris said yesterday in remarking on lack of assistance given him in expediting settlement, may still be in court 15 years from now.

Michigan Embezzler Pleads Guilty.

By the Associated Press.

FLINT, Mich., April 19.—Bunnell G. Bowles, former Treasurer of Genesee County, who was arrested last November on a charge of embezzlement of $26,000 of county funds, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court today. Sentence was deferred for two weeks. Bowles was released on $25,000 bond and told by Judge James S. Parker to assist auditors to straighten out the Treasurer's books on which State accountants have been working since last fall.

MUNICIPAL THEATER PRODUCTIONS STAFF

Lew Morton to Be Stage Director—Giuseppe Bamboschek the Conductor.

The personnel of the staff which will assist Milton I. Shubert, new general productions manager for the Municipal Theater Association, in the preparation and presentation of 12 musical plays in the Municipal Theater this summer, was announced yesterday.

Lew Morton, who has staged many Shubert shows, including "The Whirl of New York," "Nightingale," "The Love Call," "A Wonderful Night," and several Passing Shows, will be stage director.

Giuseppe Bamboschek, a conductor from the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, will be musical director with William Howard, lately connected with productions of Charles B. Dillingham and the Shuberts, as his assistant.

Orry Kelly, who designed costumes for George White's "Scandals," "Street Singer," "Wonderful night," and "Nina Rosa," will be costume designer. Herbert Moore, art director for the Shuberts, will have a similar position here. Dance numbers will be staged by Edward Scanlan.

Shubert to Arrive Tuesday.

The productions staff was selected on Manager Shubert's recommendations and he will have complete charge of their activities, taking personal charge on his arrival here Tuesday.

Tryouts for the opera chorus will begin at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Shubert Rialto Theater and continue daily through Thursday. Eight hundred applicants have been notified when to appear for auditions which will result in the selection of a chorus of 84 men and women.

Once the chorus is chosen, rehearsals will start for "Nina Rosa," the new Sigmund Romberg operatta which will be brought here from its opening run in Chicago, to open the Forest Park season Friday evening, May 30. It is expected the composer will be here to direct the orchestra at the opening performance.

Three Plays to Be Chosen.

"Nina Rosa" will be presented for 10 consecutive nights and will be followed by 11 other productions to open on successive Mondays. Nine of the 12 musical plays have been selected, including "Show Boat," "The New Moon," "The Desert Song," "Maytime," "Blossom Time," "Alone at Last," "The Red Robe" and "The Circus Princess." All are new to the Municipal Theater.

Tomorrow is the last day for last year's subscirbers to exercise their option on the seats held previously. Yesterday only 150 of 1500 subscribers had failed to renew last year's reservations. Orders for season tickets will be accepted until May 26 when the general seat sale will begin.

Costly House Offered for $750

REASON for offer is that building must be moved within a month for Chippewa street widening.

$15,000 HOME AT $750 BUT THERE'S A REASON

Residence on Grand and Chippewa Must Be Moved in Street Widening.

A 14-room residence worth about $15,000 as it stands at the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and Chippewa street, is offered for sale for $750.

The reason for the obvious bargain is that the house will not be permitted to stand much longer—at least not on that site. Chippewa west of Grand is to be widened into a major thoroughfare by cutting 20 feet from the south side. The residence which abuts on the sidewalk must be moved or wrecked within 30 days.

Erected just before the war when labor cost considerably less than it does now, the building, of white stone and dark brick with a sloping green tile roof, is said to have cost $30,000. It has five rooms on each of two upper floors and additional rooms used as dental offices in the basement.

The city, in condemning 20 feet of the 60-foot lot, doomed the residence. Mrs. Adeline J. Holschbach, 3831 South Grand boulevard, the owner received an award of $28,000 damages offset by $300 benefits, a net award of $27,700. The city thus acquired an interest in part of the building, but sold it back for $100. Mrs. Holschbach, retaining what remained of the site, sold the building to Mr. and Mrs. James A. Lemon, 3936 Dunnica street, who are offering it to the first bidder at $750 "cash and carry."

"Our original idea in buying the house was to move it to a lot we own in the 3700 block of Chippewa," Mrs. Lemon explained. "However, the city won't let us move it that distance because Chippewa street would be closed to traffic while the moving was going on. It would cost us $2600 to move the house.

"We have had several offers and may sell the house any day now. We'll get our money back at $750."

And if the building is not sold, it will be wrecked.

Among tenants who rented the residence in recent years was "Good Time Charley" Matlock, head of an automobile sales agency, who was shot and killed by his wife, Helen, in November, 1928, when she trapped him in a West End apartment where he had set up a night club entertainer as another "Mrs. Matlock." Mrs. Matlock was tried for murder and acquitted on a plea of self-defense.

$1,000,000 FOR ST. LOUIS U. FROM FIRMIN DESLOGE ESTATE

Probate Court Authorizes Executors to Make Funds Available According to Will.

A petition of executors of the estate of Firmin Desloge for authority to sell sufficient assets to obtain $1,000,000 to give to St. Louis University was granted yesterday by Probate Judge Holtcamp. The money is to be used to establish a hospital to be known as the Firmin Desloge Hospital, the endowment of which was recently announced by the executors, who are Mr. Desloge's sons, Firmin V. and Joseph Desloge, and the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

In his will Mr. Desloge authorized the executors to make such charitable contributions as they saw fit, stating that his sons knew his desire with reference to such matters, and the gift of the money for the hospital is in accordance with this provision.

Mr. Desloge, who made a fortune estimated at $10,000,000 in southeastern Missouri lead mining, died Dec. 18. The hospital, it has been announced, will be erected on property owned by St. Louis University at the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and Rutger street, opposite its medical school at Grand and Caroline street.

$15,000,000 Soviet Trade Pact.

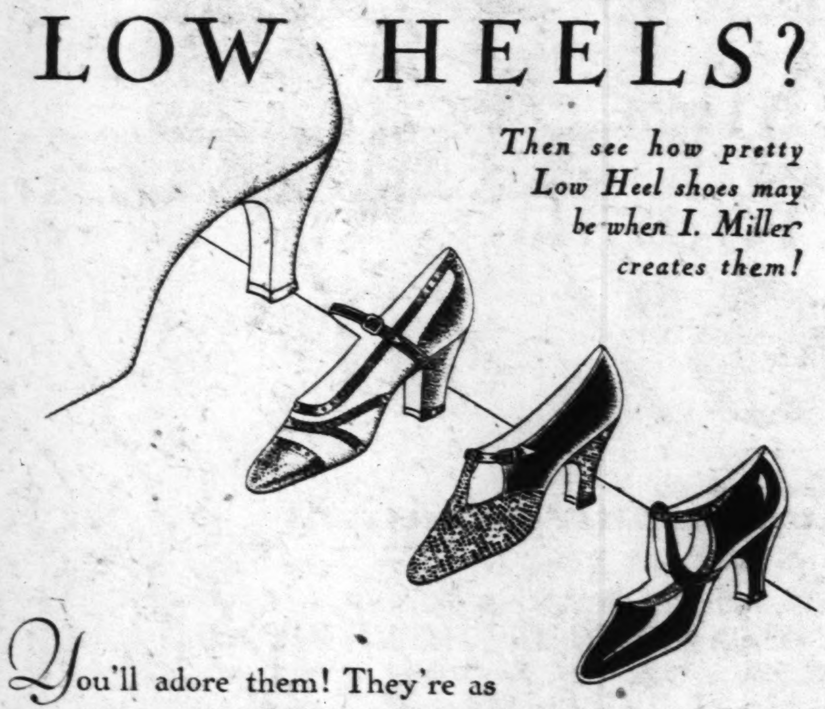
MOSCOW, April 19.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency.)—Saul G. Bron, former head of the Soviet trade organization in the United States, said today that the Soviet Government and the Imperial Chemical Trust of Great Britain had signed a $15,000,000 agreement on a two-year credit basis. Bron, who recently was appointed Soviet trade representative, reached Moscow today.

I. MILLER beautiful shoes

Does your foot demand...

LOW HEELS?

Then see how pretty Low Heel shoes may be when I. Miller creates them!



You'll adore them! They're as beautiful and as flattering as any high heel shoe can possibly be. Tricky little step-ins ... suave operas ... individual strap-effects ... and trim, swanky oxfords, of course! Low heels? Why, I. Miller low heel creations are so graceful—so much in demand—that nearly half of all the shoes I. Miller shows do have low heels ... And if you see them—inspect them—compare them, you'll never again regret that your foot prefers a low heel shoe!

SAUNTA: in beige buck with tan calf. White buck with either black or brown calf 16.50

DEMURA: in black, blue, green or white kidskin with pipings in contrast. Black moire with crepe. Black and white Java lizard with black kid 16.50 and 18.50

SUNRISE SERVICES OUTDOORS HERALD EASTER MORNING

Ceremonies at Forest and Tower Grove Parks—Special Music at All Churches in City.

Religious observance of Easter Sunday, beginning before dawn today, will continue with special services in all churches of the Christian faith, Catholic and Protestant. Elaborate musical programs have been prepared by nearly all congregations for their morning services and for afternoon and evening services, where such services are held.

First in time of beginning will come the first mass at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, the Monks' Church, adjoining the Franciscan monastery at Meramec street and Compton avenue. The mass, with full musical setting, will begin at 4:45 a. m. Some other Catholic parishes will have first masses as early as 5:00.

The sunrise service in Forest Park, planned to be held for the fourth time, is set for 5:15 a. m., two minutes before the actual sunrise. The Rev. Dr. Edward S. Travers of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, who started the service in 1927, will be in charge, assisted by the Rev. Dr. J. T. Stocking of Pilgrim Congregational Church, and the Rev. Dr. A. H. Armstrong of the Church Federation, who will preach the sermon. R. W. Arnoldy will conduct the singing, which will have an instrumental accompaniment. The place for the service is near the Lindell boulevard entrance and Laclede car line pavilion.

In Tower Grove Park.

In Tower Grove Park, at Grand boulevard and Magnolia avenue, the St. Louis Christian Endeavor Union will begin its service at 6. Reveille will be sounded by a bugler from Jefferson Barracks. The Rev. Dr. William Crowe of Westminster Presbyterian Church will preach; prayer will be led by the Rev. R. C. George, industrial secretary of the Church Federation, and Chaplain Edward L. Trett of Jefferson Barracks will read the Scripture. Homer G. Allen, president of the Christian Endeavor Union, will lead the singing, to the accompaniment of trumpets. In event of rain the service will be held in Alhambra Grotto.

Timothy Lutheran Church, Pyler and Ivanhoe avenues, will hold a service at 6 on the church lawn, with the Rev. Paul List delivering the sermon.

At Manchester, St. Louis County, 10 miles beyond the city limits on Manchester road, St. John's Evangelical Church of that community will conduct a hilltop sunrise service beginning at 5:30.

An indoor service, beginning at 5 a. m., will be held by the First Baptist (Negro) Church, 3100 Bell avenue.

An East St. Louis union service of the Protestant Young People's Council will be held in First Methodist Church, Thirteenth street and Summit avenue, beginning at 6 a. m.

Koch Hospital patients will attend a service to be held, in case of favorable weather, on the terrace outside the hospital at 7:15 a. m. Young people of St. John's Lutheran Church will sing.

At the 11 a. m. mass at St. Louis Cathedral, Archbishop Glennon will be celebrant.

At Christ Church Cathedral, Dean William Scarlett, Bishop coadjutor-elect, will preach at the 11 o'clock service. Bishop Johnson of the Episcopal diocese will preach tonight at the Church of the Redeemer, Washington boulevard and Euclid avenue.

The Rev. Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, preacher at the Church Federation's noonday services of the last few days, will preach this morning and tonight at Delmar Baptist Church, Washington avenue and Skinker boulevard.

An Easter observance which draws a large gathering yearly is the public baptism of Negro converts of Pleasant Green Baptist Church, in the Mississippi at the foot of Pine street. A class of 50 is to be immersed in the service beginning at 10 a. m., this being the twenty-fifth such observance. The Rev. J. K. Parker is in charge.

$240,000 IMPOST ON DODGE JEWELS SETS RECORD FINE

U. S. District Attorney to Decide Tuesday Whether to Prosecute Woman Importer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—United States District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle today announced that he would confer Tuesday with customs officials regarding a possible investigation and prosecution of Mrs. Robert L. Dodge, who recently brought into this port undeclared jewelry purchased for 1,000,000 francs ($90,000) and 52 gowns undervalued for customs purposes.

A customs impost of $240,000 was fixed yesterday upon Mrs. Dodge, who is president of the Harriet Hubbard Ayer Co. It is the largest fine ever levied by the customs service for the release of undeclared dutiable goods.

Mrs. Dodge and her husband, the latter also an officer of the cosmetic manufacturing concern, arrived on the Ile de France last Tuesday.

Customs officials said they displayed a bill of about $17,000 for the articles, which were in 17 trunks. This was alleged to represent only about half the amount which Mrs. Dodge was charged for the clothing.

PAYROLL ROBBERS GET $2000 FROM BARGE LINE MEN

George Cutterer, Agent, and Edward Fogarty, Cashier, Held Up at East End of Eads Bridge,

A $2000 payroll of the Mississippi Warrior Service was stolen yesterday on the east approach to Eads Bridge by three armed men, who held up two company officers in view of a number of persons passing over the bridge.

The money was being taken to East St. Louis by George Cutterer, local agent for the company, and Edward Fogarty, cashier, to pay off laborers at a dock. Fogarty placed a satchel containing 225 pay envelopes in the rear of Cutterer's machine shortly after noon, and the two men started from their office at the foot of North Market street, driving over Eads Bridge.

As they descended the incline of the east approach they noticed three well-dressed young men leaning against the railing chatting. Cutterer slowed down preparatory to turning onto the levee, and two of the men drew revolvers and ordered him to halt.

While one robber opened the rear door of the car and seized the satchel his companions forced Cutterer and Fogarty to alight and walk beneath the bridge. The robbers walked to a new Ford sedan bearing Illinois license plates, which was parked on the levee, and drove east before witnesses realized that a holdup had taken place. Cutterer and Fogarty returned to their car and reported the robbery to police.

It is the weekly custom of the barge company officers to take money from the St. Louis office to the East Side to pay off Negro laborers. The loss is insured.

$148 Payroll Taken From Woman Bookkeeper on Delmar.

A $148 payroll was taken from a bookkeeper for the Singer Sewing Machine Co. on Delmar boulevard, near the company's office at 5611 Delmar, yesterday afternoon.

Miss Mary Rye, bookkeeper, 5568 Pershing avenue, was returning from a bank with the money in her purse. A man snatched the purse and ran.

JAPAN APPROVES DRAFT OF NAVAL AGREEMENT

fixed for 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

"My holiday has been cut short," the Prime Minister said. He spent the afternoon immersed in work connected with the conference.

U. S. Plans Work on Seven Additional 8-Inch Gun Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Administration plans under the London naval agreements call for resumed or continued work during the next three years on seven additional eight-inch gun cruisers.

Three additional ships of that class, bringing the American big cruiser fleet up to a total of 18 ships, will not be laid down until 1933, 1934 and 1935, respectively.

This outline of administration policy and the interpretation given to the London stipulations has been announced authoritatively. It represents the laying down of two additional keels, those of the C. L. 37 and C. L. 38, at an early date, as well as continued work on five other big cruisers.

These five ships are to be built at the following yards: C. L. 32 at New York Navy Yard, rated as only 1.6 per cent complete on March 1; C. L. 33 by the Bethlehem Steel Co. at Fore River, Mass., 7.2 per cent complete March 1; C. L. 34 at Bremerton, (Wash.) Navy Yard, no work reported March 1; C. L. 35, new shipbuilding company at Camden, N. J., 4.6 per cent complete March 1; C. L. 36, at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, no work reported March 1.

The other five big cruisers destined to be built under the London agreement, C. L. 37 to 41, inclusive, have never been assigned to yards. President Hoover's executive order suspended work on the C. L. 34, 36 and 37 when the first proposals for the London conference were made. It is assumed work on these will be resumed immediately.

Tokio Leaves Treaty Action to Premier and Foreign Minister.

TOKIO, April 20.—(Sunday)—The Japanese Government's approval of the London naval conference treaty is considered assured, since the Cabinet has left the matter in the hands of Premier Hamaguchi and Foreign Minister Shidehara, who are known to favor it.

Final instructions to the London delegates of Japan have not been sent, however. Not all parts of the treaty had been received late last night.

Foreign Minister Shidehara and Vice Minister of the Navy, Admiral Keiichi Yamanashi, proceeded to the official residence of the Premier at 10:30 a. m. to confer with Hamaguchi regarding Japan's signature to the London treaty.

It is understood that formal authorization for signing the treaty probably will be cabled to former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki, head of the Japanese delegation at London, after the conference of the administration leaders.

GEORGIA G. O. P. SPLIT IN TWO FACTIONS AT CONVENTION

Presiding Officers Representing Each Conduct Meetings at Same Time in Same Hall.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 19.—Amid tumult and shouting the Republican State convention here today split into two factions and chose two sets of officers.

The presiding officers of each faction conducted business from the same platform, while pandemonium reigned among the delegates on the floor. Shouts and boos greeted speakers who attempted to make themselves heard above the din.

The strains of "I Shall Not Be Moved" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" could be heard in the noise of the convention hall. The rumpus started immediately after a temporary roll call and when preparations were being made for the election of a temporary chairman.

After impromptu speeches from delegates on both sides apparently the best of feeling prevailed and both factions adjourned sine die.

Lincoln University's New Head.

By the Associated Press.

HARROGATE, Tenn., April 19.—Lincoln Memorial University, where a student strike has been under way for 11 days, will have Dr. H. Robinson Shipherd of New York City as its new president. The appointment was announced today by Judge J. H. S. Morison, acting president, whom Shipherd will succeed. Dr. Shipherd is 45 years old and a graduate of Harvard. His election as head of Lincoln Memorial University is expected to bring the student strike to an end.

Which Child Is Yours?

Are you proud of a robust youngster or worried by a fine boy's lack of body? The secret is balance of food, not merely plenty of food.

Read this statement from government facts—"5,000,000 U. S. school children who get plenty of food are still under-sized because the food they get is not properly balanced."

To help you build a robust youngster, Thompson's have prepared a Life Line Chart that shows you how your child should grow and gain weight from year to year. You can keep track of height and weight right on the chart.

Growing boys and girls thrive on Thompson's "Double Malted" Chocolate Malted Milk. From cradle days on children need Thompson's in their daily diet because Thompson's provides balanced Life Line nourishment. It builds lasting energy and sturdy bodies. Actually adds 76% to the food value of plain milk.

Oil Man's Own Story: Barber Arrives at Camp To Shave Bandit Chief

J. E. Bristow, Kidnaped American, Keeps His Beard So He Can Show Picture of It to Home Folks.

This is the eighth installment of the story of J. E. Bristow, San Angelo, Tex., who was held 30 days by Mexican outlaws. The story was told by Bristow to Merle Blakely of the Oklahoma City Times. Blakely accompanied Bristow's son, Obie Bristow, and another American, when they went into Mexico to pay the ransom.

SAN ANGELO, Tex., April 19.—After two days on the side of Ceboruco volcano I began to feel better. The food was more plentiful and we were staying in one place instead of making forced marches up and down mountainsides. Furthermore, I had been told that ransom negotiations were under way, and that the end of my long captivity was near.

That evening Delgado (the bandit leader) came to me. He said a messenger had established contact with him and had said that friends of mine had arrived at Tepic in airplanes and were with the American Consul.

Then we feasted. My son, Obie, had sent provisions to us by the messenger. We had several cartons of cigarettes, half a dozen boxes of sardines, sugar and American coffee. That was a real spread. We had been living on the coarsest kind of food—mushy, half-baked bread and beans. Once, for five days, we had nothing but bread and water.

That night I was happy. For the first time during the long captivity tears came to my eyes. The outlaws, for the first time, sympathized with me. After the feast I lay down and got a good night's sleep.

Wears First Hat in Month.

The next day one of the men disappeared from the camp. We didn't know what had happened to him. It was possible he had fallen into the hands of the Federal soldiers, who were on all sides of us.

After a few hours he came back safe. He came over and tossed me a hat. It was the first time I had had a hat in almost a month. Mine was lost on the first night of captivity. After a month under a blazing sun the top of my head was the color of a beet. This small gift was gratefully received. He said that my son had sent the hat from Ahuacatlan.

Again they told me it would be only a few days before they released me. I couldn't understand the delay, and don't to this hour.

During the day a Christero barber came into camp with all his tools. In addition to his razor he was armed with an automatic pistol and a rifle, and two belts of cartridges. He was the strangest-looking barber I ever expect to see.

Chief Delgado got the first attention, and he needed it. I had watched him closely and I am positive he hadn't washed his face or hands in four weeks. The barber washed him and shaved him. The barber's chair was a volcanic rock.

Washed Only Five Times.

I hadn't been a great deal cleaner than Delgado although I had tried my best. Every time we came to water I washed up, provided the bandits would stop long enough. I think, however, that I only washed five times during the captivity.

The barber offered to shave me and cut my hair but I told him no. My excuse was that I wanted my beard as a protection against mosquitoes, but the truth is I wanted to save it for a picture—to show my friends back in the states what an odd-looking hombre I was when the barbarians held me prisoner.

The mosquito excuse was satisfactory, however. There are mosquitoes in "them thar" mountains that could sink ships. My neck and hands were thick with bites.

I did let the barber snip off some of the hair on the back of my neck. It was tangled and knotted and the barber's shears were dull. Every time he snipped I felt as if the back of my head were coming off. Finally it was over with. It didn't end too soon.

After the barbering was finished we gathered around in a group, had a god meal, so far as Mexican meals go, played poker and told jokes.

Worried About Ransom.

It was a fairly pleasant evening, but I had begun to worry for fear the barbarians had played on the affections of my family and were going to hold out for the whole 30,000-pesos ($15,000) ransom. I had written a line in the note saying I thought 2500 would be enough.

A few days before, when these bandits were going to cut my throat, I was worrying about it from just th eother angle. I was afraid that I was betting my life against a few thousand pesos.

I didn't know that night that my son, the American and German Consuls and a reporter for the Oklahoma City Times were putting up 3000 pesos and telling the bandits it was all they could possibly raise. They sent word to the bandits that it was all they could possibly gather, and that the bandits would have to accept it or take my head instead. Meanwhile, they had several thousands of pesos more in case of an emergency.

That night I lay down and slept soundly, dreaming of home and my two little grandchildren, one of whom is 3 years old and the other five.

The next day turned out to be one of the most eventful of the time I spent with the outlaws.

EDISON ANNOUNCES ANOTHER NATIONAL TEST FOR BOYS

Examination to Be Held July 29; One From Each State to Be Eligible.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Again this year 48 boys, one from each state, will compete for the Thomas A. Edison technical scholarship, according to announcement in West Orange, N. J., today. On July 29 the boys, one to be selected by the Governor of each state, will begin a two-day competition at the Edison laboratories. Edison said in his announcement:

"I will give these boys an examination to determine the national winner. I will pay all his expenses for four years at any recognized technical school in the United States. I wish all boys who want to enter this contest would submit their applications at once to the State Boards of Education through their school principal."

The winner last year was Wilbur Huston, who chose the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Preacher, 70, Accused of Assault.

MATTOON, Ill., April 19.—The Rev. W. E. Dudley, 70 years old, of Charleston, Ill., was taken to Pittsfield, Pike County, today by a sheriff and deputy, charged with criminal assault alleged to have been made on the 16-year-old daughter of Ed Crader, Pittsfield. The assault is alleged to have been committed last summer at Pittsfield while Dudley, conducting a revival there, was the guest of the Crader family.

"Drunkenness Is a Disease and I Can Cure It"
—Leslie E. Keeley, M. D., LL. D.

THE EDITOR of a powerful Chicago Newspaper before his death, challenged this statement of Dr. Keeley that "Drunkenness is a disease and I can cure it." He defied Dr. Keeley to cure the men whom he would send to the Institute. The results were so convincing that, through his great newspaper, he was personally responsible for thousands of men and women taking The Keeley Treatment for Liquor.

New Booklet Explains Facts That Every Person Should Know

It is one of the most authoritative booklets ever written on the disease of inebriety and its cure. It is based on fifty years' experience, embracing the treatment of more than 400,000 patients, including men and women from all walks of life. The booklet is free. Simply write and ask for it.

FLYING DUCHESS OF BEDFORD ARRIVES AT CAPE TOWN

First Half of Round Trip From London Completed With Little Trouble.

By the Associated Press.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, April 19.—The Duchess of Bedford, 64-year-old aviatrix, landed here today, completing the first half of her projected 18,500 miles round trip flight between England and Capetown.

When she left England April 10, the Duchess said she hoped to make the complete trip in 19 days. She is accompanied by two men, the pilot, Capt. Barnard, and a co-pilot, Robert Little.

The trip thus far has been made with little trouble except for a forced landing near Juba Tuesday, and the damage resulting from that was slight. The plane, named The Spider, is owned by the Duchess and she previously had flown it to India and back to England.

The party made the last leg from Bulawayo to Capetown in 12 hours.

A CROSS-SECTION VIEW OF THE NEW ROLLER WATER REMOVER

Maytag Aluminum Washer

AMAZING efficiency and new convenience characterize the NEW roller water remover of the NEW Maytag, developed at a cost of more than $290,000. The enclosed, positive-action, automatic drain shunts the water directly into the tub from which the clothes are wrung, without spilling or splashing, and without attention from the operator.

The NEW roller water remover gives the utmost thoroughness in pressure cleansing. The soft top roll hugs the lower hard roll, removing all the water evenly from every part of the clothes ... yet the gentle action presses no wrinkles into the clothes. Buttons, snaps and ornaments go through safely.

PHONE for a Trial Washing with the NEW Maytag ... the first washer to offer a one-piece, cast-aluminum tub and a NEW quiet, lifetime, oil-packed drive. If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it. Divided payments you'll never miss.

FIGHT IN PROGRESS FOR CONTROL OF THE COTTON BELT

Walter E. Meyer, New York Director, Trying to Oust Committee Headed by Daniel Upthegrove.

A contest for control of the St. St. Louis Southwestern, or Cotton Belt, Railroad Company, is in progress between the present executive committee of the road and an opposition headed by Walter E. Meyer of New York, a member of the present board of dicectors. The election of directors is to take place April 30, and Meyer is endeavoring to obtain proxies of stockholders.

T. A. Hamilton, former vice president of the Frisco, and former president of the International & Great Northern, is closely associated with Meyer. If Meyer should obtain control of the Cotton Belt, it is understood that Hamilton would be made president of the company, succeeding its present head, Daniel Upthegrove.

In combatting Meyer's attempt to gain control of the Cotton Belt, the executive committee has issued a circular to stockholders asking for their proxies and denying charges made by Meyer, and raising questions as to the purposes of Meyer and Hamilton.

Aid to Frisco Charged.

Meyer has charged that the Cotton Belt has been dominated by the Kansas City Southern, and that traffic has been diverted from the Cotton Belt to the K. C. S. This charge is denied in the circular, and comparative tonnage tables of the two roads are given, to show that the Cotton Belt has not suffered from any diversion.

The executive committee reviews actions of Meyer, in some of which it declares that Hamilton took part, in cases affecting the Cotton Belt before the Interstate Commerce Commission. The committee draws the conclusion that the course taken by Meyer and Hamilton has not been in the interest of the Cotton Belt, and has been of benefit to its competitor line, the Frisco.

"In 1925," the circular says, "the Frisco acquired short lines in the St. Francis Basin, which diverted to the Frisco traffic having a value to the St. Louis Southwestern of $300,000 a year. In order to protect its position in the St. Francis Basin, in which it was a pioneer; to prevent further diversions of traffic and to secure a short and economical route between Memphis and St. Louis, the Cotton Belt filed an application to acquire a cut-off running south from Malden by acquisition of several short lines which were to be connected by small pieces of construction.

Lost Year's Revenue.

"Estimates of the revenue which would be received as a result of this cut-off indicated that it would amount to $1,475,000 additional per year. The first of these applications was heard in 1928.

"The Frisco, Meyer and Hamilton were the only protestants against the application. As a result of their activities, the proceedings before the commission were delayed, and at least one full year's revenue was lost to our company and gained by the Frisco. The second applications were filed in August, 1929, and since they were merely following out the principles which had already been approved by the commission, we anticipated no further objection. Again we find that the same policy of delay was pursued and that Meyer, Hamilton and the Frisco had, by their actions with respect to these applications, so delayed the progress that another year's traffic may be lost."

The committee's circular is signed by William M. Greve, chairman; Frank Bailey, Frank M. Gould, C. B. Stuart and President Upthegrove.

TWO MEN HELD IN MURDER OF WOMAN GOVERNMENT CLERK

Traveling Salesmen Offer Alibis in Killing of Mary Baker at Arlington, Va.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 19. — A week of investigation into the murder of Mary Baker, young government clerk, ended tonight with two traveling salesmen lodged as suspects in the Arlington County jail. Both offered alibis, which police so far apparently have not shaken.

Julian Gallegher was taken to the jail today from Richmond, Va. The other, Mervison Sisson, was arrested last night on a warrant charging him with assaulting and murdering "with malice aforethought" the minister's daughter. He was questioned until nearly daylight today. Both men say they were in Warsaw, Va., their home town, on the night of the murder. It is more than 100 miles from Washington.

Mary Baker's body was found last Saturday, stuffed in a culvert near the Arlington National Cemetery, half a mile away from her abandoned automobile.

MGR. J. H. SCHLARMAN NEW BISHOP OF PEORIA

Belleville Priest Chosen to Succeed the Late Rt. Rev. Edmund M. Dunne.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, April 19.—Pope Pius today appointed Mgr. Joseph H. Schlarman of Belleville, Ill., to be Bishop of Peoria, succeeding the late Bishop Edmund M. Dunne, who died last October. The new appointee will be the third Bishop of the Peoria diocese, which was created in 1877.

A native of Illinois, Mgr. Schlarman has been pastor of the Belleville Cathedral and chancellor of the Belleville diocese since 1909. He was elevated to the rank of monsignor by the Pope in 1921. He is 51 years old.

Occupied with Easter preparations yesterday, Mgr. Schlarman said he was too busy to comment on his appointment. Bishop Henry Althoff of the Belleville diocese said the date of consecration would be fixed by the new Bishop himself and that Mgr. Schlarman's successor would be appointed some time later.

Mgr. Schlarman was born on a farm in Breese Township, Clinton County, Feb. 23, 1879, and received his early education in the grade school at Germantown. Later he was graduated from Quincy College and went to the University of Innsbruck, in Austria, to study theology. He was ordained in the cathedral of Brizen, Tyrol, in 1904 and appointed by the late Bishop Janssen of Belleville for a post-graduate course in Gregorian University, in Rome, where he received the degrees of doctor of philosophy and doctor of canon law.

He remained in Rome for another year, engaged upon detail work of the Chancery Office, and returned to the United States in 1907, when he was appointed assistant pastor of the Belleville Cathedral, of which the late Father Hagen was then pastor. His appointment as pastor and chancellor followed two years later.

Besides fulfilling the duties of pastor and rebuilding the cathedral after its destruction by fire in the winter of 1912, Mgr. Schlarman found time to devote to extensive historical research which has been his hobby for many years. From the archives of Paris and Quebec he brought to light a great amount of data concerning the activities of the early French missionaries and explorers in America, and in 1927 embodied much of this in an elaborate pageant entitled "The Pageant Romance of Fort Chartres."

Recently Mgr. Schlarman published a book, "From Quebec to New Orleans," a voluminous work dealing with the early French phase of American history and recounting the heroic exploits of George Rogers Clark in the lower Illinois country.

Luers, now Commissioner of Finance, who will hold office until the regular election in November, 1931.

CONTROLS O K IN PLANE THAT HIT POWER WIRE

U. S. Inspector Declines to Make Full Statement in Crash That Killed Four.

By the Associated Press.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 19.—George Bream, aeronautical inspector for the Department of Commerce, today completed an investigation into last night's crash of a Colonial Airways transport plane in which four persons were killed when it struck a high tension wire.

He declined to make his findings public before reporting to the department, but said that controls and motor of the ship appeared to have been in perfect order.

The plane carried Count Heri de la Vaulx of Paris, president of the Federation Aeronautical Internationale; Mrs. Mary E. Williams, Providence, R. I.; Arthur V. Conklin, Huntington, N. Y., and John Salway, Albany, N. Y., the pilot. All met instant death when the plane burst into flames while groping through heavy fog for Newark airport at the end of a trip from Montreal.

Count de la Vaulx was dressed in dinner clothes in preparation for a dinner to be given him at a New York Hotel. Mrs. Williams wore an evening gown.

The Count's body was claimed by D. O. Baudouy, French Consul in New York. He said it would be sent to Paris for burial.

Company Says Pilot Was Justified in Flying, Despite Fog.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Officers of Colonial Airways said today that John Salway, pilot of the plane which crashed into a high tension wire yesterday at Jersey City, N. J., killing four persons, was justified in flying despite the heavy fog.

They asserted that Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aviation, issued a bulletin on Jan. 27 stating that aircraft carrying passengers for hire were required to maintain a minimum ceiling of only 500 feet. The ceiling yesterday was 900 feet.

Shcolarship Benefit.

The St. Louis Business and Professional Women's Club will sponsor a benefit performance of "Let Us Be Gay," by the Casey players, at the Orpheum, the night of April 28, for its scholarship fund. The club provides high school scholarships for girl graduates of the eighth grade.

ROCKET AUTO MAKES 50 MILES AN HOUR

German Machine Has Motor About Size of "Hip Pocket Flask."

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 19.—The new rocket motor of Dr. Paul Heylandt, German research scientist, developed a speed of 50 miles an hour in a test at the Tempelhof Airfield today. The car covered a distance of three kilometers during the test.

Speeding around the course in the dusk, the car looked like a blazing comet. The roar of the motor could be heard a mile away. The motor, which really should be called a "hip-pocket motor" because it is only a little larger than a hip flask and is placed in the hip of the car, is said by Dr. Heylandt to develop from 40 to 50 horsepower. This amounts to between six and seven horsepower a pound, as against one-half horsepower a pound for the best modern automobile engines, and one horsepower a pound in highly developed airplane engines.

The fuel consumption of the rocket motor, however, is still excessive.

The car driven tonight by Valier suggests the idea of a combination refrigerator and a blast furnace. The pipes feeding the liquid oxygen into the motor were coated with frost, but the flaming blast emitted from the motor when the spray from the gasoline tank touched the oxygen spray was anything but frosty. The fact is that Heylandt gets the recoil in the motor by making extremes of heat and cold meet at the combustion point.

Valier wants to build a car capable of rivaling the racing automobile of H. O. D. Segrave of England, who set a world's speed record of 231 miles an hour at Daytona Beach, Fla., in 1929.

The outstanding difference between Valier's rocket car and previous examples of the type is that the driver controls the stream of explosions in the Heylandt car and can slow down at will, stop and start again by the manipulation of a valve. Other types, once started, were forced to continue till the fuel was burned out.

MOTHER SEEKS POSSESSION OF CHILD TAKEN BY HUSBAND

Judge Rosskopf Denounces Charles Feiner Whose Whereabouts Is Still Unknown.

Further hearing on a writ of habeas corpus seeking to procure possession of Charles Edmund Feiner, the eight-months-old son of Charles Feiner Jr. and Ethel Feiner, formerly of 6910 Waldemar avenue, was continued to May 2 by Circuit Judge Rosskopf yesterday in the Court of Domestic Relations.

The Feiners, who were married April 28, 1928, separated March 31, last, when Feiner left his home, taking the baby with him. At the time of departure, the wife alleges, Feiner gave no intimation of his intention to stay away permanently, and she has since been endeavoring by court action to regain possesion of the child. An original writ of habeas corpus was directed to the grandparents of the baby, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feiner Sr. of 2110A McCausland avenue.

They appeared in court and said that, while the child had been harbored in their home, they were not in reality its custodians, as the baby was in charge of the father, who had employed a nurse, Miss May Brenan, 5004A Durant avenue, to care for it.

Judge Rosskopf yesterday denounced Feiner for withholding the child from his mother. During his remarks he characterized the conduct of Feiner as that of a cave man and expressed the hope that those who could would assist the court in finding the baby's whereabouts. The elder Feiners told Judge Rosskopf they last saw their son a week ago.

JOB THREATENED BECAUSE HE DID NOT SERVE IN WAR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., April 19.—Dr. B. G. Broghammer came here from St. Louis two years ago an unknown young physician and today he is city physician, but whether he will be allowed to retain the position is a question.

Young physicians who served in the World War have complained to members of the city council that the Iowa law was violated in the appointment of Broghammer. The charged that he did not serve in the war, and the Iowa law specifically provides that all appointive officers in city, county or State shall be given to former service men if they can qualify.

There were four other candidates for the office, all of whom served overseas. Members of the council admitted today that they knew little about Broghammer, but voted for his confirmation because it was customary to permit the mayor as chairman of the Board of Health to dictate the appointment of the city physician.

Broghammer is a graduate of the medical school of St. Louis University and received his internship in that city.

Postal Installs Type Machines.

Typing telegraph machines, in use for some time in the transmission of messages, are being put into use by the Postal Telegraph Co. on all its lines, it was announced yesterday. The new machines, which are operated as easily as a typewriter, make it possible for an operator to send messages at the rate of 50 or more an hour.

HOOVER'S HAND SEEN IN CALL TO JUDGE PARKER

If Nominee for Supreme Bench Pleads Cause Successfully, Well; If Not, Failure Is His Own.

HE WIRES HE WILL APPEAR IF INVITED

Committee Will Be Asked Monday to Summon Him —Vote on Confirmation May Be Close.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—An interesting exhibition of shadow-boxing occurred today over the question of whether Judge John J. Parker shall appear before the Senate Judiciary Committee to plead his own case for confirmation as Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. President Hoover nominated Parker for the post more than three weeks ago.

With Parker rejecting a broad hint that he ask for permission to be heard by the committee and with committee members objecting to a suggestion that they invite him to appear, it became obvious that the real pressure to have him appear came from a third source, the White House. Equally obvious was the reason. If Parker should appear and succeed in "selling" himself to the Senate, the fight would be won. On the other hand, if his appearance should result in his rejection, he would have only himself ti blame. Either outcome would solve the problem from the administration's standpoint.

A Tangle of Telegrams.

Senator Overman (Dem.), North Carolina, who favors confirmation today, disclosed that he had sent the following telegram to the nominee: "It is suggested to me by Senator Watson that the President and the Attorney-General think that you ought to be called before the committee. Is it agreeable to you to come? If so, I will make a motion in the committee Monday to invite you to come. Of course, if it is not agreeable, I will not make the motion. Answer."

If Senator Overman expected that his message would elicit an unequivocal answer, his expectations were ill-founded. Judge Parker replied as follows: "If the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate desires my presence and requests it, I shall, of course, be glad to come."

Decides to Invite Parker.

After reading the reply, Senator Overman scratched his head, read it a second time, and then went off to consult with Senator Watson, the Republican leader. After considerable discussion, it was agreed that Overman should go ahead anyhow and move in the committee next Monday to extend an invitation to Judge Parker to appear.

Chairman Norris and Senator Borah, the most influential two members, let it be known emphatically that they were opposed to any such action. Aside from the fact that it would be a very unusual proceeding in the case of a nominee to the Supreme Court, they pointed out that Judge Parker's record was already before the committee, and inquired what the committee could ask him if he appeared.

44 for, 45 Against, 7 Unrecorded.

Opposition to his confirmation reached a new high mark yesterday, and an informal canvass of the Senate by newspaper correspondents showed 44 Senators disposed to vote for confirmation, 45 disposed to vote against it, and seven non-committal or absent. Similar canvasses earlier in the week had indicated a majority of five to ten for confirmation, and it is realized that the latest figures are subject to change momentarily.

A remarkable amount of lobbying and wire-pulling is practiced on both sides. Wavering Senators are subjected to intense pressure from administration quarters, while labor and Negro organizations are working strenuously to have the nominee rejected.

A representative of a labor organization declared today that the contest was "another Newberry case." Asserting that Parker's opinion upholding "yellow dog" contracts in the Red Jacket coal case had "enslaved 70,000 coal miners," he added. "If Parker is confirmed we will go to bat against all the Senators who vote for him, and we will beat them, no matter how long it takes. This fight is vital to the existence of organized labor in the United States."

Negro Opposition Effective.

However, as has been told, the most effective opposition is coming from Negro organizations. Thus far it has resulted in lining up at least a dozen regular Republican Senators against the nomination. The administration is endeavoring to offset these losses by appealing to Southern Democratic Senators to support the nominee on the basis of his anti-Negro record. It appears now that the result will depend on the attitude of the Southern Democrats.

Aside from the fact that it would be a very unusual proceeding in the case of a nominee to the Supreme Court, they pointed out that Judge Parker's record was already before the committee, and inquired what the committee could ask him if he appeared.

44 for, 45 Against, 7 Unrecorded.

Opposition to his confirmation reached a new high mark yesterday, and an informal canvass of the Senate by newspaper correspondents showed 44 Senators disposed to vote for confirmation, 45 disposed to vote against it, and seven non-committal or absent. Similar canvasses earlier in the week had indicated a majority of five to ten for confirmation, and it is realized that the latest figures are subject to change momentarily.

A remarkable amount of lobbying and wire-pulling is practiced on both sides. Wavering Senators are subjected to intense pressure from administration quarters, while labor and Negro organizations are working strenuously to have the nominee rejected.

A representative of a labor organization declared today that the contest was "another Newberry case." Asserting that Parker's opinion upholding "yellow dog" contracts in the Red Jacket coal case had "enslaved 70,000 coal miners," he added. "If Parker is confirmed we will go to bat against all the Senators who vote for him, and we will beat them, no matter how long it takes. This fight is vital to the existence of organized labor in the United States."

Negro Opposition Effective.

However, as has been told, the most effective opposition is coming from Negro organizations. Thus far it has resulted in lining up at least a dozen regular Republican Senators against the nomination. The administration is endeavoring to offset these losses by appealing to Southern Democratic Senators to support the nominee on the basis of his anti-Negro record. It appears now that the result will depend on the attitude of the Southern Democrats.

NEARLY LOSES LIFE IN TAKING CENSUS OF DEATH VALLEY

Enumerator Collapses in Desert but Is Rescued — 198 Live in That Area.

By the Associated Press.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., April 19.—Death Valley is doing its best to live up to its name in the 1930 census books.

A tale reminiscent of the stories which years ago gave the sun-blazed desert its forbidding name, found its way here today in the report of a census enumerator, William J. Little.

The enumerator's count showed that 198 persons live in the valley, which covers approximately 5000 square miles.

Little almost lost his life in making the count. Two weeks ago he left here on a 1000-mile journey over the valley. When 25 miles from Darwin, in the Panamint Mountains, his car broke down. He attempted to walk back to Darwin. Ten miles from the town he collapsed from thirst and exhaustion. After he had given up hope of rescue, he was found by a prospector and taken in an automobile to Darwin.

$60,000 FOR STUDY AND RESEARCH BY 46 SCHOLARS

Rockefeller Foundation Finances Awards Announced by Council of Learned Societies.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 19.—Awards aggregating $60,000 in value to 46 scholars for study in America as well as abroad were announced today by the committee on fellowships and grants of the American Council of Learned Societies. Prof. Robert K. Root of Princeton University is chairman of the committee. Twelve of the awards are fellowships in the humanities with a value of $40,000, and the remaining 34 are grants in aid of research. Both groups are financed by the Rockefeller foundation.

Among the recipients of the fellowships are Herrlee Glassner Creel, assistant professor of psychology, Lombard College; Jesse Hamilton Jackson, professor of English at the College of William and Mary; Irving A. Leonard, instructor in Spanish, University of California; Margaret Georgiana Melvin, associate professor of philisophy, Mills College; Ernest Lyman Sabine, professor of English literature, Ball State Teachers' College, Muncie, Ind., and Walter Wadepuhl, assistant professor of German, West Virginia University.

Those to receive grants in aid of research include William F. Albright and Davis S. Blondheim, Johns Hopkins; Frederick M. Carey, University of California; Edwin P. Dargan, University of Chicago; Roy Joseph Deferrari, Catholic University of America; Arthur W. Hummel, Library of Congress; Hayward Keniston, University of Chicago; George Lacombe, Catholic University of America; Franklyn B. Snyder, Northwestern University; Stith Thompson, Indiana University, and James F. Willard, University of Colorado.

TUBERCULOSIS DAY BASEBALL GAME IS SET FOR JUNE 24

Cardinals Will Play the Boston Braves, With Other Activities Preceding Contest.

The annual Tuberculosis day baseball game will be played the afternoon of Tuesday June 24, at Sportsman's Park, with the Cardinals meeting the Boston Braves as the feature. The game will be played at 4 o'clock to permit a three-hour program of athletic contests, field exhibitions and band music to precede it.

It is the thirteenth time in the last 15 years since the charity fete was inaugurated that the Cardinals have played on Tuberculosis day, and the fourth time on which they have met the Boston team. Proceeds of the game are used to finance public health activities of the Tuberculosis and Health Society.

Sale of souvenir programs, proceeds of the game and voluntary contributions on the day, last year raised a total of more than $25,000, which was expended on the Night and Day Rest Camp for young women, the Residential Open Air School for little girls, meals for undernourished children at open-air day schools, and other enterprises of the society.

Exercises of the day are usually participated in by religious, fraternal and civic organizations. Plans as yet incomplete are being supervised by John C. Tobin, president of the society, and the Executive Committee.

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., April 19.—Senator Georges Casimer Dessaulles, 102 years old, died today from shock resulting from the loss of his home by fire Thursday.

The Senator collapsed during the excitement and physicians said the strain was too much for his years.

He had been in good health.

U. S. Senator's Well "Blows In."

By the Associated Press.

SHAWNEE, Ok., April 19.—An oil gusher was brought in today by United States Senator W. B. Pine of Oklahoma. The Senator's No. 1 Charty well in the Konawa pool blew in from a depth of 2874 feet with initial production estimated at 24,000 barrels a day. Oil men pronounced the well the State's largest producer from the Cromwell sand. Senator Pine is an independent oil operator.

OBERMEYER DECLINES TO AID AGED MOTHER

Withholds Testimony About Forgery of Deed of Trust to Her Home.

Arthur W. Obermeyer, the real estate dealer and Sunday school teacher who confessed forging $150,000 in deeds of trust, and who pleaded guilty to forgery charges, receiving a prison sentence of 12 years, declined to give testimony yesterday that might have helped his aged mother and stepfather to prevent foreclosure of a deed of trust on their home which he forged five years ago.

Obermeyer, whose victims in the forgeries included the pastor of his church and persons active in the congregation, stood on his constitutional rights when questioned about the forgery on his mother's home. He was afraid, he said, that the testimony might tend to incriminate him.

When his forgeries were discovered last fall, Obermeyer admitted to some of the victims that the deed of trust on the home of his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Lorenz, 3857 St. Louis avenue, was one of those he had forged.

He was asked to testify yesterday at a special hearing in the suit of the Mound City Trust Co., holders of a $3300 deed on the St. Louis avenue property, against Lorenz and his wife. Lorenz, a former blacksmith, with his savings of 30 years tied up in the $10,000 home, said he had learned other forgeries by Obermeyer had brought the total amount of forged deeds on the property to $9500.

The Mound City company is suing Obermeyer's parents on the assumption that the deed was signed by them. If Obermeyer had testified he had forged it, he would have helped their defense against the suit.

Obermeyer at first refused to testify because reporters were present at the hearing. After the newspaper men left, he declined on constitutional grounds. He will be taken to the Missouri Penitentiary in a few days to start his term.

An indictment charging forgery, voted against Obermeyer by the St. Louis County grand jury, was nolle prossed yesterday because of his plea of guilty in St. Louis Circuit Court. The deed of trust for $1500 on which the indictment was based was sold to John C. Bachman, 8801 Warren avenue.

REPORTER WINS $1000 PRIZE FOR LOBBY INQUIRY WORK

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Norman W. Baxter, president of the National Press Club, announced today that John A. Kennedy of Universal Service, had won the 1929 Pugsley prize of $1000 for the most noteworthy work of a Washington correspondent during the year.

The award, donated by Chester Pugsley of Peekskill, N. Y., was given Kennedy for his work that was a factor in an investigation by the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee of the presence in the office of Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut of Charles L. Eyanson, employe of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association.

Bingham defended his use of Eyanson in helping him on tariff matters but his employing of the latter was condemned by the Senate.

Baxter's announcement said factors which led to the award to Kennedy included reportorial resourcefulness shown by him in persistently following up the original tip concerning Eyanson's presence at the Capitol. The selection was made by a committee of six newspapermen.

20 YOUNG COMMUNISTS HURT

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 19.—Five youthful communists were seriously injured and 15 were bruised as a truck carrying them to Leipsic for a convention of young communists plunged down an embankment while taking a curve.

Two thousand communists and 59 motor trucks accompanied by a special train carrying 500 more are en route to Leipsic. Today's accident was near Rasdorf.

KIRKWOOD SUSPENDS SEWER DISTRICT WORK

Supervisors Give Unpopularity of Ralph Law as Reason— Lemay Ferry Resignation.

Because of popular sentiment against construction of sewers under the Ralph law, supervisors of the Kirkwood Sewer District yesterday announced that they would not proceed until it was shown by other districts that sewers could be constructed economically, and William H. Hartman, a supervisor in the Lemay Ferry District, submitted his resignation because he thinks the cost of sewers in that district will be too high.

Wurdeman, Stevens & Hoester, attorneys retained by the Kirkwood district, surrendered their contract for payment of $5000 if they successfully defended the incorporation of the district which has been appealed to the Supreme Court, and Jacob Rieth, a supervisor, said the board would "stand by and watch developments in other districts."

Rieth added that no money had been spent on the Kirkwood project, and that a contract with engineers provided that they should start work only after the proceeding in Supreme Court had been disposed of. Supervisors have not been paid and no order authorizing their payment has been made.

In his resignation, submitted to Circuit Judge Mulloy, Hartman said: "After consideration of the unforeseen high cost of the proposed sewer system, I am convinced that a vast majority o fthe taxpayers are vigorously opposed to it." He requested that money due him at the rate of $5 a day as supervisor should be returned to the district.

Commissioners made their report of benefits and damages assessed in the Lemay Ferry District April 9, estimating that benefits to property would total $2,038,674. The computed cost of construction and administration is $1,050,027. Commissioners have not made reports in any of the other six incorporated districts, against two of which injunction suits have been filed by the Taxpayers' Protective Association.

NEW TRANSATLANTIC SHIPPING POOLS REPORTED FORMING

New York Times Says Offers Feel Lines of Each Nation Must Merge Interests.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The New York Times says formation of trans-Atlantic shipping pools, similar to the one recently formed by the two big German companies, is imminent, one for each nation.

The Times says officers of the lines concerned think each nation must merge its interests into one service, instead of having two and even four steamships operating under the same flag, leaving weekly, often with less than half their passenger accommodations occupied.

A merger of the White Star and Cunard lines in such a reciprocal arrangement has been rumored for some time, the newspaper says, adding that they would construct a 60,000-ton, 30-knot liner, enabling them to meet the competition of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd companies.

The situation is further complicated, officials say, by the fact that keels are being laid for six new liners to be put in the New York passenger trade. They add that immigration restrictions has decreased revenue.

MINERS TO STAY IN SHAFT TILL JOBS ARE GUARANTEED

Mexican Workers Take Families With Them Under Ground; Threaten Hunger Strike.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, April 19.—El Universal today reported that 500 miners and their families had gone down into the depths of the Cinco Minas mine, in the State of Jalisco, and announced they would refuse to come to the surface until either their jobs were guaranteed to them or they were promised indemnities.

Their leaders said the miners preferred to die of hunger rather than lose their jobs without payment of an indemnity.

According to El Universal, the miners made the decision after the Jalisco State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration had pronounced in favor of the mining company in a wage dispute with the workers.

The miners telegraphed to the Attorney-General at Mexico City, stating their case. He replied by instructing a Federal agent to investigate and see that justice was done.

$20,000 RANSOM REPORTED PAID FOR ILLINOIS GAMBLER

Louis E. Heiter Was Kidnaped Week Ago on Way From Janesville to Rockford.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKFORD, Ill., April 19. — The Rockford Star was told tonight by what it deemed an authoritative source that Lewis E. Heiter, reputed racing bookmaker, had been released in Chicago late today when friends paid $20,000 to men who kidnaped him a week ago Friday night near Beloit, Wis.

Heiter was kidnaped a week ago when on his way from Janesville to Rockford.

STAYTON TO BE CALLED IN SENATE DRY INQUIRY

Willing to Defend Charge Hoover Doubts Possibility of Enforcement.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—William H. Stayton, chairman of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, declared today that he was willing to appear before the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee and was confident he could justify his statement that President Hoover is beginning to doubt the possibility of enforcing prohibition. The statement was originally made to another association official in a letter, which came into the Lobby Committee's hands a few days ago.

"I weighed every word in that letter," Stayton said. "I do not think the Lobby Committee has any business delving into private correspondence of that nature, but if I am called and asked about it I have no doubt that I can show I was justified in making the assertion."

Senators Walsh (Dem.), Montana, and Robinson (Rep.), Indiana, dry members of the committee, decided to call Stayton to ask him on what authority he based his declaration about the President's views. Stayton explained in the letter that he based it on conversations with members of Congress and other public officials. Publication of the letter has caused considerable alarm among the drys in Congress.

It was among the papers and correspondence taken from the association's files under subpena after Henry H. Curran, the president, had declined to surrender them voluntarily. Curran, who has been on the stand three days, will resume his testimony Tuesday after which Stayton will be called.

Afterward the committee expects to take up the investigation of the lobby activities of such dry organizations as the Anti-Saloon League, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, and Bishop Cannon's organization, the Southern Methodist Commission on Temperance and Social Service. Congressman Tinkham of Massachusetts has charged that these bodies constitute a "church lobby," which is trying to impose theocratic rule in the United States.

MEYER DETAILS ROW ON SEX QUESTIONNAIRE

Psychology Professor at Missouri U. Criticises Brooks, and Verdict of Curators.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 19.—Max F. Meyer, professor of psychology in the University of Missouri, addressing the Southern Society of Philosophy and Psychology, in session here last night, gave a long version of the Missouri sex questionnaire episode, which caused his suspension from the faculty for one year. He returned to his classroom at Columbia last week. Dr. Meyer is president of the society, and his address, devoted entirely to the questionnaire and closely related matters, was more than 10,000 words in length.

Dr. Meyer expressed, with little reserve, his opinion of Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, lately removed from the office of president of the University of Missouri, and Ed Watson, a university alumnus, editor of the Columbia Daily Tribune.

Dr. Meyer declared that President Brooks, when a committee of the American Association of University Professors was about to visit Columbia for an inquiry into the sex questionnaire matter, summoned him to the president's office. Dr. Meyer said that Dr. Brooks proposed that Meyer, with the investigating committee, should take luncheon at the president's house, and that Meyer should say, after luncheon: "Gentlemen, there is really nothing here to investigate, and you may as well go home." Meyer said Brooks told him it would not be to his disadvantage to do this, but he replied that as he, Meyer, had not asked the committee to come, he saw no reason why he should send it away. The committee made a report censuring the university authorities.

Omits Mention of Curators.

Dr. Meyer did not mention by name any member of the Board of Curators or of its Executive Committee of three, which conducted the inquiry in his case. The members of the Executive Committee are: F. M. McDavid of Springfield, Mo., a lawyer, chairman; H. J. Blanton, editor of a weekly paper in Paris, Mo., and Mercer Arnold, a lawyer, of Joplin.

"One of the nine members of our board of curators," Dr. Meyer said, "is the editor of a weekly paper, and he tells his rural readers that the American Association of University Professors is 'a labor union.' Such an argument is incontrovertible."

He described the curators' Executive Committee hearing, attended by President Brooks, as "a revival of the inquisition of the sixteenth century." The president played "the role of the medieval executioner lurking in the background." The chairman (McDavid) was mentioned as being "like a grand inquisitor of the year fifteen hundred and something." His manner was described as that of "an ambitious chief of police trying to entangle somebody in a trap of words."

The chairman, Dr. Meyer said, produced a copy of a chart on sex reflexes, which Dr. Meyer had furnished to women students. "He" (the chairman), said Dr. Meyer, "revealed the whole make-up of his complex of thinking about sex in the following terms, after calling everybody's attention to the fact that he was not a college-educated man. 'This sheet says on its very top that it is to be given to females and not to males. Now, when a thing is so vile that it should not even be given to men, what a veritable crime to give it to women!'

Quality of One Judge.

"He could not see," Dr. Meyer commented, "that certain kinds of information may be very protective to women, but may, when given to young men who happen to be unscrupulous, needlessly increases their possible skill in seducing young girls. Such reasons made it advisable to warn at the top against giving that sheet to young men. . . I have to be charitable with him, for he admitted that he was not a college man. Nevertheless he wanted to sit as judge on the propriety of psychology teaching."

The tabulated chart of reflexes, bearing on the sex relations, was described by Dr. Meyer, who told in great detail of his methods of instruction in this phase of psychology. The chart, he said, gave the basis for knowledge necessary to a woman who intended to be a social worker.

He then told of the sex questionnaire, prepared by a student group, and said he was the oldest of the faculty members consulted about it; that he made a change in one of the questions, dividing it into two parts; that while not approving some of the expressions used, he thought best to let the students use their own language; and that "for insignificant, though plausible reasons," he consented that the questionnaire should be signed "Bureau of Personnel Research" instead of "Student Committee." This made it possible to use some printed envelopes which were on hand. It also helped, Dr. Meyer said, to reassure the recipients that it was a serious inquiry, and not a "Hell Week" stunt or other student prank.

Dr. Meyer condemned President Brooks and the curators for discharging Assistant Professor Harmon O. DeGraff and a student assistant, and for censuring Prof. Wrench and Prof. Bauder. He then raised, and discussed at length, the question why a woman instructor in the psychology department was not mentioned by the official investigators. This instructor, he said, also saw and failed to disapprove the questionnaire. His explanation of this was:

"Southern Chivalry."

"Missouri is a Southern State, and in a Southern State social tradition does not permit that the name of 'the woman' be mentioned when a 'sex offense' has been committed, and Mr. Brooks has lived long enough in Oklahoma to know that. To mention a woman would be lack of chivalry, impossible in a Southern State. This was shrewd calculation of popular prejudices, and not delicacy of personal conduct of a gentleman toward a lady."

"One may run up against stupidity in unexpected places," Dr. Meyer said. "The historian, the economist, the sociologist is just as likely to be struck by lightning, when a storm comes up suddenly, as is the psychologist.

"It is a dangerous business to be a teacher of a social science; because the teacher, if he is a real university teacher, must take the initiative in thinking, and now and then do something which nobody before has done in exactly that way. Otherwise, without such daring, how could progress come about? Somebody has to do everything for the first time. And who else should be that one if not a university teacher?

"Whatever else a university may be, it certainly must be the one institution from which human society may expect the origin of new ways of thinking. But social taboos maintained by stupidity, even where they have no protective function, are plentiful, and it is risky to run against them."

123 BODIES FOUND AFTER CHURCH FIRE

Others Thought to Be Buried in Ruins After Good Friday Services.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, April 19.—A common grave will hold the bodies of more than 112 persons who were killed last night when they were trapped in a burning church during a Good Friday vigil at Cotesici.

Up till this evening, 112 bodies had been identified and 11 others were brought out of the ruins, unrecognizable.

Seventeen other persons, who at first were thought to have been victims, later were found wandering about the countryside, many of them seriously injured.

Evidence today was that more persons were killed in the stampede than by burning. When fire broke out the assembled villagers thought first of the sacred vessels displayed in the service and rushed to save them. Then they dashed desperately for the door and there piled up to die, for the door was of the in-swinging type. No one had a chance to escape except the few who had been sitting in the rear.

Two priests, a notary and the Burgomaster of Cotesici were among those who perished. The priests, after vainly trying to quell the panic, stood at their posts and blessed the victims as they died.

The fire began when a candle ignited a tapestry swung by a breeze, and from there the flames spread to tinsel and paper decorations. The church itself was like tinder, as it was 100 years old and the wood was very dry.

In some cases entire families were wiped out, and in others only the small children, who had been left at home, survive. It is for this reason that authorities decided to bury all in one large grave.

Thousands of persons visited the scene today, some of them showing fear because the fire followed a slight earth tremor the day before. Many knelt to pray, while those who had lost relatives in the catastrophe wept and moaned.

Only one woman, Sevastita Stanciulescu, was among the saved. She lost both hands.

EDITORS AGAIN DEFEAT ETHICS RESOLUTION

American Society Rejects Move to Permit Directors to Act as Censors.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The American Society of Newspaper Editors today defeated a proposal to amend its constitution to empower the Board of Directors to censure, reprimand or expel members found guilty of gross violations of journalistic ethics. The vote was 29 to 23 for adoption, but since a two-thirds vote is required, the proposal was lost.

Willis J. Abbott, contributing editor of the Christian Science Monitor, led the unsuccessful fight for adoption. He argued that newspaper editors, "who make it their business to condemn members of every other profession for violating professional ethics," should be the first to insist upon penalties for members of their own profession convicted of similar offenses.

Casper S. Yost, editor of the St. Louis Globe Democrat, was the principal speaker against the proposed amendment. He argued that any attempt to discipline members of the society for breaches of professional ethics might result in disrupting the organization.

In addition to Abbot, those who advocated adoption of the amendment were Tom Wallace of the Louisville Times, Paul Bellamy of the Cleveland Plain-Dealer, Grove Patterson of the Toledo Blade and Paul Williams of the Utica Press. In general, they followed the theme expounded by Abbot that members of a profession devoted to the advocacy of high public and private standards of conduct in others, could hardly refuse to apply a similar test to themselves.

The proposed amendment, which was drafted in 1925 by John W. Davis, former Democratic nominee for President, has been offered at several previous meetings of the society, always with the same result. The demand of certain members for such a provision resulted from disclosures during the Senate oil investigations in 1924, pertaining to the conduct of Fred G. Bonfils, publisher of the Denver Post, and John C. Shaffer, publisher of newspapers in Indiana, Chicago and Denver.

The society adopted a resolution opposing statutes "such as the Minnesota gag law" and indorsed Vandenberg's bill to prevent a judge from being complainant and judge in charges of contempt based upon action occurring outside the presence of the court. It also commended the Capper-LaGuardia bill to protect newspaper reporters in preserving as confidential sources of information.

Daily newspapers of 100 or more pages, illustrated with photographs were predicted today by Frank H. Gannett, head of the Gannett newspapers, in an address before the society.

"It seems to me there is little evidence of a trend toward smaller newspapers," he said, "smaller either in page size or in number of pages. The tabloids seem to be making little headway except in one or two of the very largest centers of population, and while as a result of a slight decline in business expansion, there has been a decrease in the average number of pages in most newspapers, this decrease, I believe, is only temporary, and just as we have seen the 'the big day' on newspapers in the larger cities climb from 36 to 48 to 64 and to 72 pages, we may expect to see them climb until the 100-page point is reached. Indeed, I would not set the limit at 100 pages. No one can say what the limit is."

H. Wickham Steed Speaks.

The editors were addressed tonight by President Hoover, but his address was, according to custom, not given out for publication.

Andrew Geraud, political editor of the Echo de Paris, and H. Wickham Steed of the editorial staff of the London Times, and Rollo Ogden, editor of the New York Times, spoke at the closing banquet.

Steed said he wished to see the United States let the world know that if any nation went to war without exhausting every resource to settle its differences that it would not receive the friendship of the United States.

"We don't want to drag you into the back door of the League," he said. "The British people want cooperation with you and with France."

Peace, he said, was the threshhold of a new era. The League of Nations he termed imperfect, adding: "When war has been put into the category of crime it will be a league of peoples."

Ogden said that a government without newspapers would be intolerable; a government with newspapers was endurable and a government by newspapers the worst conceivable.

The editors concluded their eighth annual business meeting with the election of officers as follows: Fred Fuller Shedd, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, president; Paul Bellamy, Cleveland Plain Dealer, first vice president; Grove Patterson, Toledo Blade, second vice president; E. S. Beck, Chicago Tribune, treasurer; Marvin H. Creager, Milwaukee Journal, secretary.

U. S. EXPLAINS DECLINE IN INCOME TAX TOTAL

Individuals Paying Less While Corporation Collections Are About the Same.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Most of the decline in Federal income tax collections during March of this year as compared with the corresponding month last year was disclosed today by Internal Revenue Bureau figures to be due to the lessening of payments by individuals.

Corporation payments for the month, in spite of a cut of 1 per cent in the rate of this year's levy, were almost the same as last year. The figures for March corporation collections were $280,831,000, against $282,088,000 last year.

The March collections from individual incomes this year amounted to $274,913,000, against $313,899,000 last year.

In other categories of internal revenue the March collections were better this year than last. From the manufacture of cigarettes this year the Government obtained in March a total of $27,496,657, against $26,069,595 last year. The estate tax also yielded $4,525,102 for March this year, against $3,004,484 last year.

VERDICT OF ACCIDENT IN DEATH OF BOY AT PLAY

Walter Jannsen, 7, Was Hit by Falling Support of Swing During Recess.

A verdict of accident was returned at a Coroner's inquest yesterday in the death of Walter Jannsen, 7-year-old son of George and Lela Janssen, who was killed at Pontiac Playground, Ninth street and Ann avenue, at noon, Friday, when the iron supporting pole of a circle swing, on which the boy was riding, snapped and struck him on the head. The child was pronounced dead of a fractured skull at City Hospital. Janssen, a pupil at Lafayette school, had gone to the playground to play during the noon recess.

August Marty, director of the playground, testifying at the inquest, said he did not see the accident. It was not his duty, he replied in answer to a question, to inspect the swing; there are regular inspectors for that purpose, and the pole was inspected several months ago. Marty said the pole was at the playground when he first went there, more than four years ago.

The circle swing, a favorite piece of apparatus with the children, is supported by a hollow, upright iron pole, about 12 feet in height. At its top is a small wheel, from which are suspended four chains that hold a wooden board on which a child may sit or stand.

Walter was one of 10 children living in three-room quarters in the rear of 318 Lesperance street.

SENATE SUBCOMMITTEE O K'S DRY BUREAU TRANSFER BILL

Makes No Change in Section Giving Attorney-General Industrial Alcohol Veto Power.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The Williamson bill transferring prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Justice was approved today by the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee with minor amendments. The subcommittee will report the measure to the Judiciary Committee Monday and an early report of it to the Senate is in prospect.

After hearing the protests of industrial leaders against the provision in the House bill giving the Attorney-General veto power over industrial alcohol permits, the subcommittee made no change. Under the House bill, administration of the industrial alcohol permits would be continued in the Treasury Department.

The subcommittee struck out of the House bill a provision providing for the transfer of all prohibition employes from the Treasury to the Jutice Department.

ATTORNEY FIRST NEGRO CHOSEN ON CONDEMNATION COMMISSION

Joseph McLemore to Serve in Procedure Concerning Manchester Avenue.

Joseph L. McLemore, a Negro, and Democratic candidate for Congress in the Twelfth District two years ago, has been appointed in the Circuit Court to serve on a condemnation commission involving change of grade of certain portions of Manchester avenue. He will serve with H. A. Loevy, an attorney, and Oscar Schaefer, a real estate dealer, all of whom were appointed by Judge Ryan, a Democrat.

According to the St. Louis Argus, a Negro newspaper, it is the first time anyone of that race has been chosen on a commission of this kind in this city. Judge Ryan said yesterday he selected McLemore, an attorney, because he believes he is qualified. Condemnation commissioners receive $5 a day.

Built-to-Order City Has 10,491.

LONGVIEW, Wash., April 19.—Longview, a city built to order by R. A. Long, Kansas City lumberman, since the 1920 census, completed its first official count of inhabitants today. It has a population of 10,491. The city was laid out on model lines, centering around the lumber industry. A complete municipality was built before any residents moved in.

CHURCHES IN MOSCOW CROWDED FOR EASTER

Thousands Flock to Services Despite Government's Atheism Order.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 19. — All churches of Moscow were crowded tonight with devout Christians eager to celebrate with the fervor shown in bygone days, before the atheistic movement got under way in Soviet Russia.

Long before midnight, the hour set for the Easter masses, tens of thousands of churchgoers made their way through the dark streets, carrying lighted candles to guide them over the broken pavements to their churches.

Seen against the battlemented towers of the Kremlin, seat of the Communistic Government, and with the golden domes of the city's 1600 churches in the background, this made a scene reminiscent of old Russia and one long to be remembered.

Easter still touches the soul of the Russian as no other festival of the church year. Scattered though they may be at other times, the believers among the nation's millions seem to become kith and kin once more and for three whole days give themselves up to a celebration that makes Easter a greater holiday than Christmas.

Chimes Not Sounded.

The only noticeable mark of change this year was the absence of bells and chimes. A recent decree of the Government silenced them forever. But their silence was partly atoned for by the magnificent singing of the male choirs, the deep voices of which, unaccompanied by instruments, were heard in the midnight air and imparted rare beauty to the services.

The celebration began when priests, in accordance with the ritual of the orthodox church, marched in solemn processions around the outside of their churches at the stroke of midnight. They bore crucifixes, ikons and holy pictures and were followed by thousands of the faithful carrying long, lighted candles, brilliant banners and pictures of the saints.

The upturned faces of the worshipers, most of them poorly clad, were illuminated against the drab background of the city's dilapidated houses, and the flickering shadows cast by their candles gave the scenes touches of mysticism that struck observers with dramatic force. There were many Americans in these processions.

March Around Churches.

After the congregations had marched completely around the churches, the priests greeted them as they re-entered the sanctuaries with the words: "Christ is risen." And the people responded: "He is risen indeed."

Then they kissed one another ardently on both cheeks, this being the highest form of greeting in Russia and expressive of joy.

A solemn Te Deum was then sung. The priests officiating in vestments brocaded with silver and gold, high conical hats and the jeweled mitres, as of old.

Despite the Government's prohibition of public sale of Easter eggs, paschal cakes and other tokens of the season, thousands of the churchgoers brought symbols of this sort to be blessed.

Here and there outside the churches atheists gathered, sang ribald songs and derided the teachings of religion, but their activities were noticeably free from the harshness which characterized them in former years.

To divert the attention of workmen from the churches, the Government distributed tickets to theaters, concerts and moving picture shows at reduced rates.

Indians to Celebrate Easter at Sunrise Mass Near Tuscon.

By the Associated Press.

TUSCON Ariz., April 19.—Summoned by the Eastern sunrise and Easter fire burning from an enshrined pile of volcanic rock, the Papago Indians will attend mass at the Mission San Xavier Del Bac in a ceremony dating back to the founding of the mission in 1700.

The white plume of smoke from the hill top, while not a part of the Christian Easter service, has been held over from an age-old Indian legend, and has come to be recognized at the mission as the Easter morning call to the faithful.

A male choir of Papagoes will sing the opening of the mass as the sun rises over the Catalina mountains and the Rev. M. Murphy of Chicago will celebrate the mass.

The Easter fire is lighted just before dawn, so that its plume of smoke may rise against the first rays of the sun. In a bygone day, the legends say, the hill top shrine was a volcano, and from it came a wisp of smoke.

The foundation of the mission was laid in 1700 by Padre Eusebio Kino, a mile north of the present mission building. In 1797 La Paloma Blanco del Desierto (the white dove of the desert) was dedicated as it is seen today.

TWO BOY BURGLARS DROWNED

By the Associated Press.

PAINESVILLE, O., April 19.—Two 10-year-old boys were drowned in the Grand River here this evening trying to escape from police after they had broken into a Painesville home.

Frank Saari, 12 years old, of Fairport; his brother, Joseph, 10, and James Sabo, 10, chased by police, ran toward the river. Frank succeeded in reaching the other side, but the younger boys went down.

30 PAROLE APPEALS COME UP THIS WEEK

State Penal Board to Grant Hearings Twice a Month to Clear Up Applications.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 19.—Parole applications of 30 convicts in the Missouri penitentiary will be heard by the State Penal Board next Monday and Tuesday, under a new policy of the board to conduct such hearings twice a month. Similar hearings were held April 14 and 15, at which 30 applications were received.

Convicts to be heard next week include three from St. Louis and five from St. Louis County. Miss Verna Owens, who has served nine months of a four-year sentence on five counts of third degree forgery from St. Louis County, is one of them and Mattie Brown of Kansas City, who has served four years and eight months of a 20-year sentence for murder, is another.

Harry Menke, St. Louis County, who has served four years and one week of a 20-year sentence for murder, will receive his second hearing. His first application for parole was held in November, 1927. Menke was convicted on circumstantial evidence, of the murder of his wife, who was beaten to death on July 11, 1924, at the Menke home, in Richmond Heights. Menke asserted the murder must have occurred after he left home early in the morning to go to his place of employment. His conviction was affirmed by the State Supreme Court.

The St. Louis convicts to be heard are: Andrew Hickman, who has served one year of a two-year sentence for obtaining money by false pretenses; Edward Gessing, who has served three years and two weeks of a seven-year sentence for robbery and assault with intent to rob; Sam Oberdan, who has served one year of a four-year sentence for manslaughter.

The St. Louis County convicts to be heard, in addition to Miss Owens and Henke, are: Edward L. Barrett, who has served three years and five months for robbery and attacking a woman; Tom Dickens, who has served five years and one month of a 15-year sentence for robbery; Fred Cannon, who has served seven years and nine months of a life sentence for first-degree murder.

Parole Commissioner Dwight Brown said hearings would be held twice a month to enable the board to consider the applications of all convicts whose cases were thought to have any merit. There were approximately 800 such cases, he said, that either had been or would be heard.

APPARENTLY SAME MAN ROBS TWO GROCERY STORES

Returns $1 Found on Customer and Lets Man Who "Needed His Money" Keep It.

Alvin O'Brien, manager of a Kroger store at 2800 North Sarah street, and five customers were ordered to face the wall early last night by an armed robber who took $45 from a cash register. Turning to Richard Tobin, 3859 Maffitt avenue, a customer, he took $10. Upon finding only $1 in the pockets of another customer, Albert Harrell, 2709 North Whittier street, the robber returned the money to him and departed.

A half hour later, a man answering the same description held up Earl Gibson, manager of a Kroger store at 4150 Finney avenue, obtaining $40. H. Meyer, a supervisor of the company, was asked if he had any money. When he replied that he needed it, the robber laughed and, with a warning against notifying police, left through the front door.

$228,749 PERSONALTY IN MRS. AGNES C. RICE ESTATE

$186,120 Is in Stock of Rice-Stix Co.; Bequeathed $10,000 for Charitable Purposes.

An inventory of the estate of Mrs. Agnes C. Rice, who died Feb. 10, 1929, was filed yesterday. It shows personal property valued at $228,749, including $186,120 of the stock of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., of which her husband, the late Arthur J. Rice, was treasurer.

Mrs. Rice bequeathed a total of $10,000 for charitable purposes and divided the residue of her estate among relatives, naming her daughter, Mrs. Charles Gibney of Cleveland, O., as principal beneficiary.

Charles M. Rice and Henry Rice filed the inventory as executors.

BESSIE COMPSON, ACTRESS, FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Charles James Cruze Bosen With Mental Cruelty; Says He Entertained Too Much.

LOS ANGLES, Cal., April 19.—The Sheriff's office reported today that Deputies had served James Cruze, film director and producer, with a copy of a complaint for divorce filed by his wife, Betty Compson, film actress. Mental cruelty is charged.

Miss Compson, who separated from Cruze a year ago but was reconciled, alleges in her complaint that her husband's habit of entertaining large crowds every day prevented her from obtaining rest and seriously interferred with her profession. The suit was filed against James Cruze Bosen, the director's true name. Miss Compson gave her name as Luicime Bosen. They were married in 1925 and separated yesterday.

CHICAGO, April 19. — Walte
Stewart unloaded some good pitching on the White Sox today and a a result the Browns walked of with an easy victory, 7 to 2. The winners' total was helped materially by Chicago misplays.

It was the Browns' first victor of the season.

"Uncle" Urban Faber, a man o
many summers, confined th
Browns to six hits in the seven innings he toiled, but his associate neglected to grasp the batted ball on several occasions, with a resul that only two of these six marker were earned. The run the Killefe men achieved during the tenure o
Cecil Patrick Caraway was legiti mate.

The Browns specialized in two baggers, knocking five of thi handy variety of hit. Two wer credited to Kress. All but two o these compound smacks figured i the runmaking.

The fielding done by the visitor was "snappy."

The Sox made nine base hits, bu they scored only two runs and ha only five men stranded on th paths. Stewart was good and hi support better.

Cissell Makes Four Hits.

Bill Cissell was the only hom laborer able to do much with wha
Stewart served. He slapped fou singles, but only one of them wa of value to his side. The other were wasted because of the im potency of Chicago batsmen whe
Stewart bore down.

Scoring started early. Afte
Blue had fanned in the first in ning, O'Rourke worked Faber fo a pass and Manush began the two base stuff by whacking a drive int right field. O'Rourke loped hom but Manush was extinguished try ing for third. Kress doubled, bu nothing came of it.

In the second canto the generou
Sox helped the Brownies to a pa of unearned runs. Melillo beat ou a bunt towards third and Kam failed to come up with Gullic roller, the batter making two bas and Melillo halting at third. Bot romped home when Ferrell singl to center.

Things went along in peaceab fashion until the fourth, when t
Sox again did some Alphonse-Ga ton stuff.

Stewart Bats in a Run.

Reynolds made a two-base mu of Melillo's fly and Gullic walke
Ferrell move them up with a sac rifice and Melillo walked home o
Stewart's long fly. Thus was a ru

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 19. — Walter Stewart unloaded some good pitching on the White Sox today and as a result the Browns walked off with an easy victory, 7 to 2. The winners' total was helped materially by Chicago misplays.

It was the Browns' first victory of the season.

"Uncle" Urban Faber, a man of many summers, confined the Browns to six hits in the seven innings he toiled, but his associates neglected to grasp the batted balls on several occasions, with a result that only two of these six markers were earned. The run the Killefer men achieved during the tenure of Cecil Patrick Caraway was legitimate.

The Browns specialized in two-baggers, knocking five of this handy variety of hit. Two were credited to Kress. All but two of these compound smacks figured in the runmaking.

The fielding done by the visitors was "snappy."

The Sox made nine base hits, but they scored only two runs and had only five men stranded on the paths. Stewart was good and his support better.

Cissell Makes Four Hits.

Bill Cissell was the only home laborer able to do much with what Stewart served. He slapped four singles, but only one of them was of value to his side. The others were wasted because of the impotency of Chicago batsmen when Stewart bore down.

Scoring started early. After Blue had fanned in the first inning, O'Rourke worked Faber for a pass and Manush began the two-base stuff by whacking a drive into right field. O'Rourke loped home, but Manush was extinguished trying for third. Kress doubled, but nothing came of it.

In the second canto the generous Sox helped the Brownies to a pair of unearned runs. Melillo beat out a bunt towards third and Kamm failed to come up with Gullic's roller, the batter making two bases and Melillo halting at third. Both romped home when Ferrell singled to center.

Things went along in peaceable fashion until the fourth, when the Sox again did some Alphonse-Gaston stuff.

Stewart Bats in a Run.

Reynolds made a two-base muff of Melillo's fly and Gullic walked. Ferrell move them up with a sacrifice and Melillo walked home on Stewart's long fly. Thus was a run

Inception, an Outsider, Wins $10,000 Handicap At Havre de Grace

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 19.—Scratches riddled the card here this afternoon, caused by the heavy condition of the track.

After four horses had been withdrawn from the Philadelphia Handicap, the mile and one-sixteenth feature, a well-matched and classy field of eight remained and Mrs. O. Chaney's Inception, reveling in the bad footing, scored by two lengths over the Audley Farm's Bobashela.

The latter was second by a neck over S. W. Labrot's Dinah Did Upset. Molasses Jane was fourth.

Inception ran the distance in 1:52 1-5 and paid $30.40 for $2. The victory was worth $9550 to the owner.

The Rancocas Stable's Donnay, heavily played second choice, finished next to last. The rider, Steffen, found trouble early, being bumped at the first turn and then had to take up during the running. He was on the outside up the back stretch, running last, and was taken behind horses turning for home, unable to get through from his position.

Inception showed a game performance. He was away well and had to race head and head with Dinah Did Upset to the stretch turn, where he began drawing clear. Bobashela, the favorite, kept close to the pace, moved forward fast in the last half mile and took Dinah's place as runner-up in the stretch, but did not menace the winner. Dinah Did Upset held on well to beat the fast-finishing Molasses.

NEW AMERICAN MARK SET BY KAYE DON

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 19.—L. Warren Baker, Florida representative of the American Automobile Association, announced here today that Kaye Don, British racer, established a new American straightaway record of 151.623 miles an hour over a five-mile course at Daytona Beach recently, although he failed to break the world's record.

The previous record of 149.5 for that distance was set at Daytona Beach in April, 1920, by Tommy Milton, retired American driver. The world's record for five miles is 212, held by Malcolm Campbell of England.

Announcement that Don had established a new American five-mile record was made after a comparison of official records with the speeds the driver attained on his 22 trials over the ocean speedway.

Don now is en route to England and has not yet been informed that he has established the record.

Inception, favored by the footing and avoided crowding going to the first turn, was steadied in front while resisting Dinah Did Upset. Shook off latter when reaching home stretch and drew out nearing finish. Bobashela made a serious effort leaving the back stretch, and managed to outstay Dinah Did Upset. Latter formed a good pace and continued with good courage for the closing test. Molasses Jane held on with determination. Annapolis could not reach a forward position. Donnay, taken up repeatedly, and messed about. Bocaratone quit.

$2 mutuels paid: Inception, win, $30.40; place, $12; show, $6. Bobashela, place, $3.80; show, $3. Dinah Did Upset, show, $3.80.

DE MAR WINS HIS SEVENTH BOSTON MARATHON RACE

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 19.—The shuffling feet of Clarence de Mar, veteran Melrose runner, today were strong enough to carry him to his seventh Boston Marathon victory in 19 years. This amazing athlete, favored by his special brand of sultry weather, ran a field of 180 starters deep into the ground and was in command of the torturous race from start to finish.

De Mar set a time goal of 2 hours and 32 minutes for the 26 miles and 385 yards, but finished in 2:34:48 1-5, less than two minutes slower than the course record, because there was no competitor strong enough to push him over the last few miles.

Willie Kyronen of the Finnish-American A. C. of New York finished second by jumping his teammate, Karl Koski, the outstanding favorite, during the last mile, and trotted home about 400 yards behind De Mar, in 2:36:27 4-5. Koski, who trailed the victor during most of the second half of the race, came third and was timed in 2:38:21 4-5.

The next two to finish were Canadians. Harold Webster of Hamilton, Ontario, was fourth in 2:39:27 2-5. Gabriel Ruotsaloinen of Montreal was fifth in 2:41:05, and sixth place went to Ronald B. O'Toole of St. Johnson, N. F., whose time was 2:41:55.

De Mar, who will be 42 years old next June, can recall running 35 marathon races and winning 15 of them.

Despite his age, which most of the experts considered a bit too advanced for marathon racing, he showed no signs of fatigue after breaking the tape. He weighed 137 pounds when he took off from the starting mark at Hopkinton, and lost only five pounds along the hilly road to Boston.

Clockers Get Leland at 9.4 Seconds for Century In Kansas Relay Meet

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 19.—One world's record was bettered and one was equaled as track athletes of the Midwest and Southwest competed here today in the eighth annual University of Kansas relays.

Cy Leland, the sprint star of the Southwest, representing Texas Christian University, sped with the wind down the 100-yard straightaway to be clocked by nine of 10 officials' watches in 9.4 seconds. The recognized world's record is 9.6 seconds. Leland's mark is not likely to be recognized as a new world record because of the strong south wind which helped him along and because starting blocks were used.

The sprint relay team from Illinois—Useman, Dickenson, Cave and Patterson—led Michigan to the tape in the quarter mile relay in 41 seconds flat to equal the mark set in 1927 by the Newark Athletic Club. The time shattered the meet record of 41.6 seconds set by Notre Dame in 1927.

Leland Sets Mark for Meet.

Leland's 9.4 second sprint also broke the meet record of 9.6 seconds set by Roland Locke of Nebraska in 1926.

In winning the century dash, Leland also added another victory over his arch rival, Claude Bracey of Rice Institute. Bracey finished inches behind Leland today.

Thirteen new meet records were established exclusive of the new record in the decathlon.

The new marks:

100-YARD DASH—9.4s, Leland.
120-YARD HIGH HURDLES—14.6s, Lee Sentman, Illinois.
DISCUS—153 ft. 7¼ inches, Melvin Thornhill, Kansas.
UNIVERSITY 440-YARD RELAY—41s, Illinois.
COLLEGE 880-YARD RELAY—1m 27s Oklahoma Baptist University.
COLLEGE TWO-MILE RELAY—8m. 2.4 Kansas State Teachers of Pittsburg.
HIGH SCHOOL 2-MILE RELAY—8m. 15.2s., Tulsa.
POLE VAULT—13 ft. 9¾ in., Tom Warne, Northwestern.
UNIVERSITY MEDLEY RELAY—10m. 28.7s., Marquette.
HIGH SCHOOL MEDLEY RELAY—3m. 40.5s., Tulsa.
COLLEGE MILE RELAY—3m. 21s., Oklahoma Baptist University.
COLLEGE MEDLEY RELAY — 10m. 37.9s., Wichita, Kansas University.
HIGH JUMP—6 ft., 6 3-16 in., Ted Shaw, Wisconsin.

Michigan won the half-mile university relay in 1 minutes 26.7 seconds, a tenth of a second short of the meet mark. Illinois was second, Kansas third and Chicago fourth. The Michigan team was composed of Smith, Seymour, Campbell and Tolan.

BUSTER CHARLES WINS DECATHLON

"BUSTER" Charles, Oneida Indian, won the decathlon at the Kansas relays, setting a new point record. For details, see third page of this section.

Indiana won the four-mile university relay, its team of Brooksmith, Kemp, Leas and Claphorn hanging up a time of 18 minutes 33.4 seconds. Wisconsin was second, Nebraska third and Minnesota fourth.

Illinois Takes Two-Mile.

Illinois also captured the two-mile relay with its team, Fruin, Asper, Evans and Makeever, beating out Northwestern. The time was 7:55.7.

Marquette's team, which set the new meet record in the medley relay, was composed of Morgan, Sweeney, P. Walter and J. Walter.

All four college class relay records were shoved into the discard, Oklahoma Baptist University setting two new marks and Wichita and Pittsburg one each.

Tulsa High School speedsters won three of the four high school class relays and set new meet records in two. By the bare margin of one-tenth of a second, Tulsa failed to tie the meet record in the third relay.

Michigan won the half-mile university relay in time that also was one-tenth of a second short of the meet mark.

Spectators, although satisfied with the galaxy of records broken, were disappointed because Missouri's crack mile relay team did not establish a new record in that always popular race. The Mis-

By J. Roy Stockton.

Bill Sherdel showed flashes of his old-time form in his first start of the season yesterday afternoon, but the Cardinals couldn't solve the curves of Remy Kremer in the important pinches and the patched up Pirates captured the first game of the series 5 to 4 in 10 innings.

Sherdel's inability to fool Paul Waner was his greatest difficulty. Waner singled in the first inning and scored a run and singled again in the third and fifth. In the tenth inning, after the Redbirds had tied the score in eighth, Waner led off for the Pirates and punched a triple to center for his fourth hit. After a conference, Sherdel was taken out of the box and Sylvester Johnson went to the hill. Comorosky's sacrifice fly sent Waner home to break the tie and after Suhr walked, Bartel tripled to center, scoring Suhr.

Cards' Rally Fails.

Hafey's double and a single by George Watkins, batting for Charley Gelbert, gave the Redbirds a run in their half of the tenth, but Andy High, batting for Jimmy Wilson, grounded to Grantham to end the contest.

The box score shows that the Cardinals nicked Kremer for 10 hits, but he was a better pitcher than that total indicates. Adams' double and Bottomley's single produced a run in the first inning. Hafey also singled in that opening frame, but after that Kremer was master until the eighth.

Gelbert scratched a single to short in the fourth and Adams singled to center with two down in the fifth, but from the first to the eighth inning only one Cardinal advanced as far as second base.

Fisher Ties Score in Eighth.

Adams, leading off in the eighth, was safe on Engle's fumble, and Frankie Frisch followed with a line single to left. Bottomley sacrificed and Jewel Ens, who apparently had not been told of the sensational batting streak of George Fisher, ordered Hafey passed. Fisher almost won the game then and there, but his drive to right on Kremer's first pitch was blown into foul territory and missed being a home run by a couple of feet. Fisher didn't let this discourage him. He picked on the next offering and singled to center, scoring Adams and Frisch with the tying runs and sending Hafey to third.

This was the Cardinals' big chance, but they failed to take advantage of it. Gelbert popped to Suhr and Jimmy Wilson ended the frame with a fly to Paul Waner.

Sherdel's performance must have been encouraging to Manager Street. After two were out in the first, Paul Waner's single and Comorosky's home run off the roof of the right field pavilion gave the Pirates two runs and in the second doubles by Hemsley and Kremer added one more.

Sherdel Shows Cunning.

Thereafter Sherdel frequently was in trouble but he was able to pitch himself out of danger each time. In the ninth, especially, he showed his courage and craft. With one out, Hemsley singled and went to third on Engle's one-bagger. Sherdel struck out Kremer, walked the right-handed Flagstead and got Grantham on a hopper to Adams.

Sherdel wanted to stay in there and finish the tenth inning, but with a runner on third, a strike-

ROOSEVELT DEFEATS SOLDAN, 12-8; CLEVELAND DOWNS CENTRAL, 15-2

BIEBER POLES HOME RUN OFF BOLDING WITH THREE ON BASES

By Harold Tuthill

Baseball played by a bunch of 10-year-olds could hardly be worse than that exhibited by City High School League teams yesterday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium, when 37 runs, 45 hits and 23 errors were made in a doubleheader. Roosevelt defeated Soldan, 12 to 8, and Cleveland buried Central, 15 to 2. About 25 of the original 200 fans stayed through the five hours and 30 minutes necessary for the completion of the two games.

The most glaring of the offenses committed was the free throwing by members of the school nines. Since Soldan committed nine blunders, three of them by its captain, Wilbert Siesennop, Roosevelt deserved a victory in its debut, although the Rough Riders were in a bad way when Soldan tied the score in the fifth, after a five-run rally in the previous inning.

Marvin Coffel of Roosevelt was the chief offender for his team, having a total of three errors and four passed balls, which ordinarily would be responsible for a defeat. It would have been yesterday except that Soldan out-Gastoned the Rough Riders in wild heaves, nine to eight.

Roosevelt went to bat 50 times and got 14 safeties, four of them being made by Charley Yeager. Bob Murdock and Harry Plitt each made three hits, and Bill Kerchanske two.

It was the constant barrage of these batters that enabled Roosevelt to break a 7-7 tie, and forge ahead, 10 to 7, in the sixth round, after which Soldan was held easily by Merril Baumgartner.

Cleveland gained a lot of prestige by banging out its victory. The Carondelet school collected 15 hits, two of which were home runs. One of these was made by Kenneth Bieber in the fourth inning with the bases loaded. Gene Poteet swatted the other round-trip smash with Joe Ernst on, in the third round.

SPORT SALAD by L. C. Davis

Juicy Fruit.

"Ty Cobb to Buy Half Interest in Frisco Club."

In interest of the sunkist sport
I see where Frisco will import
The famous Georgia Peach:
Which means that native sons will root
For Georgia's transplanted fruit,
Upon their sunkist beach.

The Georgia Peach should flourish there
In that invigorating air,
That peps you up like wine.
And Ty will soon be sitting tight
And to his friends back home he'll write:
"Come on, the climate's fine!"

Quite So.

The purchase of a half interest in the Frisco club would indicate that Ty hasn't lost all interest in the sport anyway.

The old "forty-niners" used to say "thar's gold in them thar hills." And Ty thinks them thar Seals ought to pan out fairly well, too.

Night baseball will be tried by Independence of the Western Association. As long as there are so many people blowing their money on night clubs why not?

Of course to make an outdoor night club successful they'll have to slap on a cover charge of a couple of bucks and have the man on the gate greet the cash customer with "Hello, sucker."

Not to mention a master of ceremonies requesting a big hand on behalf of the next batter who happens to be a hard-working young gent trying to get along on a batting average of .167.

"Slightly Tighter Money in Paris."

However, Br'er Reed has never been noted for saying it with flowers. Poison ivy, maybe, but not flowers.

Mike Gonzales claims that the Cubs made an error in releasing him last winter. He's trying to hook up with some class A team to prove his point.

Mike has done it before and he sees no reason why he can't do it again. He may be right.

Fate works in a mysterious way, its wonders to perform. Out of a thousand and one, fight promoters, Jack de Mave had to pick Tommy Sullivan to run out on.

If Tommy ever got a break he'd crack under the surprise.

The way the Cubs hopped on to Flint Rhem, a bridegroom of a few days, in the season's opener thoroughly demonstrates that if there is any sentiment in baseball it is not to be found in the makeup of the Cubs.

The Knothole gang was never in better voice than on opening day. They had everything in the Guido scale and it wasn't their fault that the Redbirds lost the inaugural.

See where Bruce Flowers' foul cost King Tut a thousand berries. Chickens come home to roost.

WEBSTER HIGH SCHOOL IN TWO BASEBALL GAMES THIS WEEK

The Webster High School baseball team will engage in two encounters this week. The first comes tomorrow afternoon on the home diamond with Central of the City League, and the other is with Ferguson on Thursday afternoon. Both are scheduled to start at 4 o'clock.

Hudson will probably again be the starting hurler. He has pitched five consecutive games.

If the Central game should prove easy, Gaines may give the junior high boys a chance. Of these, Prehn and Burgess show promise. Burgess is a good hitter.

Webster has now won three games and lost two, for a percentage of .400. The first game of the season was lost to Jennings, but the second with Hancock was won easily. The next two with Roosevelt were lost, and the Vandalia game was won.

SIMMONS GETS TWO HOMERS AS ATHLETICS DOWN SENATORS, 9-0

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—Al Simmons led the world champion Athletics to a 9-0 triumph over the Washington Senators this afternoon by lambasting out two home runs, a double and a single in five times at bat.

Rube Walberg's shutout pitching formed the background for Simmons' slugging. Walberg was wild, issuing six passes, but was unhittable in the pinches.

Simmons, whose hits figures in the scoring of six runs, made his first home run off Myles Thomas in the fifth inning with one on base. This was his third straight hit. He grounded into a force play in the seventh, when Thomas was clubbed off the mound, and in the eighth he hit again for the circuit off Ad Liska's pitching.

The Athletics' star now has three home runs in two games played. He started the season by hitting a homer last Tuesday on his first time at bat.

STANFORD WINS ANNUAL MEET FROM CALIFORNIA

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., April 19.—Burying their traditional adversaries under an avalanche of strength in the sprints and weight events, Stanford University's track and field team, intercollegiate titleholders, today defeated the University of California athletes in their thirty-seventh annual big meet, 83 1-15 to 47 14-15.

The Cardinals shut out the Californians in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes, limited them to a single point in the quarter mile and swept the shot put, discus and broad jump.

Heading a list of outstanding performances in the meet were the marks of Captain Eric Krenz and Harlow Rothert, of Stanford, in the weights, and the iron man feat of "Spud" Mossman, curly-haired California distance runner, in winning the mile and two mile with a scant 20 minutes' rest between the two events.

Krenz Sets Record.

Krenz fouled by a mere spike mark on a discus throw of 166 feet, 10 inches, some three feet better than his own world record, but succeeded in smashing his own big meet record of 156 feet, 2 inches, set last year, with a toss of 161 feet and half an inch.

Rothert also cracked a big meet record of his own establishment, whirling the shot out some 51 feet, 10⅜ inches to better his 1929 mark by over 22 inches.

Mossman staged the first of his splendid performances when he won the mile run by a good 15 yards from Bob Brown of Stanford in 4:28 4-10. Twenty minutes later he came back to outsprint Johnny Parker of Stanford in the last 100 yards and win the two-mile by 20 yards in 9:51.

Besides Mossman, two other men scored double wins, although one of the victories was a tie. Hec Dyer, blond Cardinal sprinter, and conqueror of Frank Wykoff of the University of Southern California, raced to victory in both dashes, tying the big meet record of 9 8-10 seconds in the 100, held jointly by himself and Barber of California. Captain Alfonso Pogolotti of the Bears, after winning the high hurdles by a four-yard margin from Nisbet and Smith of Stanford, came back to run a dead heat for first with Smith i nthe low barriers, in 24 6-10 seconds.

Relay Mark Beaten.

One of the other big meet records, the mile relay mark, fell when the Stanford quartet of McDermott, Hables, Shove and Morrison stepped the four laps in 3 minutes 18 7-10 seconds to win by 60 yards, the time being three-tenths of a second better than the mark established by a Cardinal team in 1923.

Teams Needed in S. S. League.

The Sunday School division of the Municipal Baseball League needs three more teams for a 24-team league. For further information, call Roy Newsom at CEntral 6400.

McGraw Certain Roettger Will Prove Big Aid to New York in National League Pennant Race

By John J. McGraw.
Manager, New York Giants.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Weather has hit the baseball races a hard wallop, but this time it didn't fool us. Practically every ball club in the major leagues is prepared for the bad spring weather and for that reason I think we ought to know where the real strength lies in the first month.

Instead of being upset by the dampness and cold rains the teams had so much of it in the South and Southwest that it comes to the players as a matter of course. Not one of them is on edge or too finely trained. There is nothing to be undone.

John J. McGraw

Often I am asked if we ought to start the season later so as to escape the bad weather which in the past has thrown many a ball club off its real stride and ruined pennant chances.

If starting later was an escape, naturally, it would be a good thing, but nobody can outguess April weather. I have started seasons on April 9 in beautiful warm weather. We have been ready for later openings only to have the ground covered in snow. It's always a guess.

Proves a Handicap.

Perfect weather in spring training often has been a handicap. The teams get too far advanced physically and crumple under the change. That has happened to the Giants the last two years, and to other contending clubs. This spring, though, the clubs have come along gradually, taking the good and bad in turn. Damp grounds and cold dugouts often start colds and flu, the two ailments that ruin more players in the spring than anything else. I believe we are prepared for that now.

The significant feature of the opening games was the ability of so many first-class pitchers to start and show their real stuff. No line can be had on the Yanks, for instance, with Lefty Grove going at top speed in the very first game.

Then, over in Brooklyn, Clark and Sweetland turned loose two of the best bits of left handed pitching they ever have shown. If Sweetland can keep up that work the Phillies will be more dangerous than we thought. From that score of 1 to 0 it is quite evident however, that the dreaded punch of those two clubs is among their left handed hitters. Neither could do much against southpaws. This offers an opening for other clubs to shoot left handers at them frequently.

The necessity of well-balanced batting as between left and right handed hitters is often overworked. To win a pennant it is almost compulsory. That is one reason why I was so set on getting a right-handed hitting outfielder to balance off our punch. I think now that I have found him in Walter Roettger, acquired from the Cardinals.

Some Real Hitting.

A striking feature of the opening and other significant one was the way the Cincinnati club started off hitting so early in the spring. That punch, if sustained, ought to keep them right up in the race, particularly with the veteran pitchers going so good.

The Cardinals showed the same thing a day later, when they blasted Chicago pitchers for about 20 hits.

The Pittsburg line-up is still a little askew, due to the illness of several players, particularly Lloyd Waner and Traynor, and it may prove costly this tricky spring.

I was much amused at the complaints over Babe Ruth's first home run having hit the sound amplifier in Philadelphia and bouncing back for a two-bagger. To avoid those queer stunts, the Babe ought to use the Willie Keeler system of "hitting 'em where the amplifiers ain't."

In the American League it is very evident that the Tigers and the A.'s have a punch. Personally, I also expect the White Sox to do a lot of hitting this summer.

It's entirely too early to make predictions about the pennants, but the openings showed conclusively that this is to be the biggest baseball season we have had in years. The attendance everywhere was enormous. At the Polo Grounds we have had the largest crowd and the most real enthusiasm I've seen for a long time.

The weather is the only thing that can lick baseball now.

CHARLES SETS A NEW RECORD FOR K. U. DECATHLON

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 19.—After finishing second for two years, Wilson (Buster) Charles, Oneida Indian from Haskell Institute, won the decathlon in connection with the Kansas relays here today, and set a new meet record. His total points were 7543.3960. The former record of 7422.2646 was set by Tom Churchill of Oklahoma in 1928.

Charles won five firsts, three seconds, one fourth and tied for one fourth. Among his best marks were 6 feet 1⅛ inches in the high jump; 23 feet in the broad jump and 43 feet 2 inches in the shot-put.

His four competitors finished as follows:

James Grant, Haskell, 7061.5120.

William Boyd, Westminster, 6909.9044.

Fred Brooks, William Jewell, 6472.4209.

Ben Douglas, Grinnell, 6343.2026.

Roettger's Hit Enables Giants To Beat Phils

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19. — Lou Koupal of the Phillies weakened at the end of a great pitching exhibition today just enough to allow the New York Giants to score two runs and nose out a 3 to 2 victory. He was opposed with equal brilliance by Hub Pruett, Giant lefthander.

Wally Roettger, just acquired from St. Louis, drove in the tying and winning runs in the ninth with a single after Koupal had filled the bases. The first Giant run came in the fifth on a pass and two o fthe three singles the Phillie pitcher allowed in the first eight innings.

Pruett, making his first start for the Giants, allowed just one hit in eight innings but it was a home run by Chuck Klein, which brought in O'Doul, who had been hit by a pitched ball.

The brown colt was caught at the first quarter in :26, three-eighth in :39, half in :52, five-eighths in 1:05, and the three-quarters in 1:17 2-5. Gallant Knight, in training here under Kay Spence, is owned by the Audley Farm and is by Bright Knight out of Ethel Gray.

REDS TURN TRIPLE PLAY IN VICTORY OVER CUBS, 2-1

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O. April 19.—Bennie Frey, Rookie Cincinnati pitcher, obtained from Nashville today, held the slugging cubs to five hits and, backed by brilliant support, defeated Chicago 2 to 1. Frey walked five men and made one wild pitch. The uncontrolled heave permitted Blair to score from third with the Cubs' only run. A triple play featured the Reds' fast fielding. In the third Root was hit and English walked. Blair lined to Frey, who threw to Cuccinello. The latter tagged Root, and Cuccinello then shot to Ford who touched English. Ford's double and Heilmann's pinch single provided the winning run.

U. CITY WINS SIX RACES IN RELAY CARNIVAL

University City won six out of eight races on the program of the first Maplewood relay meet held at Maplewood Field this afternoon, while Maplewood won the other two. Eight schools competed in the event which was a new feature of track athletics in St. Louis County this year.

A cup was awarded to the winning school in each race.

Clayton, Hancock, Normandy, Ritenour, Kirkwood, University City, St. Charles and Maplewood completed.

The summaries:

STEWART HURLS BROWNS TO 7-2 VICTORY OVER SOX

achieved without the benefit of a base hit.

The fifth witnessed an earned marker. O'Rourke singled and advanced on an out by Manush. He finished the circuit on Kress' second double, a hard smash to right field.

Another run without the agency of a base hit blossomed in the seventh. Blue walked. O'Rourke politely sacrificed and Manush was safe when Shires dropped Cissell's throw. Blue scored while Kress was forcing Manush.

Cecil Patrick Caraway, six feet four inches high and seven inches wide, pitched the last two innings. Doubles by Melillo and Gullic netted another St. Louis marker.

Blackburne and Shires Meet.

The Sox had one brief period of prosperity, the sixth. Cissell singled and Reynolds rattled a triple off the scoreboard in left center. Jolley singled to score Reynolds. Shires popped to Kress and Moore hit into a rapid double play started by Kress.

It might be observed in passing that Cissel accepted 10 chances in the field without an error, in addition to making four singles.

Before the game Coach Lena Blackburne and Art Shires, who no longer denominates himself "the Great," were photographed in a friendly pose.

It was cool but about 12,000 fans braved a brisk wind that swept in from the northern east.

Wray's COLUMN

May Need Him, Now.

WILLIAM T. TILDEN'S message from France telling of the breaking up of the French Davis Cup team, the certainty that Lacoste will not compete and the probability that Cochet will be out, puts an entirely new phase on this year's Davis Cup situation.

With Borotra the only remaining French ace, France's monopoly of court laurels will be seriously disputed by more than one nation.

The situation may cause William T. Tilden to relent in his stand not to play for the United States Davis Cup team this year. Tilden, with Cochet and Lacoste out of the picture, remains the greatest tennis player in the world. By way of proving it he took the world professional champion, Karel Kozeluh, over the hurdles to defeat recently.

If Tilden should join the United States team of 1930, there would be a very strong probability that the Americans would reach the challenge round and regain the trophy that France has held in recent years.

Tilden can beat Borotra, when on his game, and any other candidate that France can muster (with the exception of the two aces who are not expected to be available). The American doubles team of Allison and Van Ryn is also a sure shot. Two singles victories and the doubles would restore the big bowl put up by Dwight Davis to the country which originated it.

There is one little rift in this lute. "Big Bill" has already announced his withdrawal from Davis Cup competition and it is unlikely that the United States Lawn Tennis Association will get down on its marrow bones and beg him to change his mind.

There's not much love lost between William and the national tennis officers.

You Can't Beat 'Em.

THIS is the season of the year when the boys with the uneasy bankrolls start to follow the horses.

And that's all they ever do—follow them. You can't get ahead of them, we have found out, after 30 years of earnest trying.

Others have found it out. For example, every handicapper in the country knows that he can't hope to pick more than 40 per cent of the winners, on form. Many of these will be odds-on, so that the outlook for becoming wealthy is very drab.

Statistics covering the 15 best handicappers throughout the country, during the entire winter facing season, disclosed that a $2 bet across the board on each race would have cost the investor from $300 to $1900, according to which handicapper he selected as his guide.

They May Be Right.

BRITISH writers complain that Jackie Berg is being frozen out of a title chance in America. Jackie, it will be recalled, is about the best bit of fighting timber England has sent to the wars since Jimmy Wilde began to fade. He has beaten several of our top-notch men, and he is really entitled to consideration as a first flight candidate for world honors.

Berg has challenged Mandell, but is still on first base. American fighters are getting the call in matches with Mandell, while Berg kicks his heels outside the throne room.

There is some truth to his complaint. Berg has just as good a right to demand a match with Mandell as Singer, Canzoneri, King Tut or others who are in line for a championship match; but no better right.

* * *

Must "Come Across"

THERE are two reasons for the American stand.

The first is a natural hostility to letting foreign fighters break into important money in America before our own fighters have had a chance.

The second is a desire to present our very best lightweight for competition which might see the championship taken abroad.

As to the first explanation: Nearly all foreign fighters get past the Atlantic barrier and into the American limelight only by sharing their profits with American as well as British managers. They are held up at the gates of the country and not allowed to go very far until they have engaged the services of a protector who has "the entree."

As for reason No. 2, Mandell is slipping, and the promoters of the country want to make sure that there is no American lightweight able to beat Mandell before risking Sammy against the Briton.

Hope for Berg—He's Good.

HOWEVER, it won't be long. Berg will get a shot before many months. But in the meantime, in order to live, the kid has to fight. And they are feeding him all the tough hombres in the country. If he comes through the barrage of leather to get a title bout, he will have earned it.

His test, however, is no greater than every American lightweight has to go through before getting a chance at the crown. And promoters have been fooled so often by British and foreign pretenders to greatness that visitors today must prove up before getting the big shot.

RED SOX TAKE DOUBLEHEADER FROM YANKEES, 4-3 AND 7-2

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 18.—The once-mighty New York Yankees fell twice before the humble Boston Red Sox today in the Patriots' day double-header, as the visitors continued to hit weakly. The Red Sox won the morning game, 4 to 3, in 15 innings, then repeated more decisively in the afternoon, winning by a 7 to 2 score.

Horace Lisenbee, who lost all last season's work by a weak arm, pitched 12 innings of the morning game before giving way to Ed Morris. The Yankees got only six hits off the pair. Heving drove in the winnnig run with two out in the fifteenth.

Lou Gehrig hit his first home run of the year in the morning game.

AUFMAN MEETS TUT IN FEATURE; ERRY IN SECOND GO WITH KAISER

The Arena Card

King Tut vs. Pinky Kaufman 10 rounds at 140 pounds).

Peewee Kaiser vs. Lou Terry (10 ounds at 131 pounds).

My Sullivan vs. Jack Horner (10 ounds at 152 pounds).

Tiger Johnny Cline vs. Al Stillan (five rounds at 165 pounds).

Shuffle Callahan vs. Jack Barry five rounds at 165 pounds).

Genio Peru vs. John Schwake five rounds, heavyweights).

Eddie Goldberg vs. Mickey Cumings (five rounds at 152 pounds).

Probable referees—Walter Heiner, main event; Bob Parkinson, Harry Kessler, Harry Cook, Al iest for preliminaries.

Starting time—8:30 p. m. first out.

By W. J. McGoogan.

St. Louis fight fans who have een kicked around in recent boxng shows when they paid good oney to see something which was ot put on view, will have a chance o recover some of their losses at he Arena tomorrow night when lique Malloy, in his third promoional venture in St. Louis will resent 50 rounds of boxing at rices ranging from 50 cents to 5, plus tax.

Malloy has lined up seven bouts hich if records and the men mean nything should provide plenty of ntertainment for the boys who ike to see punchers. There is not bout on the card in which two oxers are pitted against each ther. All are known, not for their efensive skill, but for their ability o wade in and trade wallops.

There are some names on the ard which have long been assoiated with good fights in St. Louis nd out of it. King Tut, Shuffle allahan, Peewee Kaiser, Lou erry, John Schwake, Jackie Horer, Eddie Goldberg, Al Stillman nd Mickey Cummings. All these oys are familiar to local fight ollowers as real punchers rather han as boxers.

Pinky Owns a Wallop.

Pinky Kaufman, who faces King ut in the main event of 10 rounds not so well known here but the ct that he stopped Tut in two ounds proves that Pinky has a allop. Another new one to St. ouis fans will be My (short for yron) Sullivan of St. Paul, who to meet Jackie Horner in a 10-ound event. Sullivan is a clever oxer who owns a punch, while orner, as everyone here knows, is fighter pure and simple. He oesn't know much about boxing t is willing to take a punch to ve one.

It would appear that Jackie is oing out of his class to take on ullivan, but Sullivan has a reputtion for being an in-and-outer, at is, a boxer who looks like a hampion one night and a bum e next, so Horner's handlers gure that if My has one of his d nights, Horner will punch him ll over the ring. Sullivan's manger resents the claim that his an is an in-and-outer, and points his record of 18 victories out of starts as proof that Sullivan is consistent fighter.

Shuffle Callahan, Chicago southaw, who meets Jack Barry in a ve-round skit at 165 pounds, is nly a young man, but he has had world of experience in the ring, ot all of it good, judging from his ap, which is scarred from the unching he has received. But huffle has not taken it all—he an give some, too. They say he ades in and knocks out his oponent or is himself knocked out. ne look at his face is proof that his is true.

Kaiser Battles Terry.

In the semiwindup Johnny Kair and Lou Terry are to meet in a 0-round setto for the city junior ghtweight championship, although e agreement calls for 131 pounds each of them at 3 o'clock. hese two local boys fought not so ng ago and gave a fine exhibition. hey are skillful boxers and, in ddition, each packs a sleep-proucing punch in his right hand.

Another St. Louis boy on the ard is Al Stillman, who has comiled a better record in the ring han any other modern St. Louis oy. Stillman, who is but 23 years f age, has won 33 bouts in about months. He has knocked out s opponent in 25. He is regardd as the best championship prosect this city has produced in a ng time. He meets Tiger Johnny line of Kansas City in a five-round vent. Cline boxed Chuck Heffner n the Arena card when Wiggins ought Carnera, and many ringders thought Cline defeated Heffer. Cline is a good, busy battler, ut Stillman is regarded as being oo powerful.

John Schwake, Webster Groves eavyweight, will help introduce enio Peru (Eugenia Chevriere), outh American, to the St. Louis ublic and possibly to the experince of being knocked out. Peru as the backing of a group of St. ouisans which has been dubbed he "Society Syndicate" because ost of the men in it are socially rominent. They are anxious to e what Peru can do and no doubt hwake will provide a good test ecause John never did anything ut fight once in the ring. Schwake time, in order to live, the kid has to fight. And they are feeding him all the tough hombres in the country. If he comes through the barrage of leather to get a title bout, he will have earned it.

His test, however, is no greater than every American lightweight has to go through before getting a chance at the crown. And promoters have been fooled so often by British and foreign pretenders to greatness that visitors today must prove up before getting the big shot.

SIX ST. LOUIS BOXERS WILL PERFORM IN ARENA FIGHTS, TOMORROW

KAUFMAN MEETS TUT IN FEATURE; TERRY IN SECOND GO WITH KAISER

The Arena Card

King Tut vs. Pinky Kaufman (10 rounds at 140 pounds).

Peewee Kaiser vs. Lou Terry (10 rounds at 131 pounds).

My Sullivan vs. Jack Horner (10 rounds at 152 pounds).

Tiger Johnny Cline vs. Al Stillman (five rounds at 165 pounds).

Shuffle Callahan vs. Jack Barry (five rounds at 165 pounds).

Genio Peru vs. John Schwake (five rounds, heavyweights).

Eddie Goldberg vs. Mickey Cummings (five rounds at 152 pounds).

Probable referees—Walter Heinser, main event; Bob Parkinson, Harry Kessler, Harry Cook, Al Niest for preliminaries.

Starting time—8:30 p. m. first bout.

By W. J. McGoogan.

St. Louis fight fans who have been kicked around in recent boxing shows when they paid good money to see something which was not put on view, will have a chance to recover some of their losses at The Arena tomorrow night when Mique Malloy, in his third promotional venture in St. Louis will present 50 rounds of boxing at prices ranging from 50 cents to $5, plus tax.

Malloy has lined up seven bouts which if records and the men mean anything should provide plenty of entertainment for the boys who like to see punchers. There is not a bout on the card in which two boxers are pitted against each other. All are known, not for their defensive skill, but for their ability to wade in and trade wallops.

There are some names on the card which have long been associated with good fights in St. Louis and out of it. King Tut, Shuffle Callahan, Peewee Kaiser, Lou Terry, John Schwake, Jackie Horner, Eddie Goldberg, Al Stillman and Mickey Cummings. All these boys are familiar to local fight followers as real punchers rather than as boxers.

Pinky Owns a Wallop.

Pinky Kaufman, who faces King Tut in the main event of 10 rounds is not so well known here but the fact that he stopped Tut in two rounds proves that Pinky has a wallop. Another new one to St. Louis fans will be My (short for Myron) Sullivan of St. Paul, who is to meet Jackie Horner in a 10-round event. Sullivan is a clever boxer who owns a punch, while Horner, as everyone here knows, is a fighter pure and simple. He doesn't know much about boxing but is willing to take a punch to give one.

It would appear that Jackie is going out of his class to take on Sullivan, but Sullivan has a reputation for being an in-and-outer, that is, a boxer who looks like a champion one night and a bum the next, so Horner's handlers figure that if My has one of his bad nights, Horner will punch him all over the ring. Sullivan's manager resents the claim that his man is an in-and-outer, and points to his record of 18 victories out of 19 starts as proof that Sullivan is a consistent fighter.

Shuffle Callahan, Chicago southpaw, who meets Jack Barry in a five-round skit at 165 pounds, is only a young man, but he has had a world of experience in the ring, not all of it good, judging from his map, which is scarred from the punching he has received. But Shuffle has not taken it all—he can give some, too. They say he wades in and knocks out his opponent or is himself knocked out. One look at his face is proof that this is true.

Kaiser Battles Terry.

In the semiwindup Johnny Kaiser and Lou Terry are to meet in a 10-round setto for the city junior lightweight championship, although the agreement calls for 131 pounds for each of them at 3 o'clock. These two local boys fought not so long ago and gave a fine exhibition. They are skillful boxers and, in addition, each packs a sleep-producing punch in his right hand.

Another St. Louis boy on the card is Al Stillman, who has compiled a better record in the ring than any other modern St. Louis boy. Stillman, who is but 23 years of age, has won 33 bouts in about months. He has knocked out his opponent in 25. He is regarded as the best championship prospect this city has produced in a long time. He meets Tiger Johnny Cline of Kansas City in a five-round event. Cline boxed Chuck Heffner on the Arena card when Wiggins fought Carnera, and many ringsiders thought Cline defeated Heffner. Cline is a good, busy battler, but Stillman is regarded as being too powerful.

John Schwake, Webster Groves heavyweight, will help introduce Genio Peru (Eugenia Chevriere), South American, to the St. Louis public and possibly to the experience of being knocked out. Peru has the backing of a group of St. Louisans which has been dubbed the "Society Syndicate" because most of the men in it are socially prominent. They are anxious to see what Peru can do and no doubt Schwake will provide a good test because John never did anything but fight once in the ring. Schwake has a convincing punch and if Peru can't take it, it will be just too bad.

Fought a Fine Battle.

Although this wealth of material will follow the curtain raiser, Eddie Goldberg and Mickey Cummings should put the crowd in a good humor right at the outset if they fight in their five round turmoil as they did at the Coliseum recently. Eddie and Mickey fought a vicious bout on the lamented card at the Coliseum last Tuesday night with Goldberg gaining the verdict. Cummings although knocked down several times stayed to the finish in a fine exhibition of gameness.

This will probably be Malloy's final show of the season here and he is anxious to leave fond recollection in the minds of fans so he will be able to get off to a good start next fall. He claims he is paying the boxers $15,000.

The 3000 seats which will be sold for 50 cents each, go on sale at The Arena tomorrow night at 6 o'clock. In addition there will be 3995 seats at $1 each, 4534 at $2, 2620 at $3, 840 at $4 and 2004 at $5. All these prices are subject to a tax of 10 per cent.

Most of the boxers have been working out at local gymnasiums for the past few days and are in condition for their bouts. Malloy has a boxer or two in reserve to step in and take the place of anyone should an accident occur before time for the start.

WESLEYAN BAGS A GAME ON WAY HERE TO PLAY WASHINGTON

The Illinois Wesleyan baseball team of Bloomington, Ill., which calls here tomorrow for a game with Washington University, gained a victory yesterday at Carlinville, over Blackburn College by the score of 10-2. Hirst, Wesleyan pitcher, fanned 17 Blackburn batters and but for two errors in the ninth, would have scored a shutout.

Wesleyan players stole 13 bases.

M'GREW, MACK'S LAST HOLDOUT, IS SIGNED

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—John F. McGrew, Connie Mack's remaining holdout, arrived yesterday and signed a 1930 contract with the Athletics.

McGrew, brawny right hand pitcher who was with Omaha in the Western League last year, was brought to town by Barney Burch, president of the Omaha Club, and introduced to Manager Mack in the tower office at Shibe Park.

The recruit was the outstanding pitcher in the Western League last year, winning 24 games and losing 10. He is six feet two, weighs 186 and is 24 years old.

CARDS LOSE, 5-4, IN TENTH AFTER TYING SCORE IN 8th

out pitcher was what the Cardinals needed and Johnson usually is effective against the Pirates. He pitched at least eight strikes to Comorosky in that tenth-inning pinch, but the Pirate fouled them off until he was able to send a long fly to Fisher.

Wildness handicaped Sherdel during the 1929 season and in exhibition games in the South this spring, but against the Pirates he had no difficulty in finding the plate. He walked only two men, whereas he struck out six.

Red Bird Notes

CARMEN HILL, eager to prove that Barney Dreyfus made a mistake when he released him, will pitch against his forme teammates this afternoon in the second game of the series. Brame or Meine will work for Pittsburg.

Pie Traynor, who has been suffering from iritis, an eye infection, is expected to return to duty with the Pirates when they return home after the games with the Cardinals.

Lloyd Waner was about ready to return to duty after a long rest following an appendicitis operation, but while getting out of a taxicab at a St. Louis hotel yesterday, the door was slammed on his right hand and he will be out for several more days.

The attendance was announced as 8500 paid. Several hundred girls, between the ages of nine and 15, attended as guests of Sam Breadon, a regular Saturday afternoon courtesy.

Paul Waner and Comorosky singled to start the third inning, but Jimmy Wilson picked Waner off second and Comorosky was out stealling. Sherdel then fanned Suhr to show his appreciation of the support.

The veteran Ira Flagstead is playing center for the Pirates and Tommy Engle, from Memphis, is substituting for Traynor. Gus Suhr, the new first sacker, hit 51 home runs in the Pacific Coast League last year.

Before the game a novel gift was presented to Manager Jewel Ens by members of his American Legion post. It was a traveling bag.

COLUMBIA CREW DEFEATS NAVY AND M. I. T.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 19.—Columbia, chief of the college crews of last season, rowing like fiends, outlasted a desperate Navy eight here this afternoon to start another season, a quarter of a length ahead of the Middies in the first big triangular meet of the season over the Henley distance.

Four lengths behind the Navy came the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the heaviest group in the three-cornered event, never threatening.

Rowing behind a stiff wind, the Columbia crew finished in 6 minutes, 35 seconds, exceptionally fast time, leaving the breeze out of the question.

Despite the Columbia victory in the varsity affair, the younger Glendon had taken the two minor races of the regatta from his father.

In the first race the Navy plebe eight held nearly two lengths lead over the Lions, the only other entry, while Massachusetts Tech and Navy finished in order to lead the New Yorkers in the junior varsity and 150-pound events.

E. St. Louis High Captures Meet

Taking every place in the high jump, the final event of the afternoon, the Flyers of East St. Louis High School yesterday afternoon won a triangular track meet from Collinsville and Belleville at Jones Park in East St. Louis, by one point. East St. Louis scored 44 points; Collinsville, 43, and Belleville, 26.

Byers, Dixon and Shepherd of East St. Louis tied for first in the high jump with a height of 63 inches. Parker and Shelton of Collinsville ranked first and second for individual honors, scoring 15 and 10 points apiece. Collinsville took the 880-yard relay with a mark of 1:38:7.

The summaries:

WEBSTER TRACK TEAM UPSETS SOLDAN IN MEET

Coach Charles A. Robert's Webster Groves High School track team won their second dual meet of the season yesterday when it unexpectedly turned back the city Soldan outfit, 135¼ points to 98¾, 67¾ points to 54¾ and the juniors of the Webster team won in their respective divisions, the seniors by 67¼ points to 64¾ and the juniors by 68 to 44. The result in the senior division was uncertain until the last few events, which Webster took easily; however, the juniors led in the scoring all of the time.

As in Webster's meet with St. Louis U. High last week, Paul Sibley was high individual scorer. He made 23 points with four firsts and a second. The firsts were in the javelin throw, the 880-yard run, the discus throw and the broad jump. The second came in the 440-yard dash. The 880 was his easiest first of the meet, the closest man being about 25 yards behind. The discus mark of 107 feet, 6 inches was 10 feet better than Bill Freschi, second. His 20 feet in the broad jump was followed by one of the surprises of the meet—Devine's second at 19 feet, 4 inches.

In second place was Bill Freschi with 13¼ points, and Cook of Soldan was close behind with 13. Freschi gained only one first, in the 100-yard dash. Cook took two firsts, an easy one in the 220-yard low hurdles and the other in the shot put.

CLOCKERS TIME LELAND IN 9.4 IN KANSAS RELAYS

souri quartet, although it won, ran the mile in two-tenths of a second slower time than the college mile.

A 200-Foot Javelin Toss.

Hammond of Southern Methodist University hurled the javelin more than 200 feet—an excellent toss—but he was still nearly four feet shy of the mark established in 1926 by John Kuck.

Tom Warne and Lee Sentman were the only individuals to repeat from last year, although in 1929 Warne shared his new meet pole vault mark with Otterness of Minnesota.

In the two-mile college relay the Pittsburg Teachers College entered two teams and won first and second, the winer setting a new meet record.

Kansas came the closest to making a clean sweep in one event when it won three of the four places in the discus.

THE SUMMARIES

UNIVERSITY HALF-MILE RELAY—Won by Michigan (Smith, Seymour, Campbell, Tolan); second, Illinois; third, Kansas; fourth, Chicago. Time, 1m. 26.7s.

PUBLIC SCHOOL BASEBALL TEAMS TO START TITLE RACE TOMORROW

Blow School, present Public School League baseball champion, and holder of the Post-Dispatch trophy, will start the defense of its title tomorrow afternoon, when the campaign will open in the public parks. Blow will oppose Carondelet in its first game of the season at Carondelet No. 1.

In this season's competition, a total of 46 teams will compete in eight groups. Games this season will be played at Carondelet, Tower Grove, Forest, Fairgrounds, O'Fallon and Sherman Parks.

Madison, Benton, Bryan Hill and other former holders of the Post-Dispatch trophy will again compete in the championship tournament.

As in previous seasons, the Post-Dispatch trophy will go to the team winning the title, while the players of the team will receive medals donated by the Post-Dispatch.

Only three Negro schools entered the competition and as a result it was decided to have no play in this group this year.

The opening week's schedule:

RECRUIT PITCHERS GAIN DETROIT 6-4 VICTORY OVER INDIANS

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, April 19.—Tiger sluggers gave Elam Hogsett a commanding lead early in the first game of their series with Cleveland here and the big Cherokee coasted to a 6 to 4 victory, although batted freely after the first four innings, during which the Indians went hitless.

Bucky Harris sent Whitlow Wyatt, another recruit hurler, into the game with one out in the ninth when Hogsett appeared to be weakening. Cleveland outhit the Tigers but left 11 runners on base.

THISTLE FYRN WINS CAMDEN HANDICAP FROM NIATO AT LEXINGTON

LONG RUN IS SECOND IN 6TH RACE AND PAYS $227.46 FOR $2

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 19.—Thistle Fyrn, from Collins' stable, proved the best of the eight starters at the barrier in the Camden Handicap, feature event on today's card. Niato was second, with Patricia Marian third. The heavily played Stars and Bars was seventh.

The race had a value of $3110 to the winner, while she paid her backers $13.88 for a $2 ticket.

Thistle Fyrn was away well but lost ground on two turns, came strong when straightened out in the stretch drive and was up to win handily by a length. Niato was much used forcing the pace during the early stage and crowded back coming into the stretch closed strong to take the place by half a length from Patricia Marian.

The weather was cloudy and the track was fast.

W. S. Dudley's 3-year-old gelding, Ray Blades, making his first start, won the sixth event in a drive from C. C. Hiaett's Long Run, with Ritte and Corcoran's Sour Mash third. Ray Blades, ridden by Willie Garner, paid $19.98 for $2 to win. Long Run, which was making his first start of the year, refunded $227.46 for $2 to place and $97.05 to show. Sour Mash paid $38.40 to show.

Long Run made 11 starts last year, winning one race and finishing third two times, while Sour Mash was victorious in one of 10 starts.

L. Pichon was the riding star of the day, piloting three winners. He was astride Bogan, the favorite, in the third race, Thistle Fyrn, in the feature, and Busy in the closing race of the day.

Betty Derr, half sister of the 1929 Kentucky Derby winner, won the second event on the card, a maiden race for 2-year-old fillies. Betty Derr, by Sir Galahad III, out of Uncle's Lassie, won from Cherry May, owned by J. J. Greeley, and W. C. Goodloe's Bewitching Eyes. Betty Derr, owned by H. P. Gardner, owner of Clyde Van Dusen, ran the half mile in :48 2-5 and paid $4.30.

Bill Morris, star of the Fairgrounds meeting at New Orleans, captured the fourth event on the program for his owners, Knebelkamp and Morris, but paid only $3 for $2 to win. Bill Morris defeated Dick Weidel and Beige over a fast track, making his record now five victories and one defeat.

Pennate, away poorly, straightened into racing promptly and perfectly handled reached contention with rare speed, but was forced to race on the outside, gained command in last furlong and just managed to outstay Glidelia. Latter moved up fast, leaving back stretch, and fought it out courageously. Hieaway raced forwardly and continued with good energy with the closing test. Syika had good speed and held on well.

$2 mutuels paid: Pennate, win $5, place $3.50, show $2.60; Glidelia, place $3.80, show $2.70; Hieaway, show $2.80.

SECOND RACE—$1400, claiming, 4-year-olds and up, six furlongs: Start, good; won, driving. Went to post, 3:11. At post, 4 minutes. Winner, bc4 by Madrigalian-Landstock. Trainer W. G. Merion. Time, :24, :49 2-5, 1:17. Value to winner, $1000, $225, $125, $50.

Full Dress, rated along in nearest pursuit of Mambassa, displayed latter when reaching far turn, was taken in hand there to finish with much in reserve. Politen came through on inside when making his challenge, but was unable to keep pace with the winner. Zahan could not make up any ground. Mombassa dropped back after going six furlongs.

$2 mutuels paid: Full Dress, win, $6.50; place, $3.70; show, $2.90. Politen, place, $3.40; show, $2.50. Zahn, show, $3.20.

FOURTH RACE—$1200; claiming; 4-year-olds and up; mile and one-sixteenth. Start good; won ridden out. Went to post at 4:16; at post one minute. Winner ch g 1 by China Cock-Chrysalis II. Trainer, H. Jacobs. Time: :25; :52 2-5; 1:18 3-5; 1:46 2-5; 1:54 1-5. Value to winner $850, $200 $100 $50.

Prickly Heat, sent into a forward position, going to the first turn, reached Boyish Bob gradually when called on, took command in the last furlong and came away under mild pressure. Boyish Bob disposed of Jane Rinehart without effort, was unable to get clear and weakened when the winner drew on even terms. Ruban Rouge, a slow beginner, finished gamely to outstay Fasciste.

$2 mutuels paid: Prickly heat, win $3.30; place $2.50; show $2.30. Boyish Bob, place $3.80, show $2.70; Ruban Rouge, show $3.50.

Cottage Boy worked his way up on outside, came wide into stretch, withstood a trifle driving to outfinish Fair Gold. Latter reached Odd Fellow II when leaving back stretch, gained brief lead when swinging for home and fought it out stubbornly. Odd Fellow II shook off Potent, saved ground, but faltered in closing test. Red Cross Princess had no excuse. Lucie Ann and Somerset had no chance with the start.

$2 mutuels paid: Cottage Boy, win, $19.40; place, $10.10; show, $7. Fair Gold, place, $6.90; show, $5.70. Odd Fellow II, show, $12.

H. D. "CURLEY" BROWN TO QUIT RACING GAME

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—With the ending of the Tanforan meet here today came announcement from H. D. "Curley" Brown, well-known sportsman and racetrack figure, that he has bidden good-by to the game with which he has been associated more than half a century.

Due to illness, Brown said he has definitely decided to retire, and next week will put his Brown Shasta stock farm, 72 miles north of Redding, Cal., up for sale.

First a racetrack builder and then a horse owner and breeder, Brown has followed the thoroughbreds 54 years. In 1890 he built the Clear Lodge track in Montana, later constructing the Laurel Park track in New Orleans. The Arlington track in Chicago and the track at Havana, Cuba, also were built under his supervision.

Among the better known horses bred by him are Shasta Gold, Shasta Bullet and Shasta Lad.

Tigers Release Shea.

DETROIT, Mich., April 19.—Mervyn Shea, regular catcher for the Detroit Tigers for the past three years, today was released to the Milwaukee club of the American Association. Shea came to the Tigers in 1927 from the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League.

"FUTURE BOOK" PLAY GOES TO DESERT LIGHT

Further evidence that followers of racing consider the Kentucky Derby of this year an unusually open question is found in the fact that the odds laid against some of the 10 or 15 outstanding contenders fluctuate sharply from week to week.

As an instance of the sharp changing of odds, Tom Kearney today quotes E. R. Bradley's Buckeye Poet at 40 to 1, whereas a week ago he was posted at 100 to 1, which almost put him in the "write your own ticket" category. There is no very obvious reason for this slice, but it is probable that Buckeye Poet has been showing some unusual speed in his workouts at the Idle Hour Farm.

Another illustration of the rapid rise and fall of quotations against the favorites is had in Desert Light, which will represent Mrs. Virginia Fair Vanderbilt. He has fallen from 15 down to 10 to 1. This colt has arrived at Maryland fit and ready to be pointed for the Preakness, which is run one week in advance of the Kentucky Derby. He is equal favorite with Spinach and Gallant Fox in the Preakness at 4 to 1 and there is so much Eastern money in evidence for him that his price in the Kentucky classic has been affected.

High Foot's odds took another slight drop from 8 to 6 to 1. Tom Kearney, the only "future book" operator in the West, reports that the absence of an overwhelming favorite from the field this year has greatly stimulated the speculation on the May 17 classic. The future book wagering, Kearney says, is three times heavier than in any preceding year. This is partly due to the fact that there is no big "book" in operation in Chicago this season. Tom Shaw, in New York, and Kearney, in St. Louis, practically have the field to themselves. The number of bookmakers who could profitably conduct a book on the Derby has been greatly diminished since Black Gold won in 1924. It was necessary then for the operators to pay out huge sums and few were able or willing to face the music. Kearney and Shaw were among the rare exceptions

MOLLOY MADE MANAGER OF AUTO RACING TRACK

Louis E. ("Ed") Montgomery, president of the Greater St. Louis Speedway Association, Inc., yesterday announced the appointment of Mart Molloy, who was director of exhibits at the opening of The Arena, last fall, as manager of the automobile racing plant nearing completion at Upper Creve Coeur Lake, St. Louis County. Montgomery stated it has been decided to have three speed events on every Sunday's program, the shortest 10 miles and the longest 50, with purses for the three races exceeding $2000.

The track, which is on a 96-acre site, at the Creve Coeur Mill road at the Rock Island tracks, near the new City Waterworks, 12 miles west of the city limits, will be completed in three weeks and will be opened the latter part of next month.

The grandstand and bleachers will accommodate 20,000 persons. A 40-foot safety zone of soft earth circles the racing course.

HORSESHOE PITCHERS TO HOLD A MEETING

A meeting to organize the Fairground Division No. 1 of the Municipal Horseshoe Pitching League will be held next Thursday evening at 7:30 at Sherman Park Center. While the league has consisted of six teams for the past two years, an effort will be made to increase the number of teams to eight.

The Justin T. Flints, two-time champions; Sunset Burial Parks, Angelica Autos, Liberty Bell Oil, Larr Coal Co. and the Free Junior Wet Wash teams which made up the league last year are again entered this season.

The season is scheduled to start Sunday, May 4.

Many of the players from the various teams also intend to compete in the open horseshoe tournament which will be held in conjunction with the Sportsman's Show at The Arena the week of May 12.

ATOH, A NEW TEAM MEMBER IS PLAYER OF REAL PROMISE

By William T. Tilden II.

BEAULIEU, France, April 19.— starting a series of articles on e teams which must be considered as possible challengers of ance in the Davis Cup, I suppose e should start with America, last ar's challenger, but I prefer to rite first of the outstanding play- strength in the European zone fore taking up the United States. ere are four real threats in the uropean zone, any one of which ay reach the interzone final. ese are Japan, Italy, England d Australia. I will write first of pan.

The Japanese team consists of kachei Harada, Yoshiro, Ohta, meo Abe and the new star, Sah, first name undiscovered by e. This is a group of seasoned and experienced players with the exception of Satoh.

Tilden.

"Takey" Harada made his first appearance in Davis Cup play in 1924. He represented Japan in 1925, 1926 and 1927. It was in 1926 that he first proved his right to be considered among the great players in the world when he beat little Bill Johnston Newport and followed this up defeating both Cochet and Laoste in Davis Cup matches. This emed to be the high point of Hada's career, for the following ar he went into a slump, from hich he did not recover until this inter. He did not play on the panese Davis Cup team of 1928 1929, but last December he once ore beat Henri Cochet during the ip of the French players to Jan. Harada was himself again.

During the lapse of two years nce I had seen him, I found he ad increased the power of his ervice and improved his volley. oday Harada is a fine all-court ayer. He drives with terrific ower; forehand and backhand. He about the hardest hitter in the ame. His service is speedy and arries good spin. His volleying still uncertain, but far better an it was. Overhead, he is sound nd severe. Harada uses the peuliar unorthodox grip of the Japase stars, and his ground strokes, articularly his forehand, carry exggerated top spin. Harada is a ossible point winner for Japan ainst any team. He should win least one, if not two, singles in ch tie.

Satoh Shows Promise.

The second singles position is ill uncertain, but lies between atoh and Ohta. Personally, I onsider Satoh decidedly superior. hta is a baseline player with the aggerated top spin ground strokes f his national style, a player of reat courage, resource and stamna, but so limited in stroke equipent that I cannot see him a point inner against teams like England, taly or Australia. His limitations re too definite, his weaknesses too asy to exploit.

I expect to see Satoh play the econd singles. Satoh, in my opinon, is the greatest potential player f any Japanese I have ever seen beause his style is classic, clean cut, lmost American or French in its troke production. He has none of he unorthodox grip or exaggerated op spin of his teammates. He is stroke player of ease, grace and emarkable subtlety. His service is well-placed, average-paced slice f reliability but not great offenive strength. Both his forehand nd back hand are accurate, flat rives, which Satoh uses with conummate skill. He disguises his irection brilliantly. His volleying sound, not particularly severe, t adequate, while overhead he is agnificent.

I see no weakness to Satoh's troke equipment. He lacks the unishing power of Harada, but his ame has far more variety. It is a ore modern style. One cannot yet ell what he will show in the strain f Davis Cup. I have played against im twice in doubles on the Riviera nd found him a cool, dangerous ghting opponent. He is a man f great physical strength, apparntly tireless and of most remarkble quickness. I have been treendously impressed by Satoh, alhough he has not found his true ame in the Riviera. I would not e surprised to see Satoh win one r both singles in the Davis Cup gainst any team in the European one.

Abe Best in Doubles.

The last member of the Japanese team, Tameo Abe, is the finest doubles player of any Japanese. Abe is not a great singles player. I would place him behind all three of his teammates, but in doubles I believe he is the best. This is due to his magnificent volleying, crushing overhead and his clever use of ort angle shots in returning serve. There is a good old maxim in

JAPAN WILL PROVE REAL THREAT IN DAVIS CUP SERIES, TILDEN SAYS

SATOH, A NEW TEAM MEMBER IS PLAYER OF REAL PROMISE

By William T. Tilden II.

BEAULIEU, France, April 19.—In starting a series of articles on the teams which must be considered as possible challengers of France in the Davis Cup, I suppose one should start with America, last year's challenger, but I prefer to write first of the outstanding playing strength in the European zone before taking up the United States. There are four real threats in the European zone, any one of which may reach the interzone final. These are Japan, Italy, England and Australia. I will write first of Japan.

The Japanese team consists of Takachei Harada, Yoshiro, Ohta, Tameo Abe and the new star, Satoh, first name undiscovered by me. This is a group of seasoned and experienced players with the exception of Satoh.

"Takey" Harada made his first appearance in Davis Cup play in 1924. He represented Japan in 1925, 1926 and 1927. It was in 1926 that he first proved his right to be considered among the great players in the world when he beat little Bill Johnston at Newport and followed this up by defeating both Cochet and Lacoste in Davis Cup matches. This seemed to be the high point of Harada's career, for the following year he went into a slump, from which he did not recover until this winter. He drives with terrific power, forehand and backhand. He is about the hardest hitter in the game. His service is speedy and carries good spin. His volleying is still uncertain, but far better than it was. Overhead, he is sound and severe. Harada uses the peculiar unorthodox grip of the Japanese stars, and his ground strokes, particularly his forehand, carry exaggerated top spin. Harada is a possible point winner for Japan against any team. He should win at least one, if not two, singles in each tie.

Satoh Shows Promise.

The second singles position is still uncertain, but lies between Satoh and Ohta. Personally, I consider Satoh decidedly superior. Ohta is a baseline player with the exaggerated top spin ground strokes of his national style, a player of great courage, resource and stamina, but so limited in stroke equipment that I cannot see him a point winner against teams like England, Italy or Australia. His limitations are too definite, his weaknesses too easy to exploit.

I expect to see Satoh play the second singles. Satoh, in my opinion, is the greatest potential player of any Japanese I have ever seen because his style is classic, clean cut, almost American or French in its stroke production. He has none of the unorthodox grip or exaggerated top spin of his teammates. He is a stroke player of ease, grace and remarkable subtlety. His service is a well-placed, average-paced slice of reliability but not great offensive strength. Both his forehand and back hand are accurate, flat drives, which Satoh uses with consummate skill. He disguises his direction brilliantly. His volleying is sound, not particularly severe, but adequate, while overhead he is magnificent.

I see no weakness to Satoh's stroke equipment. He lacks the punishing power of Harada, but his game has far more variety. It is a more modern style. One cannot yet tell what he will show in the strain of Davis Cup. I have played against him twice in doubles on the Riviera and found him a cool, dangerous fighting opponent. He is a man of great physical strength, apparently tireless and of most remarkable quickness. I have been tremendously impressed by Satoh, although he has not found his true game in the Riviera. I would not be surprised to see Satoh win one or both singles in the Davis Cup against any team in the European zone.

Abe Best in Doubles.

The last member of the Japanese team, Tameo Abe, is the finest doubles player of any Japanese. Abe is not a great singles player. I would place him behind all three of his teammates, but in doubles I believe he is the best. This is due to his magnificent volleying, crushing overhead and his clever use of short angle shots in returning service. There is a good old maxim in the tennis world that any Japanese team is a mark in doubles, but I believe this year will prove a very different story. I have twice played Harada and Satoh on the Riviera and twice met Abe with other partners, and can say that neither team proved easy. Harada is not a good doubles player, but certainly Abe is and Satoh is close behind him.

If the Japanese who, for some reason, are still uncertain about the doubles team, pair Abe with Satoh, then they have a combination which may win points against any team in the Davis Cup. I believe Abe and Satoh would have at least an even chance if not better, against either Morpurgo and Gaslini of Italy, or Gregory and Collins of England. Only Crawford and Hopman, or Moon and Willard of Australia, have the edge on them in the European zone.

To sum up my impressions of Japan's chances to reach the interzone final of the challenge round, I would say that if they play Harada and Satoh in singles and Abe and Satoh in doubles, they have an excellent chance to come through. If, on the other hand, Ohta is used in the singles instead of Satoh, or Abe is omitted from the doubles, then I believe the chances are against the Japanese winning the European zone. It seems to me that Satoh is the pivotal player of the Japanese team.

One Filly That May Shatter Precedent

ALCIBIADES.

DOWN THE STRETCH

Alcibiades, outstanding filly contender for the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, will get a real test Wednesday, when she goes to the post in the Kentucky Oaks at Lexington. There are 47 entries, but few serious threats. J Haughton's Kincsen may cause the favorite some trouble.

Vanderpool, unbeaten in five straight races, is being pointed for another stake in the East. Trainer McDaniel has been sending him through mud and slop, getting him primed for the $10,000 Aberdeen Stakes, to be run Wednesday. If Prince d'Amour, conqueror of Bill Morris, starts, it will be a real race, not a walkover.

• • •

Ben A. Jones, breeder of thoroughbreds, who has made Parnell, Mo., famous across the land, has a bunch of 2-year-olds quartered at the Riverside track, ready for the opening of the spring meeting. Riverside, incidentally, is in Missouri, and so is St. Louis. Racing will start at Riverside the last week in May.

• • •

Horses are literally arriving by carloads at Fairmount. Here are a few of the shipments that arrived within the past few days: T. E. Christ with three, Curtain Call, Ball Gee and Sentry Lass; Vic Gallo with several, including Godiva, The Major, Indian Guide, Rube Samuelson, Nervator and others; Art Gaignard, with Sea Rocket, McTinkle and Good Shepherd.

• • •

Julius Reeder, racing secretary at Fairmount, calls attention to the fact that a score or more of good handicap horses will be here during the meeting opening May 10. Here are some of the more prominent horses: Brown Wisdom, My Dandy, Gallant Knight, Wizardry, Old Dutch, Extreme, Uncommon Gold, Flag Bearer, War Instigator, Stepalong, Genuine and Bocaratone.

Collinsville Loses, 6-3.

CHESTER, Ill., April 19.—Collinsville went down to defeat to Menard on the Penitentiary grounds here this afternoon, 6 to 3. The only home run of the game was scored by Brewer for Menard.

Alcibiades Rates High Off Her Race With Desert Light

| | | 1st. | 2nd. | 3rd. | Unp. | Won. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| ALCIBIADES | Supremus—Regal Roman .... | 4 | 1 | 0 | 2 | $17,950 |

Owner—Hal Price Headley.
Trainer—W. W. Taylor.
Stakes—Won Clipsetta Stakes at Latonia; Won Debutante Stakes at Churchill Downs; Second in Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes at Churchill Downs.

THE chief reason why the fillies are being rated higher than usual in the Kentucky Derby field this year is the presence of Hal Price Headley's Alcibiades in the group. She had a fine two-year-old racing season and now she is working in remarkable fashion at Lexington, being pointed for the May 17 classic.

When one considers that Desert Light is one of the early choices for the Derby at 10 to 1, the fact should come to mind that thereby the Headley filly is a pretty sharp miss. Desert Light defeated Alcibiades by a head in the last Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes. It is off that race that Desert Light got his present high rating.

In that mile test Alcibiades was ridden by 14-year-old Verlyn Smith. Desert Light was ridden by Pete Walls, one of the good riders of the country, who put up a much better finish than did young Smith, whose mount swerved at the crucial point of the race.

Alcibiades was mildly raced last season and until her engagements in the Breeders Futurity at Lexington, she was unbeaten, having won four starts over such as Pansy Walker, Lucile, Thistle Ann, Wild Denise and Ma Yerkes. Outside of Galaday, there were no better juvenile fillies than these in the West last season.

In the Breeders Futurity, Alcibiades was perhaps the chief sufferer from the terrific jamming soon after the start in that race, and it was no wonder she was beaten eight lengths by Gallant Knight. To those who watched her closely, her effort was nevertheless impressive in the Futurity at Lexington.

From that unlucky performance, Alcibiades went to Churchill Downs for her epochal battle with Desert Light in which she led until a stride or two from the finish, and only bowed to the Fair Stable racer after one of the warmest stretch battles ever seen at the historical old Louisville course. Third in that race was Gallant Knight, and he was five lengths further back.

Alcibiades then went to Laurel to close her season in the Selima Stakes, in which she failed to flash any of the smart speed that characterized her previous races. She completed the season with four victories and a second in seven starts, and earnings of $17,950, most of which came from her triumphs in the Debutante and Clipsetta Stakes at Churchill Downs and Latonia, respectively.

NEXT—ALL UPSET.

Concordia Plays Iowa Tomorrow

The Concordia Seminary baseball team will play Iowa University of Iowa City, Ia., tomorrow afternoon at the Concordia Field at the Seminary campus on De Mun avenue. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

The Big Ten team comes to St. Louis with a veteran lineup and several victories so far this season, the Missouri University Tigers being among the victims of the Hawkeyes.

The same Concordia team will take the field that defeated Millikin University of Decatur, Ill., in the two games that opened the Preachers' season last week-end. Gus Tschaeschula, Concordia's star pitcher for the past three seasons, has drawn the hurling assignment. Ernie Spitzenfeil will do the catching.

The Concordia infield will be made up of Bill Reuter at first base, Ernie Dobblestein at second base, Capt. Les Frerking at shortstop and Herb Etzler at third base. In the outfield Steinbeck will play left and bat in the clean-up position; Gesswein will work in center and Gross will play right.

Wants 3-Game Series.

The American Beauty nine, one of Kansas City's strongest semi-pro baseball teams, is endeavoring to arrange a three-game series with a leading St. Louis semi-pro team to be played here July 4, 5 and 6. Managers of St. Louis teams that are interested have been asked to write the Kansas City team's manager, George Cnow, 4508 Pasio avenue, Kansas City.

MOORE AND FINNEGAN TO MEET IN AMATEUR BOUT AT OVERLAND

Farrell Moore of the Tower A. C., who wears the Mississippi Valley Athletic Association welterweight crown, and Bill Finnegan of the South Broadway A. C., have signed articles to meet in one of the special matches on Wednesday night's amateur boxing card at the Knights of Columbus hall, 2400 Woodson road, in Overland, St. Louis County.

Moore, who is a protege of Barney McCarthy. He was the "dark horse" entrant in the recent Mississippi Valley tournament, but he won all his matches with ease.

In another special number, Dan Durso, Olympian A. C. featherweight, will take on George West, the hard-hitting South Broadway A. C. mauler. Durso is one of the most experienced amateur fighters in this district. He is very shifty and he should serve as a worthy opponent for West.

In a recent meeting in Dupo, Ill., Moore shaded Finnegan.

Frank Doxey of the Olympian A. C., who holds the Mississippi Valley flyweight championship, will be used in one of the star bouts if a suitable foe can be found.

Five special matches and three preliminaries will make up the complete program, according to Matchmaker Wilsman, who stated that Bob Parkinson would referee.

Hurlers to Entertain.

The St. Louis Hurling Club, composed of Irishmen who like to indulge in the favorite game of their native land, will hold an entertainment at St. Mark's Hall, Academy avenue and Page boulevard tonight.

FULTON AGAIN WINS LITTLE TEN TRACK MEET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 19.—The Fulton High School Hornets successfully defended their 1929 "Little Ten" conference track and field title here this afternoon by winning the seventh annual Central Missouri High School Activities Association meet, scoring a total of 32 points to finish by a safe margin ahead of Missouri Military Academy of Mexico, Mo., in second place with 25½ points.

In winning the title for the second time in two years, the Fulton squad took only two firsts, but bolstered its score by a liberal annexation of seconds and thirds throughout the 13 events. Standings of the other schools are as follows: Missouri School for Deaf of Fulton, 19; Moberly High School, 18½; Columbia High School, 17½; Boonville High School, 11; Jefferson City High School, 10; Fayette High School, 8; and California High School, 1½.

Cramer of the Missouri School for Deaf, with firsts in the 220 and 440 yard dashes, and Payne of Boonville High School, with victories in the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles, finished in a tie for high scoring honors with 10 points each.

Despite almost perfect track conditions, no records were broken. The meet today served as a qualifying meet for the State interscholastic championships here May 3. One record was equaled, Cramer of Missouri for Deaf stepping the quarter-mile in 52.2 seconds to equal the mark made by E. Hall of Fulton last year.

The summaries:

440-YARD DASH—Won by Cramer, M. S. D.; second, Hays, Moberly; third, Kraper, M. M. A. Tony Fulton and Burcham, Fayette (tie). Time 52.2s. (Equals record of E. Hall, Fulton, 1929)

Roosevelt Star Will Compete in McKendree Meet

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEBANON, Ill., April 19.—The thirteenth annual McKendree College interscholastic track and field meet will be held here next Saturday. According to the director of the prep classic, Glen Filley, entries are pouring in, and indications now point to a far better meet than previously held. At least 200 high schools from this part of the State, and from Missouri, will send some 600 athletes.

The meet is likely to be the last. Indications at the last meeting of the National High School Association pointed toward a ban on meets conducted under the auspices of colleges.

The coming week will be spent in improving the track and field. Several thousand dollars have been spent in grading the track, adding new layers of cinders, and in erecting bleachers.

Many of the St. Louis high schools, especially Roosevelt, Beaumont and Soldan, have manifested a deep interest in the meet, and all are expected to send strong teams. Roosevelt will enter the ace of St. Louis prep 440-yard dash men in Gorman Broe, who incidently broke the McKendree interscholastic record last year.

GROBMEIER TO REPORT HERE TOMORROW FOR BOUT WITH SHIKAT

Fred Grobmeier, the wiry Iowa matman, who meets Dick Shikat German heavyweight star, in the main event of Thursday night's wrestling show at the Coliseum, is scheduled to report in St. Louis tomorrow morning to finish training in daily exhibition workout at the National Gymnasium. George Tragos, local heavyweight, who probably will appear in the Coliseum curtain raiser, and George McDowell, St. Louis University student, who aspires to professional mat laurels in the light-heavyweight division, are slated to serve as training partners of the Iowa grappler.

Shikat, who is recognized in New York and Pennsylvania as the world heavyweight champion, will be meeting Grobmeier for the first time. They are scheduled to wrestle to a one-fall finish.

Kola Kwariani, a ponderous Russian grappler, who met and defeated Paul Harper, Pat McKay and Hans Bauer on previous visits to this city, will match grips with George Hagen, former Marine champion, in the semi-windup, a one-fall bout with a time limit of one hour.

The second preliminary brings Carl Pojello, Chicago Lithuanian, against Paul Jones, Los Angeles heavyweight, who will be making his first appearance here since his defeat by Grobmeier, who pinned him in 19 minutes several months ago. Pojello defeated Alex Linow of Russia and drew with Glen Wade of Omaha, Neb., in recent local encounters.

County League Will Open Today

The St. Louis County League will open its schedule this afternoon on three county diamonds. The league this season is composed of six fast clubs and well played games are expected. Games will be played every Sunday. The opening day's games today will be: Maryland Heights vs. Kirkwood at Kirkwood; Breckenridge vs. Darstdale at Darstdale, and Brentwood vs. Webster Groves at Webster Groves.

BESOM CAPTURES WHEELING FEATURE

WHEELING, W. Va., April 19.—Besom, racing in the silks of W. J. Palmer and with S. Dunhon in the saddle, won the Fourth Estate Purse, feature event on this afternoon's card at the local track. B. E. Rumage's Easy Money was second and Fair Jimmie, owned by Mrs. H. D. Cox, was third.

Besom, after getting off to a slow start, closed with a rush and was up in the last few strides to win by a head from Easy Money. The winner refunded $43.40 for $2 to win.

ELEVEN STAR PLAYERS WERE OUT OF OPENING DAY BASEBALL LINEUPS

CARDINALS AND BROWNIES BOTH HIT; PITTSBURG WORST SUFFERER

By Herman Wecke

When the major league pennant campaign of 1930 swung into action during the past week, no fewer than 11 players, who are expected to help their teams during the flag struggle, were out of action. In addition two others, rated with the greatest stars of the game, were in the contests despite injuries. They were Babe Ruth of the Yankees and Rogers Hornsby of the Cubs. Ruth had a bad leg, but played the full battle with the world champion Athletics, while Hornsby showed a decided limp after a few rounds of the tilt with the Cardinals.

Both St. Louis clubs were hit by absentees. The Cardinals, for instance, were without Ernie Orsatti, counted on as the regular right fielder. Orsatti is hobbling around with his leg in a plaster cast due to a fracture of the ankle received in a training camp game. Another Cardinal unable to perform was Homer Peel, substitute outfielder, out because of illness.

Browns Miss Two.

On the Brownie front, Sam Hale, counted upon to do a lot of third basing, was on the side lines because of an attack of the flu while George Blaeholder is still out on his California ranch—a holdout. Blaeholder has been offered $5000 a year and wants $7500. Just why no one can figure, as in his two seasons with the locals he has failed to win half his games. In 1928 his record was 10-15 and last season 14-15. In both campaigns his record was under that of his club.

The club hardest hit of all was without a doubt Pittsburg. Jewel Ens, St. Louis boy, starting his first campaign as manager of the Pirates, had to go to the post without Lloyd Waner and Pie Traynor. "Little Poison" has not recovered his full strength following an appendicitis operation during the winter, while Pie Traynor, usually regarded as the best of the third sackers, is troubled with his eyes. Traynor has done little all spring and there have been no hints as to when he will be able to get into harness. Meanwhile, a rookie is covering third, while Brickell, a fair player, but no Lloyd Waner, is operating in center field.

4 Third Sackers Out.

In addition to Traynor and Hale, two other third basemen, missed the openers. They were Lester Bell, former Cardinal, purchased by the Cubs from the Braves during the winter, and "Pinkey" Whitney of the Phillies. Bell is the possessor of a "dead arm" while Whitney has a bad leg. Whitney is, next to Traynor, the best hot-corner guardian in the Heydler circuit.

Another who failed to get into the opening day lineup was George Sisler, former Brownie ace and manager. Sisler has slowed up considerably and when the Boston Braves battled the Giants in the first contest, Johnny Neun, a recruit from the International League, was at first base. And then Burleigh Grimes, recently obtained from the Pirates, was out because of lack of condition.

Ed Roush, for the past few seasons regular center fielder for the Giants, was another out of the running. Roush, as usual, is a holdout.

Stella Walsh Loses a Race and Sets a Record

BOSTON, April 19.—Mary L. Carew of Medford, Mass., successfully defended her national A. A. U. indoor 40-yard dash championship here tonight when she beat Stella Walsh of Cleveland, to the tape by inches in the record-equaling time of 5 1-5 seconds. Third place went to Loretta McNeil of the Melrose A. A. of New York.

Catherine M. Donovan of the Prudential Insurance A. A. of Newark, N. J., not only defended her 1929 national 50-yard hurdles title but also broke her own world's record in this event. She ran the timber event in 7 4-5 seconds, bettering the old mark by one-fifth of a second. Second place went to Mary G. Smith of New Haven, and Nellie Sharks of Newark placed third.

Stella Walsh, running under the colors of the New York Central R. R. A. A. of Cleveland, shaved two and three-fifths seconds off the world mark for the 220-yard event when she won with ease in 26 1-5 seconds, leading Catherine Capp of Newark to the tape by 10 yards. Ruth Smith, also of Newark, placed third.

Another world's record was smashed when Katharine Mearls of Watertown leaped 8 feet, 3¾ inches in the standing broad jump competition for the national title. Gertrude Mayer of the Millrose A. A., New York, cleared 8 feet, 2 inches, to clinch second place, and third honors went to Stella Walsh, the Cleveland allround performer. Miss Mearls' performance was an inch better than her record jump last year.

New Members of Net Team

These two girls have been officially named as members of the Wightman Cup tennis team. Miss Greef is from Kansas City and Miss Palfrey from Boston. Both rank high among the new players. In addition to this pair, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, Helen Jacobs and Edith Cross, all from the Pacific Coast, are members of the team.

Seven Record Holders to Defend Titles in Annual District Meet on May 10

The third annual St. Louis District High School Track and Field meet, which will be held at the Public Schools Stadium, May 10, is unique in that seven record holders will defend their titles. Gorman Broe of Roosevelt with the fastest times in the 440-yard dash and the 880-yard run, is the only claimant to two titles.

Webster Groves has two champions in Bill Freschi in the 100-yard dash and in Paul Sibley in the discus throw. Freschi's mark stands at 10.4 seconds, while Sibley threw the discus 109 feet 6 inches.

Dave Cook of Soldan, who heaved the shot 49 feet 3½ inches last year, to better the old mark by more than eight feet, will also defend his title. It is expected that Freschi, who placed third in this event last year, will give Cook plenty of competition.

A teammate of Cook's, Ed Herskowitz, who holds the record for the 50-yard dash in the junior division, has potential ability for the lowering of the sprint marks, since the little Soldan star has been running the 100 in fast time in the spring meets.

Austin to Defend Title.

The fifth of the senior defending champions is L. Austin of University City, who paced the distance in 4 minutes 57 seconds, which bettered Broe's 1928 mark of 5 minutes 2.5 seconds.

The last of the seniors to try to better his mark is Bill Hundhausen of Roosevelt, who skimmed the 120-yard high hurdles in 17.1 seconds. Lee Savage, a Rough Rider graduate, owns the 220-yard low hurdles mark with 27.7 seconds.

The only ex-champion in the junior division is Ray Toberman of Beaumont. Toberman, competing for St. Louis University High School last year, put the eight-pound shot 49 feet 10½ inches, which broke Dave Cook's old mark.

Beaumont will be represented in the senior division by the winning junior relay team last year. This quartet consists of Otto "Bud" Schwandt, Bob Kalbitz, Paul Gossreau and Oliver Duggins. The Beaumont team is fortified by the addition of Ed Lanksanke, who disrupted the midget marks, two years ago, and is now running in the major class.

Preliminaries May 7.

The finals of the meet will be run May 10, at 2 p. m. The preliminaries will take place as follows: On Wednesday, May 7, at 3 p. m., the junior and senior 440, 100, high jump, shot, discus, 220 low hurdles (for seniors only), 50-yard dash (for juniors only). On Thursday, May 8, at 3 p. m., junior and senior 220, broad jump, javelin, vault, 120 high hurdles (seniors only), 120 low hurdles (10 hurdles, juniors only). If there are more than 25 entries in the 880 there will be a preliminary in that event on May 7. There are no preliminaries in the mile and relay.

Entry blanks may be secured from E. A. Hecker, chairman of the Track Committee, 13 North Clay avenue, Ferguson.

POLICE CLUB SHOOTERS TO OPPOSE COLUMBIA IN INTERCITY MATCH

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 19.—Chief of Police Joseph A. Gerk of St. Louis has accepted the challenge of the pistol team of Headquarters Battery, 128th Field Artillery, here, for a match with the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department team, Sergt. Raymond J. Hanna, coach, announced here today. The match will be held in St. Louis April 26.

The Columbia National Guard team has lost only two of its matches in the last year, winning a total of 129 matches out of 131. Both of the defeats were by the St. Louis police team. Competing against the 40 outstanding teams in the nation, the Columbia team won fifth place in the national matches at Camp Perry, O., last year.

Members of the team are W. L. Sapper, De Soto; Carl R. Courtney, South Greenfield; James E. Dixon, Lexington; George L. Noland, Belton, and James G. Baker, Columbia, captain of the team. Courtney Noland and Baker are winners of the "Distinguished Pistol Shot Badge," highest award given by the United States Army for pistol marksmanship.

Members of the St. Louis team, as named by Chief Gerk, are as follows: Lieut. Nick Bosch Jr., team captain; Sergt. Frank W. Evans, Detective Oliver Yanick, Thamer Hill, Frank Stubits, Ralph Brocksmith and Detective Charles M. Hallett.

HORTON SMITH WILL TRY TO ARRANGE TO PLAY IN MEET HERE

Horton Smith, sensational Missouri golfer, who is spending a vacation at Joplin and at the same time preparing for his trip abroad where he will play in the British Open Tournament and defend his title as French open champion, was asked by the Post-Dispatch in a telegram whether he could state at this time if he would play in the St. Louis Open Tournament here July 18-20, which is to be held at the Sunset Hill Country Club.

He replied as follows:

"Plans indefinite at present. Will be pleased to play in open if proper arrangements can be made. Should draw strong field. Best wishes for success."

(Signed) HORTON SMITH.

Sid Le Gear, chairman of the committee handling the tournament, is very anxious to receive the entry of Smith as he knows all golfers are anxious to see Smith play in an important tournament, particularly if Bobby Jones enters.

A business associate of Walter Hagen in Detroit notified John Manion, Sunset Hill Country Club, chairman of the publicity committee, that he would notify Hagen of the tournament and ask him to send in his entry from Japan. Hagen will not play in the British Open this year but will participate in the U. S. National Open.

There will be a meeting of chairmen of the committees who have been appointed to handle various phases of the tournament at the Missouri Athletic Association Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock.

District Body to Meet.

This gathering will precede the annual meeting of the St. Louis District Golf Association, which is also scheduled to be held at the Missouri A. A. at 8 o'clock, at which time several important changes in the bylaws of the organization will be considered.

It has been proposed to extend the boundaries of the St. Louis district to include cities within a hundred miles radius of St. Louis, also to limit full membership in the organization to private clubs, with fee courses and pay as you play courses put on a basis of associate membership, the same as the Forest Park Club. It also has been proposed to change the date of the annual meeting of the association from April until December.

John Nangle, president of the district, is active in support of all these measures. He contends that adding territory to the organization will not only increase the membership and revenue, but will give it more prestige and increase interest in the tournaments held by the district.

Would Change Date.

Nangle asserts that the only way to preserve the proper functions of the St. Louis district is to keep control of the association in the private clubs, for he contends that clubs of the fee or pay-as-you-play character do not really promote golf for the game's sake, but for profit.

As to changing the date of the annual meeting, when the election of officers takes place, Nangle declares that if new officers were elected in December they would have a chance to familiarize themselves with the situation before the season opens, whereas officers coming in in April are right in the midst of the summer activities before they have a chance to become acclimated.

It is likely that Nangle will be strongly opposed in his effort to restrict membership to private clubs as several of the private clubs have class memberships which might be construed as belonging to the pay-as-you-play class.

As to the change in the meeting date, many other prominent members of the district association believe that it would be beneficial. While the proposal to add new territory is so new that few have been able to form an opinion.

Professional Match Proposed.

James F. Carberry, president of the Illinois Professional Golfers' Association, has written to John Manion suggesting a team match between Illinois and Missouri professionals. Carberry stated that he thought such a match would provide interesting golf for members of both communities. He suggested that the event be held between teams of 10 and 12 golfers each, probably on a home and home basis, and that a gallery fee of $1 be charged to defray the expenses of the visiting team.

OHIO STATE TRACK TEAM DEFEATS PITTSBURG U.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 19.—Ohio State defeated the University of Pittsburg, 95 to 40, in a dual track and field meet at Pitt Stadium today. Ohio won 12 first places to only three for the Panthers.

Pitt's only claim to distinction came in the ranking of the leading point getters for the day. Capt. Bowen and Knoblock tied for first place honors, each with 11 points.

George Simpson, Ohio's century champion, set a tri-state record in the 100-yard dash, easily defeating Bowen, Pitt star. Simpson's time was 9 3-5. He also won the 220-yard dash, tying the district record of 21:2-5.

GOLF

GOLF
by W. J. McGOOGAN

"YOU'D better take off those rubber sole shoes and wear spikes on this course," Dr. G. C. Otrich, president of the St. Clair Country Club, told a golfer who was about to look into the mysteries of the 18-hole layout located between East St. Louis and Belleville. "You know, you have to be a hill climber here and if you don't wear spikes you're likely to slide down a hill while trying to make a brassie shot."

That was rather startling information for the golfer, as he had supposed that the St. Clair links would be as flat as the rest of the State of Illinois, or the idea of its flatness which he had gained traveling between St. Louis and Fairmount race track.

The wisdom of Dr. Otrich's warning became apparent, however, before the golfer had traversed two holes, for he soon discovered that whoever laid out the St. Clair course picked out probably the hilliest spot in Illinois to do it. Up hill and down dale for 18 holes, making all sorts of shots out of up hill, down hil and side hill lies, went the golfer and wound up with a fairly large score and a different idea of Illinois.

A Truly Sporty Course.

But he had played a sporty little course and one which is being improved daily.

The average golfer playing over his favorite course knows nothing about the labor which goes into making the fairways and the greens smooth and he cares less. But in clubs which are not endowed with great fortune there are generally one or two men who are devotees of the art of grass culture. To them the right kind of a blade of grass is just as important as getting down a two-foot putt.

Such a man is Dr. Otrich, and it is to him that the members of St. Clair owe the numerous improvements which have been made and are still being made at their club.

Seven years ago, Dr. Otrich went to the Minnekahda Golf Club at Minneapolis to investigate the kind of grass used on that course, which is rated one of the best in the country and over which many important tournaments have been played. He brought back a piece of sod a foot square, planted it on the St. Clair grounds, cultivated it until he had enough to sod the new greens which are being built into St. Clair.

Incidentally, he sent a sample of the grass to the Government grass experts at Washington to find out what kind it is, and they told him that as nearly as they could determine it is grass called Norwegian bent.

Using the ground available and buying more until he had 125 acres for St. Clair, Dr. Otrich a year ago set about reconstructing the St. Clair course, cutting out some holes, building new ones and building new greens. The construction is still in progress, but now there are 17 splendid greens in use and only one temporary, that is, No. 1, where the new green is not quite ready.

Variety the Keynote.

There are long holes and short ones, dog legs to the right and to the left, water holes, blind holes and practically every other kind of layout providing a golfer with every variety of shot. The new No. 2 is regarded as the most intriguing of the course. It is about 350 yards long, the fairway is narrow, lined on both sides by trees and dips into a deep gully in front of the green which is situated on a hill requiring a second shot to travel some 50 or 60 feet high. It is a par 4.

Then there is No. 13, a straight par 4 hole with the green built at the bottom of a hill, or rather in a draw between two hills on which the second shot can be made to bounce from right or left onto the green, provided of course that it is hit correctly.

No. 6 is a peculiar hole. It requires a very straight shot of about 236 yards to a green which is situated on top of three terraces. To the right and left of the narrow fairway are trees with out of bounds to the left and, oh yes, there is a lake right in front of the tee.

No. 3 is a picturesque hole, just a mashie shot to a small green with the fairway and the green all fringed by trees and where anything but a straight shot results in plenty of trouble.

These are some of the difficult holes but there are plenty of other strange situations on the St. Clair course and to get the full realization of just what hooks and slices really can do to a score you would have to play it.

Some Have Mastered It.

There are some who can play St. Clair and play it well; Walter Kossman, the professional for instance. He goes around in the low seventies and it proved such a good training ground for him that last year he won the three pro-amateur tournaments held in the St. Louis District on this side of the river.

Then there is Bill Mertz who holds the course record of 68, made, of course under the old conditions. Bill also learned enough about golf at St. Clair to win the Southern Illinois tournament so many times that he retired from competition in order that his brother Harvey might win one, which he did promptly.

There are 300 members in St. Clair and they pay but $100 a year. There have been no assessments as yet but Dr. Otrich hinted that one small one might be coming to help pay for the improvements.

HIGH SCHOOL GOLF MEET TO BE HELD AT SPRINGFIELD, MO.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 19.—Plans for an invitational high school golf tournament were announced today by senior high school officials, with high school teams of Southwest Missouri to be invited to participate in a 36-hole meet at Hickory Hills here next Friday. Carthage and Joplin high schools are certain to send teams here to compete with Springfield club wielders, with a score or more of others to be invited.

Stark Is Named Creighton Coach

OMAHA, Neb., April 19.—Arthur R. Stark, for the past three years athletic director and head football coach at Chadron Teachers' College, Chadron, Neb., today was named head football coach at the Creighton University, succeeding Chet Wynne, resigned.

Lon Graf, who has served as football and track coach at Peru Normal since 1923, will be first assistant, with Elmer Lang, varsity line coach in 1929, head freshman mentor.

Stark was all-Missouri Valley and all-Western halfback in 1924 while playing with Kansas State. Graf played under E. O. "Jumbo" Stiehm at Nebraska. The new coaches' teams tied for the Nebraska College Conference grid crown last season. Both are signed to two-year cotnracts at Creighton.

Wynne resigned at Creighton to become head football coach and general manager of athletics at Alabama Poly at Auburn.

Miss Claire Garneau Is Engaged to Marry Clarence E. Maloy

Announcement Made at Dinner at The Woodlands — Miss Mary Scudder Hallett to Wed Wayman Whittemore.

EASTER DAY has become a propitious time for engagement announcements. This year the prospects for a brilliant array of little season weddings have become brighter than usual with the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Claire Louise Garneau, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Pierre A. Garneau, and Clarence Edward Maloy, son of Mrs. Clarence E. Maloy of the St. Regis apartments. The wedding will be a fashionable event of early June.

The announcement was made last night at a dinner for a small group of friends given by Miss Garneau's brother-in-law and twin sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Werner, at their home, The Woodlands, on the Ladue road. The guests were invited presumably to meet a Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Blair of Los Angeles, Cal., whom Mr. and Mrs. Werner had met in California during their winter sojourn at Riverside. The guests of honor proved to be fictitious characters, as was evidenced by a telegram purporting to have been sent by them, which was read to the party.

The message said:

"If anyone suspects we're not the honorees tonight,
Or, that there is no Crawf and Helen Blair,
You can tell the doubting Thomases they're absolutely right,
And the honors go to Clarence and to Claire."

Miss Garneau is a graduate of Sacred Heart Convent and completed her studies at the Ogontz School in Philadelphia, Pa. She and her twin sister were among the most popular debutantes of the season a few years ago, and since that time have been leaders in society's younger set. Miss Garneau is a member of the Junior League and belonged to the Imperial until it ceased functioning. She is a sister of Carl J. Koehler, who married Miss Eleanor Simmons, a former Veiled Prophet queen, and is a niece of Mrs. Henry Garneau of the Kings-Way Hotel, where Miss Garneau has also made her home this winter.

Mr. Maloy is a graduate of St. Louis University, and is a prominent society and club man. He is a member of the Bridlespur Hunt Club, and the Racquet and University Clubs.

Also of importance is the announcement made yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Ellis B. Hallett, 59 Kingsbury place, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Scudder Hallett, and Wayman Whittemore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blackwell Whittemore, 4905 Argyle place.

This betrothal was made known at a tea at which Mrs. Hallett entertained a group of friends for her sister-in-law, Mrs. E. Gage Scudder, Springfield, Mass., formerly of St. Louis, who is her guest, and who, with Mr. Scudder, will return here in the fall to make her home. The receiving rooms were attractively decorated with spring flowers, and the flower-bedecked tea table was presided over by Miss Katherine Koerber, Miss Mary Dulany Schofield, Miss Anne Sipple, Miss Adrienne Martin, Mrs. Roderick Meyer, Miss Marion Bischoff, Miss Elizabeth Ferguson, Miss Isabell Kirkpatrick, Miss Janet Orthwein, Miss Isabelle Bond, Miss Jane Harris, Miss Janet Lawton, Mrs. Marion Stuhl and Miss Marjorie Green.

Miss Scudder is the granddaughter of Mrs. Elisha G. Scudder of the prominent St. Louis family, and her mother was Miss Elise Scudder. She is a graduate of Hosmer Hall and made her debut last year at a series of small parties.

Mr. Whittemore is a brother of Robert Blackwell Whittemore III, who married Miss Mary Elizabeth Edwards, daughter of Mrs. George Lane Edwards, a few years ago. He is a nephew of Mrs. Gerard B. Allen and Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer. His mother was Miss Laura Edgar.

The wedding will take place Aug. 21 at the Hallett summer home in Hyannisport, Mass. Mr. Hallett will depart early in June to open the house, and Miss Hallett will follow on June 20.

Tea at Artists' Guild

THE LITTLE THEATER of St. Louis has sent out invitations for a tea Saturday, April 26 from 4 to 6 o'clock, at the Artists' Guild, complimentary to the authors, directors and cast of the two plays which will be sent to New York to compete in the annual Little Theater tournament. "The Twelfth Disciple" by Mrs. Ernest Sachs is entered in the Theater Arts tournament and "Right of Possession" by Edna Warren is competing in the Belasco Cup tournament.

West-Whittemore Bridal Party

AMONG the important weddings of the little season will be that of Miss Anne Katherine West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West, 48 Westmoreland place, and Clinton Levering Whittemore Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton L. Whittemore, 6420 Forsythe boulevard, which will take place May 28, at 5:30 p. m. at the Episcopal Church of St. Michael and St. George.

The bride will be preceded to the altar by two maids of honor, her young sister, Miss Betty West, who is attending the Fermata School in Aiken, S. C., and Miss Mary Merwin Shepley. The bridesmaids will be Miss Almira Steedman, Miss Jane Tyler Messick, Miss Frances Sherwood Wilson, Miss Jean Wright Ford, Miss Cynthia Polk and Mrs. John Kennard Wallace.

Henry Haarstick Whittemore will be best man for his brother, and Edward M. Durham III, John D. Franciscus, Johns S. McMillan, Hobart Cale, Allen T. West Jr., John Crago and Rembert La Beaume, will be groomsmen.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., VISITORS.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Yates, 20 North Kingshighway, have as their guests for Easter Mr. Yates' mother, Mrs. William Henry Yates of Springfield, Ill., and Mrs. Yates' niece, Miss Elsie Earle of Indian Hill Country Club grounds, Winnetka, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Yates' young daughter, Miss Margaret, a student at Mary Institute, spent her spring vacation with Miss Earle.

Miss Chouteau Scott To Wed J. N. Walker Of Calcutta, India

Engagement Also Is Announced of Miss Janet Blanke and Minard Townsend MacCarthy at Luncheon Yesterday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, April 19.

ANNOUNCEMENT will be made Easter Sunday here by Mrs. Pierre Chouteau Scott of St. Louis and Paris, of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marie Louise Chouteau Scott and Julius Norman Walker of Calcutta, India. The wedding will take place in October at St. Thomas' Church, Middleton Row, Calcutta. Mrs. Scott and her daughter will leave Paris, Sept. 24, for India.

Miss Scott was graduated from the Sacred Heart Convent, St. Louis, where she made her debut several years ago at a tea and reception given by her mother at the Forest Park Hotel, where they made their home. She served as maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball in St. Louis and is popular socially both in St. Louis and Paris. Since her debut she and her mother have spent much of their time in the East and traveling in Europe and during her five years sojourn in Paris Miss Scott has studied at the Sorbonne. Mrs. Scott and her daughter now occupy a charming apartment overlooking the Luxembourg gardens in Paris.

Mr. Walker is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman Walker of Roanoke, Va., and is a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He has been stationed in Calcutta for about six years and he and his bride will make their home there at 6 Durgapur Park, Alipore.

Mrs. Scott will remain in India until after Christmas when she will return to Paris.

A betrothal of much interest is that of Miss Janet Blanke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Blanke of the St. Regis apartments, and Minard Townsend MacCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. MacCarthy, 6811 University drive.

The news was told formally to a group of friends at a luncheon yesterday at the Blanke home in honor of Miss Helen Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lockett Edwards, Kansas City, Mo., formerly of St. Louis, who arrived Friday to be Miss Blanke's guest.

Miss Blanke is a graduate of Mary Institute and Bennett School in Millbrook, N. Y. She made her debut three years ago and served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball that season.

Mr. MacCarthy attended Washington University and is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

The luncheon guests, who were seated at a table adorned with spring flowers and Easter favors, included Miss June Morgens, Mrs. Theodore A. Eggman, formerly Miss Dorothy Green, Miss Grace Chapman, Columbus, O., who is Mrs. Eggman's guest; Miss Emily Caspari, Mrs. Robert Endres Meyer, Mrs. Wilson Lewis, Miss Martha Dyer, Miss Helen Martha Woods, Mrs. John Brownrigg and Miss Mary Elizabeth Lumaghi.

Miss Virginia Rountree To Wed Edward T. Haase

The engagement of Miss Virginia Rountree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rountree, 151 Jefferson road, Webster Groves, to Edward Theodore Haase, 3523 Longfellow place, was made known yesterday at a luncheon given by Miss Rountree complimenting her guest, Miss Ruth Napier, Evanston, Ill. As the guests were being seated Miss Napier at the piano played a bit of Mendelssohn and the same music was reproduced on small phonograph records with a voice telling the interesting news. The records were made for Miss Rountree by Miss Napier, who is a musician of note, and each guest received one of them. The table decorations were pink and lavendar, with a nest of pink and lavendar sweet peas filled with silver eggs and a pink rabbit. At either end of the table were small wagons drawn by an Easter rabbit and filled with pink and lavendar sweet peas. Pink tapers in silver candlesticks lighted the luncheon table.

Miss Rountree was educated at Chevy Chase, Maryland, and is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Haase was educated at Princeton University and is a member of Sigma Chi.

The guests at the luncheon in addition to Miss Napier, who arrived Friday for a short visit, were: Miss Catherine Annan, Miss Betty Brigham, Miss Helen Brod, Miss Katharine Bush, Miss Jane Ewerhardt, Miss Lucie Richardson, Miss Margaret Gilger, Miss Catherine Phillips, Miss Margaret Stevenson, Mrs. C. E. Ervin and Mrs. John Calhoun Jr., a sister of the prospective bridegroom. There has been no definite date set for the wedding.

Parties in Washington For D. A. R. Delegates

WASHINGTON, April 19.

WHILE there have been but few society events, Washington has never been more sociable than it has this week when women from every state in the Union met at the National D. A. R. Hall for their annual conference. Senators and Representatives bestirred themselves to entertain the delegates from their respective districts; luncheon parties were given in the Senate and House cafes and there were many very large afternoon teas.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann assisted at many of the teas, assuming her role as the second lady of the nation. Although Mrs. Hoover was too ill to receive so large a body as that represented by the D. A. R. in congressional session, she received the children of the American Revolution in her living room on the second floor of the White House. The small granddaughter of the President and Mrs. Hoover, Peggy Ann Hoover, has been enrolled in the children's organization.

Drawing rooms, filled to capacity, testified to the popularity of Mrs. Gann. With Mrs. Robert P. Lamont she assisted at the reception of the Iowa delegation at the Congressional Club, standing with Mrs. Daniel Frederic Steck and Mrs. Smith Wildman Brookhart, wives of the Senators from that State.

She was also with Mrs. Lucy Wilder Morris when a tea was given for Miss Carolyn Punderson of St. Paul, Minn., State regent for the D. A. R. Delegates from the State were present.

Like many of the other hostesses, Mrs. Morris gave visiting delegates an opportunity to meet ladies of the diplomatic corps. During tea she was assisted by Senora de Tellez, wife of the Mexican Ambassador.

Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson entertained the children of the American Revolution and their new president-general, Mrs. Percy Quin, wife of Representative Quin of Macomb, Miss., at an afternoon reception and musicale.

Mrs. Theodore Hoover, the President's sister-in-law, and other members of the California D. A. R. delegation, were honor guests at a dinner given late in the week for the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur by Representative and Mrs. Joe Crail of California.

Of quite another nature was the luncheon at the Willard's where members of the Women's National Press Club were hosts to one of their number, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois, just back from her primary victory. With her was Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, wife of the Speaker of the House. Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor, and Mrs. Clyde Kelley of Pennsylvania, dropped in at the end of the luncheon to hear Mrs. McCormick describe her campaign.

"On to Washington" Meeting.

Dinner Commemorating The Louisiana Purchase

THE Missouri Historical Society has sent out invitations for the annual dinner commemorating the Louisiana Purchase, to be given this year in the Italian garden of Hotel Chase at 7 p. m., Monday, April 28.

The guests of honor will be Mr. and Mrs. Bainbridge Colby, Washington. Mr. Colby, who was Secretary of State in President Wilson's cabinet, will give an address on "The Close of Woodrow Wilson's Administration and the Final Years." Mr. and Mrs. Colby have several friends in St. Louis who will entertain them informally during their stay.

An invitation to the dinner has been sent to Mrs. Pierre Chouteau, Cambridge, Mass., whose husband originated the idea of celebrating the anniversary of the Purchase 35 years ago, and her son, Pierre Chouteau.

A portrait of Mr. Colby by Douglas Volk, like the one which hangs in the Secretary of State's Office, has been presented to the society by Craig H. Severance, New York, and will be accepted at the dinner by Isaac H. Lionberger, who will preside.

The Committee of Arrangements is composed of Mrs. Howard Bailey, Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, Mrs. Clement W. Nelson and Mrs. Newton R. Wilson.

Play for Hospital Fund.

Tuesday, April 29, a two-act comedy, "Our Minister's Birthday," will be given at the Missouri Baptist Hospital auditorium, the proceeds to be used in the general fund for the sick poor, orthopedic shoes, glasses, railroad fare to and from the hospital, blood transfusions and clothing. The play is being sponsored by the woman's board of which Mrs. Frank U. Whitus is chairman.

New Yorkers Spend Easter in Country

NEW YORK, April 19.

THE greater part of the fashionable ranks will hunt Easter eggs this year in Long Island and Westchester country estates, dotted with gay-colored tulip beds and sprouting the first green buds.

Beginning with Palm Sunday society started its pilgrimage into the country, and Good Friday found a great many others on the way, most of them will attend Easter services in the little brick country churches near their estates, far from the taper-lighted, flower-perfumed cathedrals of Fifth avenue.

Those who remained in town spent Holy Week at flower sales, rummage sales, theater benefits—all devoted to gathering funds for favorite philanthropies, and its members worked early and late to make the affairs successful.

The early days of the week found a number of women, enveloped in smocks, working in a Fifty-seventh street florist shop, where a percentage of the proceeds were turned over to the New York Child Labor Committee.

Roses and lilies, violet corsages and sweet peas were selected and wrapped by their unaccustomed fingers and dispatched on their way to their buyers, who in many cases were some of their best friends. Among those who labored for charity's sake were the Misses Alice Vanderbilt Morris, Fifi Laimbeer, Alice de Peyster and June Blossom.

Wednesday found others wading through books and ornaments, old clothing and discarded furniture at the opportunity shop of the Association for improving the condition of the poor, where Rudy Vallee, using a grand piano as a desk, autographed his photographs in exchange for the rummage. The entire proceeds of that exchange were devoted to tuberculosis relief work in the city.

The same evening society cut its after-dinner coffee short and hurried to the Metropolitan Opera House for a special performance of "Parsifal," which began at 7:15 and was given as a benefit of Bryn Mawr and Barnard Summer Schools.

Most of its members made up for the shortened dinner, however, at the first intermission when the Metropolitan Opera House caterer served supper. Among those who reserved boxes for the performance—one of the Metropolitan's last this season—were Mrs. Henry Goddard Leach, Mrs. Howard Whitney and Mrs. John Sherman Hoyt.

In the midst of the charity activities of Holy Week there was labor over plans for benevolent festivities to come, foremost among them were designs for the charity carnival to be given at Madison Square Garden on the 29th, when the famous loves of history and attendant trappings will be depicted in aid of the Judson Health center. It seems as though nearly all of society's members will be there and half of them will take part in the pageant.

Miss Katrinka Suydam, arrayed in a Dutch costume and a lace cap, will portray Katrinka Van Tassel eluding the headless horsemen with her schoolmaster admirer, Ichabod Crane. Mrs. Daniel Webster Whitmore Jr. will be there as Cinderella in her gilden coach, with Maj. William Kennelly as the Prince.

Mrs. Philip Kip Rhinelander will portray Helen of Troy; Mrs. William Barber will be Mumtaz Mahal, for whom Shah Jehan built the Taj Mahal, and Mrs. Frederick Ziegler is to represent the resplendant Queen of Sheba. Even the ninth and newest planet is included as part of the pageant in the "romance of light."

Ten thousand rose bushes, thousands of peach and cherry blossoms, a pool of crystal water and prosmatic lights playing over the flower-decked bower will form the setting for the love scenes.

Another charitable affair which is holding society's interest is the fete tricolore to be given on the St. Regis roof during Easter week in aid of the French Institute in the United States. The three colors of the French flag will be used in decking the supper room and a professional cabaret to the tune of Vincent Lopez' orchestra will be a highlight of the evening.

Those who were not already in the country deserted town on Thursday to attend the first race meet of the United Hunts at Aqueduct. Despite the rain, the smart folk were there in numbers, wrapped in their favorite tweeds, brightened by gay hats and scarves.

They gathered in the boxes to watch the six races, which included a steeplechase, a hurdle and a flat, and then went over to the clubhouse to sip tea. Among the horse lovers who made reservations for boxes were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gerard and Augustus F. Goodwin, president of the Eastern Horse Club of Boston.

A Japanese program drew the members of the Altrust Club to the Buckingham Hotel Tuesday evening, when Miss Leona O. Scott presented an exhibition of Japanese prints, cloisonne damascene and brocades. The entertainment closed with a Japanese fashion show with dancing, in which Mrs. Nakada and Miss Masuda displayed the gaily colored kimonos and the mincing steps of the Land of the Rising Sun.

Meanwhile, the general fashion shows of New York's smart world goes on apace and its prospects seem to grow blacker than ever. In the midst of all the beige and blue exhibited by hopeful shopkeepers, almost every other fashionable woman in sight is wearing black. Black crepe frocks, kasha coats and black and white Baku chapeax for tea, black and white tweed for motoring, black chiffon for dining and dancing, accented now and then with emerald earrings, ruby necklaces of sapphire bracelets, are the order of the day.

Town Club Annual Meeting.

Town Club members will hold their annual meeting, Thursday evening, April 24, at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. T. M. Sayman, president of the club, will preside, and reports of the past year will be given by the officers and standing committee chairmen. The names of the three new directors of the club to be elected this year will be announced at this time.

Delphian Council Luncheon.

Mrs. Henry Jacobson will speak at the luncheon to be given by Delphian Council Wednesday, April 30, at Hotel Chase. She will discuss "How to Read a Play," and, in illustration, will read "The Master Builder," by Ibsen. Miss Nora Rife, harpist, will play several selections. The president of the council is Mrs. B. A. Thompson. The chairman on arrangements are Mrs. H. W. Schmale and Mrs. M. A. Keown.

Webster Groves

MISS HATTIE and Miss Rose Yeiser, Danville, Ky., arrived Thursday morning to visit their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blackmer, 205 Blackmer place. They were accompanied to St. Louis by Mrs. C. M. Smith Jr. and her daughter, Miss Frances, who will remain for several days.

Miss Helen Scott has returned to her home in Cincinnati, O., after a visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. Leigh C. Turner, 156 Gray avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Holekamp, 633 Sherwood drive, and their daughter, Miss Margaret, have returned from Hillsboro, Mo., where they spent 10 days at their farm.

Miss Marian Ervin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ervin, 255 Blackmer place, departed Friday for Culver, Ind., where she will be the guest of friends.

Among the students arriving home from Missouri University for the Easter holidays were Miss Melida and Miss Elizabeth Cook, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Cook; Miss Helen Browndyke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Browndyke; Miss Mattie Morris Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cook, and Miss Nancy Harkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Harkey.

Miss Margery Skinner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Skinner, 420 Oakwood avenue, has returned from Kansas City, Mo., where she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Bliss for a week.

Mrs. Charles Leedom and Mrs. Dickson Andrews, both of Philadelphia, Pa., will arrive today for a visit with their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. Deane Garrett, 231 Oakwood avenue. There will be several informal parties for them.

Mrs. Joseph H. Williams, 133 Helfenstein place, arrived home Saturday, April 12, from a visit of two months in Florida with her brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. William R. North, at their winter home in Nokomis. She was met at Louisville, Ky., by Dr. Williams and they motored home from there.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip O. Viall, 220 Bristol place, with their two young sons and Mr. Viall's mother, Mrs. C. C. Viall, Painesville, O., motored to Boonville, Mo., Thursday to spend a few days.

Saturday the senior class of Webster Groves High School will present "Lilies of the Field," a three-act comedy by John H. Turner. Jane Scholz has a leading role. Kitty, her twin sister, is played by Elizabeth Conrad. Raymond Thurston plays the juvenile lead, and Huson Jackson and Martin Hasse play important parts. Ruth Hawkins, as Mun's Mum, the twins' determined grandmother, has an outstanding role. Virginia Waggoner, Elizabeth Hixson, Mary Widmer, Edith Phemister, Edmonia Beal and William Senn will appear also. As in previous years the coaching is done by Miss Dorothy Stanley.

SIMPLE HOME MIXTURE DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Cincinnati Barber Tells How Any One Can Prepare It in 5 Minutes.

Any man or woman can easily look twenty years younger by simply darkening their gray, faded, or streaky hair. This is now easy to accomplish with a recipe given by a well known Cincinnati barber.

Simply take a half-pint of water, add one ounce of bay rum, ¼ ounce of glycerine and a small box of Barbo Compound. Shake and it is ready to use. These ingredients can be bought at drug stores at trifling cost.

Applied to the hair twice weekly this delightful mixture quickly gives the desired shade. It is easy to use, is not sticky or greasy, will not color the scalp and does not rub off.

Items of Social Interest From the Army Post.

WITH the change of season, the social gayety of the post is turning to sports. The tennis courts are in use every day. Among those most frequently seen at this sport are: Mrs. Charles F. Morse, who won the tennis championship for women in Hawaii several years ago; Mrs. William E. Hall, another veteran player, Mrs. Claude D. Collins, and Mrs. Wellborn B. Griffith. Major Floyd V. Kilgore, Capt. Clifford D. Overfelt, Lieut. Crump Garvin, Lieut. Charles F. Howard, and Lieut. John D. Cone are enthusiastic players. Lieut. Garvin, with Capt. Arvid P. Croonquist, won the Sixth Corps Area championship in doubles at Chicago last spring.

An equitation class has been organized on the post under the personal supervision of Capt. Raymond I. Lovell. Those taking the course are: Mrs. Charles F. Morse, Mrs. Thomas L. Smith, Mrs. Arthur R. Underwood, Mrs. Stanley G. Backman, Mrs. Paolo H. Sperati, Mrs. Clifford D. Overfelt, Mrs. Rudolph W. Broedlow, Mrs. Raymond I. Lovell, Mrs. Crump Garvin and Mrs. August M. Schanze. Several experienced horsewomen here will join the class after preliminary instruction has been finished.

Mrs. Henry S. Cole, wife of Major Cole, departed Thursday for an extended visit in the East. She will visit her sister, Miss Adelaide Crimm, in New York City, who is sailing for Europe the latter part of May, and her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Byers, of Washington, D. C.

Maj. Louis P. Ford has received orders relieving him from assignment with the Sixth Infantry, Jefferson Barracks, and directing him to report to the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He will leave with Mrs. Ford and their small daughter, Jane, at the conclusion of the Citizens' Military Training Camp here in August.

Lieut. and Mrs. August M. Schanze had as their guest last week-end, Mr. Robert Schanze of Fort Leavenworth, a cousin of Lieut. Schanze. Mrs. Schanze returned with him to Fort Leavenworth to visit her husband's relatives.

Capt. and Mrs. Richard M. Sandusky have as a week-end guest Miss Minnie James of Maryville, Mo.

The following officers and ladies from Jefferson Barracks attended the Covered Wagon Celebration of the blazing of the Oregon Trail, at the Coronado Hotel, last Thursday evening: Col. and Mrs. Pegram Whitworth, Col. and Mrs. Charles F. Morse, Col. John Randolph, Major and Mrs. Louis P. Ford, Capt. and Mrs. Aubrey J. Bassett, and Lieut. Branden M. Greeley.

Maj. and Mrs. William E. Hall entertained last week Capt. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Buffin, who have recently returned from service in the Phillipine Islands. They are on the way to their new station at San Antonio, Tex.

Mrs. Raymond I. Lowell entertained the Tuesday Bridge Club at lunch at her quarters Tuesday afternoon. Those attending were: Mrs. Charles F. Morse, Mrs. William E. Hall, Mrs. Richard M. Sandusky, Mrs. Ray H. Larkins, Mrs. Robert H. Vesey, Mrs. Raymond W. Odor, and Mrs. Crump Garvin.

Mrs. Stanley G. Backman entertained the young girls' class of the Post Sunday School Friday evening. Eggs were prepared for the Easter egg hunt, which will be held on the Red Cross lawn this morning.

Maj. and Mrs. Thomas L. Smith have returned from a 15-day visit with relatives and friends in Montgomery, Ala. The trip was made by automobile.

Mrs. Wellborn B. Griffith was hostess to the Bi-Monthly Bridge Club Tuesday afternoon. Those attending were: Mrs. Arthur G. Hutchinson, Mrs. Paolo H. Sperati, Mrs Clifford D. Overfelt, Mrs. Edwin M. Sutherland, Mrs. Claude D. Collins, Mrs. Arthur L. Moore, and Mrs. Genevieve Parkhurst of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Pollack of the Red Cross, have returned to Jefferson Barracks, after five weeks on a motor trip through the South. Included in their itinerary was a visit to Mrs. Pollack's home in Baton Rouge, La.

Lieut. and Mrs. Arthur L. Moore and Mrs. Moore's mother, Mrs. Genevieve Parkhurst of New York, left by automobile, Saturday, to spend several days with the novelist, Rose Wilder Lane, at Mansfield, Mo.

Lieut. and Mrs. Raymond W. Odor spent last week end at Columbia, Mo., the guests of relatives of Lieut. Odor.

Capt. Glenn A. Ross has received orders to report to the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth in September. He is spending a leave of absence with relatives in Washington.

Lieut. and Mrs. Leonard L. Hilliard have returned from an extensive motor trip through the South, during which they visited Mrs. Hilliard's home in Columbus, Ga., and Lieut. Hilliard's home in Texas.

Special Easter services will be conducted in the Post Chapel this morning by Chaplain Edward B. Trett. Elaborate musical numbers will be sung by a selected choir. In the evening a number of Easter tableaux will be given in the Post theater. Father Thomas Dalton will celebrate mass and hear confessions in the Post chapel this morning.

Activities of Women's Clubs

WEDNESDAY the History and Literature Section of the Wednesday Club, Mrs. James M. Bull, chairman, will hold its final meeting of the season at 10:30 a. m. Mrs. Ida B. Cole will read a paper, "Movement of Thought That Preceded the Turkish Revolution." A short paper on the Far West will be read by Mrs. Horace W. Soper.

The meeting of the Poetics Section, Mrs. Fred C. Lake Jr., chairman, will be held at 1:30 p. m., with Mrs. Ernest Sachs as leader, her subject, Dramatic Poetry.

The awards of the original poetry contest will be announced at this meeting by Eugene Hecker of the St. Louis Country Day School, one of the judges.

The Dramatic Art Section of Scottish Rite Woman's Club, Mrs. Edward G. Peters, chairman, will meet Tuesday at 1 p. m. in the lounge of Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard. Mrs. John Hillman, vice chairman, will have charge of the program.

The Literary Section will meet at 2:30 p. m. with Dr. Helen F. Gibson, chairman, presiding. The program is in charge of Mrs. Harry W. Wiese, vice chairman, and the topic to be considered is "Survey of Modern Missouri." "Women in Politics in Missouri" will be discussed by Mrs. Henry McClure Young. "Educational and Social Conditions in Missouri" will be given by Mrs. Ray Thomson. "Economic Developments of Missouri" will be reviewed by Mrs. M. C. Owings.

The Executive Board will hold its monthly session Wednesday at 10 a. m. Mrs. Arthur J. Burr, president of the club, presiding.

The Music Section will meet Friday at 10 a. m. for special choral rehearsal under the direction of Prof. O. Wade Fallert.

The weekly meeting of the College Club, St. Louis branch of the American Association of University Women, 5428 Delmar avenue, will be held at 3:30 p. m., Tuesday. Dean Isidor Loeb of Washington University will speak on the recent report and recommendations of the State Survey Committee. Tea will be served. The hostesses will be Miss Lucille Papendick and Miss Florence S. Runge, assisted by the following Wellesley group: Miss Geneva Crumb, Mrs. George O. Ellstrom, Miss Helen Constance Kock, Miss Jeanne C. Mark and Miss Julia Davenport Randall.

At 1:30 p. m. Tuesday the Interior Decoration Study Group will discuss "The Minor Arts in Interior Decoration, Glass, Pottery and Fireside Sets."

The Child Study Group, of which Mrs. Marshall Crouch is leader, will give a luncheon tomorrow at 1 p. m. Mrs. W. Leland Jones has charge of the arrangements. A general discussion on the topic, "The Ideal Home Life," will follow the luncheon.

A special meeting of the International Relations Study Group will be held Thursday at 3 p. m. This meeting will be open to the public. The program, directed by Miss Alves Long, will consist of a round table discussion, "Passing the Buck, or Fixing the Responsibility for the Results of the London Naval Conference." Each of the five nations participating will present its case, subject to challenge by public opinion. Those who will take part are: England, Mrs. F. B. Miller; France, Miss Alves Long; Italy, Dr. Masio Dessenlic; Japan, Miss Annabel Remnitz; United States, Mrs. E. T. Wenseney; Public Opinion, Mrs. George Gellhorn.

The Fiction and Drama Study Group will meet Friday at 3:30 p. m. Mrs. Elmer English will review "All Our Yesterdays" by Tomlinson, and Miss M. Crawford, "Fool's Parade," by John W. Vandercook.

A play will be read by College Club members Saturday at 8 p. m.

The monthly meeting of Roosevelt High School Mothers' Circle, unit of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, will be held Friday at 2:45 p. m. in the library of Roosevelt High School with Mrs. John Boe, president, presiding. Officers are to be installed by Mrs. Arthur J. Burr. Mrs. Nat Brown, executive secretary, for the opera "Joseph," will address the group.

The poetry contest sponsored by the art section of the Monday Club of Webster Groves terminated at an interesting meeting held last Monday. The judges for the contest were Mrs. Archer O'Reilly, John G. Neihardt and William B. Papin. After several vocal selections by Mrs. R. McCaughen, Mrs. C. B. Kenamore introduced Mr. Papin who read the prize-winning poems and announced the authors. Mrs. H. C. Butler won first prize with "Burial." Cottrell Fox, a sophomore at Washington University, won second prize with "Auspice." Those receiving honorable mention were: Mrs. Otis Turner, Mrs. Constance Finkenauer, Alan Beck, Beatrice Adams, Mary W. Todd and Ruth Bedell.

The last open meeting of the Monday Club will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. "Monday Club Revue," by club talent, will constitute the program.

The Better Homes Section will hold its last meeting and installation of officers Tuesday at 2 p. m.

The Daughters of Mary met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Carey, 3539 McKean avenue, last week. Luncheon was served at 1 p. m. The following delegates were appointed to attend the eighth annual convention of the Council of Catholic Women to be held at Hotel Statler, May 6 and 7: Mrs. J. J. Carey, Mrs. J. McIntyre, Mrs. S. Claybough, Mrs. C. Braunbeck, Mrs. A. G. Hunt and Mrs. F. la Bee.

Quickest way to give Hair new Life and Lustre

THE way modern hair dressers accentuate your hair by lovely lines and contours makes it important to keep the hair in perfect condition.

Now, millions know the quickest way to give the hair new life and lustre; to bring out its natural color, is with Danderine. It is so easy to use; you simply moisten your brush with it each time you arrange you hair.

Danderine dissolves dandruff; stops falling hair; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It helps the hair grow long, silky, abundant; gives it more lustre than brilliantine. It makes the hair easy-to-arrange; holds it in place.

WOMEN IN AVIATION
Given Personally by the Famous Pilot
MAY HAIZLIP

The woman of today—alive to the joys of flying—as a sport—or a career—has keenly missed the lack of suitable training, given with her special needs in mind. Knowing that women do have an important place in Aviation, we have engaged the nationally known pilot, May Haizlip, to organize and instruct a limited group of women.

One of the first Transport Pilots in America, she has flown over two thousand hours during the last five years, and has taught many successful pilots. Her charming personality, together with her unusual ability to inspire confidence, makes learning a delightful experience—and results in exceptionally well trained flyers.

As a social accomplishment or an economic asset, the ability to fly is recognized, admired—and rewarded. Convenient hours and financing may be arranged.

Phone or Write May Haizlip for a Personal Appointment.

Radiators Are Now Decorative in Design

Modern radiators have moved from their former dominant location in rooms to unobtrusive recessed spaces under the windows.

Courtesy of American Radiator Corp.

NEW TYPE RADIATOR IS UNOBTRUSIVE

Unobtrusiveness Combined With High Efficiency, Is New Note in Radiators.

By JAMES P. MOONAN.

In times gone by, the radiator, while it was generally considered a necessity, was seldom pointed out as a beautifying factor in the interior decorative scheme of a room.

But times have changed, and the modern radiator, through the ingenuity of the radiator manufacturer, has moved from its erstwhile position in the most conspicuous location in the room, into a recessed space beneath the window.

The above illustrations depict the differences in the old and the new types of radiators.

Concurrent with its geographical displacement the most recent radiator design has so radically changed that both architects and home owners are surprised. Instead of the old-fashioned tubular effect, the radiator now presents an inconspicuous flat surface. Furthermore, its heating efficiency has been increased.

From a series of comparative tests based on the human comfort requirements of radiators, Dr. Charles Brabbee, director of the Institute of Thermal Research, New York, showed that the factors of convection, radiation and air circulation should be scientifically interrelated so that the highest percentage of heat is focused on the living area of the room; i. e., between the floor and the breathing line, and in such a way that the occupants are protected from cold drafts. Following these recommendations the new type radiator was evolved.

The new radiator is recessed flush with the walls beneath the window and incorporates the double features of unshielded radiation (like the radiant heat from the sun concentrated on the living area of the room) and a warm air current from a grille at the top, to the ceiling above, automatically carrying with it incoming cold air.

Repeated tests conclusively indicated the above combination to be, at the same time, the most economic and efficient for quick and lasting heating results. To attain the maximum direct heating area incidentally producing an unobstructive effect, the new type radiator shows a flat surface, which may be painted to match the walls.

Choose A Standard Design When Modernizing Home

Colonial, Dutch Colonial and Early English Are the Architectural Types Which Appeal Most to Americans.

When remodeling the exterior lines of the house the best plan is to advise the builder to choose a style of architecture that is standard and will stay so for years to come.

A number of these types of design are receiving the favorable attention of home owners today. Among these are the Colonial, the Dutch Colonial and the English. Each of these types is distinctive in appearance. Each is attractive and in the best of taste. Better than this each will remain a popular design, because each is based on sound architectural principles.

Colonial Architecture.

Colonial architecture is an American expression of what is known in England as Georgian. The characteristics of the Colonial house are simplicity, symmetry and quiet dignity. Generally its plan is regular and in the form of a rectangle so it is an economical house to build.

The roof is simple, with a narrow cornice made up of well formed moldings. The dormers are always small and few in number. There is a certain primness about the Colonial house which results from the nicely spaced windows, its careful details and restrainment from effect.

The architectural details of the Colonial home are always effective. The door is generally the important element of the facade. Shutters are usually used on the windows and are painted in contrast to the body of the house.

The Colonial style is standard. It will be in good demand today, and will be in good demand tomorrow. The owner of a Colonial home is investing in a home that is always acceptable to a buyer.

The Dutch Colonial house is also rectangular in shape, thus securing economy in space and materials. It is characterized by a roof which covers the side of the second floor, and by broad dormers that light the interior of this story of the house.

Both the interior and exterior of the Dutch Colonial house show an effort to secure maximum living space without sacrificing a pleasing effect. It makes an ideal home for the moderate size family. Like the Colonial it is a home that will stay in style because architecturally its principles of design are sound. The home owner who wants to remodel his house to get distinctive lines and economy of space will do well to consider this type of American home.

REPLACE BAD PLUMBING

Health Endangered by Unsanitary Household Plumbing.

When remodeling a home or purchasing a house already built, look after the plumbing. Examine the entire system thoroughly to see that it is up to par. Don't pass it by with a casual inspection but give it a careful examination.

No matter how strong and substantially built the rest of the house may be, if the plumbing is bad trouble is certain to result. A house may be 100 per cent sound in other respects, but a rustable plumbing system will ruin the investment.

The time to repair the damage is before it happens—while the house is in the hands of the contractors who are making the needed alterations. Better spend a little extra money then and avoid bigger expense later on.

Tracks for Automobiles.

In some cases property owners possessed of small lots have adopted a rather ingenious method of making cement roads for automobiles by digging trenches and establishing therein narrow cement tracks. This type of construction is not practicable where vehicles pass each other.

A FLOWER GARDEN ADDS TO A HOME

Entire Family Will Become Interested in Raising Beautiful Flowers.

An attractive flower garden is a mirror, reflecting all efforts to beautify the home's surroundings. A gorgeous array of color cannot be expected from a poorly planned garden.

In planting the flower garden, small gayly colored flowers, such as pansies, verbenas, nasturtiums, etc., should serve as borders or center pieces, while sweet peas, hollyhocks and the other taller plants should look down from their background positions. The glory in a beautiful garden comes from the selection of plants that will provide an abundance of color from early spring to frosty fall.

Sweet peas have a deeper root system, therefore it is necessary to go deeper and to provide better drainage. A trench two feet deep, filled to a depth of a few inches with well-rotted manure and filled the rest of the way with soil will provide an excellent mulch for the peas. However, the manure does not supply the necessary amount of plant food which these flowers require.

Plants take their food from the air, water and soil. The food that is drawn from the soil is absorbed by a mass of cells. Just as the food that is absorbed by the human body must be liquefied, all the elements which plants take from the soil must be a liquid before they can be absorbed by the plant.

Therefore a systematic plan of watering the flower garden must be followed in dry weather. The soil may contain plenty of food for the plant, but unless there is enough water present to dissolve that food, the plant will starve.

A plot on which plants of any kind, whether flowers, grass or weeds, have grown year after year has gradually given up its natural supply of plant food. Thus it is necessary to add nourishment for the flowers. The best method of restoring the elements required for plant life is the application of a complete plant food that contains a balanced ration for flowers that are usually planted.

Activities of Women's Clubs

the chorus and Mrs. Doyne Christine Neal. Miss Clara Brown and Mrs. Buchanan will play the accompaniments.

The Minerva Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Louise R. Gallaher, 6045 Kingsbury boulevard, Friday at 2 p. m. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Upton S. Coudy, president; Mrs. B. A. Hickman, vice president; Mrs. Fred Armstrong, recording secretary; Mrs. Oscar P. Krell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William M. de Veaux, treasurer; Mrs. George C. Richardson, Mrs. H. E. Hewgill, Mrs. C. S. Jones and Mrs. L. R. Gallaher, directors.

The Cultus Club will meet Thursday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Albert Kunz, 6645 University drive. Mrs. Paul R. Fletcher will be the leader of the day and will discuss "Dorothy Canfield as a Many-Sided Personality." Mrs. F. M. Hackman will review "Her Son's Wife" and Mrs. E. R. O. Mueller will be chairman of the debate: "Was Mary Bascomb Justified?"

Delphi Delphians, Mrs. T. B. Brown president, will meet tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. at Carpenter Branch Library. The works of Victor Hugo and George Sand will be discussed, with Mrs. A. M. Bobier as leader.

The chapter will give a benefit bridge at the Saum Hotel at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday for the scholarship loan fund.

April 11, the Prospective Citizens' League of the Steuben Society of St. Louis elected these officers: Fred W. Herzer, chairman; Charles Peschera, vice chairman; Henry F. Rohmann, secretary; Paul Schmitt, treasurer.

Agnes Ruth Hoffinger, president of St. Louis Tercentenary Shakspeare Society, will lecture on "Henry VIII" tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Vandervoort's Music Hall. Madam Clara E. Thoms, music chairman, will direct the music. Mrs. H. Raymond Walker, Mrs. August Wildman and Mrs. C. E. Luntz will welcome guests.

The West End Republican Woman's Club will hold its monthly luncheon Wednesday, at noon, at the Forest Park Hotel. A business meeting will follow with the president, Mrs. J. Edwin Allen, presiding. Madam Clara E. Thoms will direct a musical program. Mrs. Upton S. Coudy, second vice president, in charge of the program, will introduce Charles U. Becker, Secretary of State, who will speak of "Progressive Missouri;" Mrs. William R. Chivis, who will discuss "Historical Missouri," and Mrs. Louise Marsh, who will read an original poem entitled "New Missouri." This poem has been set to muisc, dedicated to the president, Mrs. Allen, and will be heard for the first time on this occasion.

Mrs. Edward T. Card, Mrs. Cleveland Newton and Mrs. Harry Jones will welcome guests and members. Mrs. John H. Gehrs of Cape Girardeau, Mo., will be a special guest.

The Junior Auxiliary of Big Sisters' and Girls' Protective Department of Board of Religious Organizations elected these officers April 11: Miss Edith Murch, president; Miss Hazel Payne, vice president; Miss Sina Ellis, secretary; Miss Ruby Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. L. L. Renfrow, historian. The Auxiliary is now a member of the Junior Federation of Women's Club, its membership being a gift from Mrs. G. V. R. Mechin. Dr. Harriet Cory will lecture before the Auxiliary on the evening of May 9.

The following is the calendar of events for the conference of Jewish women's organizations for the week:

Today—St. Louis Unit Junior Hadassah.

Monday—Four Reformed Sisterhoods and Mizrachi Ladies' Society.

Tuesday—Miriam, No. 17, U. O. T. S.; Beth Hamedresh Hagodol Ladies' Aid and Blue-Whites.

Wednesday—Bible Study group and Noshim Rachmonioth Society.

Thursday—Conference of Jewish women's organizations, annual meeting.

Friday—Pioneers.

The Spirit of St. Louis Delphian Chapter will meet at the Kings-Way Hotel Thursday at 2 o'clock. The president, Mrs. Donald McDonald, will introduce the subject, "Glory of Greece." This will then be discussed under various topics.

The annual meeting of the Jewish Hospital Auxiliary will be held April 30 at noon at Hotel Jefferson. Mrs. Arthur H. Spiegee, president of the Women's Auxiliary of Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago, Aaron Waldheim, Dr. Llewellyn Sale and Mrs. Muriel Anscombe will speak.

The Executive Board, Pioneer Chapter United States Daughters of 1812, was entertained at luncheon Thursday at the residence of Mrs. Frederick Hatch, 5 Lenox place.

The Soldan Patrons' Association will meet Friday at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Little Theater Scenes on Display.

A display of photographs of representative scenes from the plays sponsored by the Little Theater of St. Louis is on display at the Public Library, Fourteenth and Olive streets. Included with the 24 photographs are several sketches by F. Ray Leimkuehler, which were used as working drawings for the scene painters. The Little Theater, since its organization in 1927, has presented 24 plays, with 224 character parts. Actors in the plays are chosen after public tryouts and are recruited entirely from amateur talent.

Wilkins' Story of Antarctic

Concludes Submarine Is Best For Antarctic Exploration

By This Means Bases May Be Established and Scientific Work Carried Out, Explorer Thinks.

Summary—Wilkins' supply ship, the Scoresby, reprovisioned, returns to Deception Island and puts to sea toward Peter Island. South of this point the plane Los Angeles takes the air, flies into a blinding snowstorm, returns. Waiting on the weather, the party loses wireless communication with its base and is cut off from the world. Wilkins determines on a flight. Soon encountering a snow squall, the temperature changes, the engine revolutions grow slower. The machine begins to sink. A dark-looking mass looms ahead—a new land, perhaps—but no, it's not land, only icebergs. Excited by two fleeing objects which look like men, the explorers find they are giant penguins. A snow-cloud closes in. A right about turn is accomplished and the course set for the edge of the ice pack.

Commander of the Wilkins Antarctic Expedition.

NEW YORK.

IT is probable in clear weather, from the farthest south point of our flight from the research ship William Scoresby we would have been able to see land ahead, but we saw no definite indication of it through the snow in which we flew before we were forced to turn back. Once more the stormy elements had robbed us of the satisfaction of definitely outlining the coastline of this sub-Pacific sector of the hypothetical Antarctic continent.

SIR HUBERT WILKINS.

The weather also had cheated us of the chance to fully observe the ice and snow conditions, but by flying very low on our return journey toward the ship I could see that the greatest snowdrifts had been formed when the wind was from the southwest or northeast.

The drifts formed when the wind was from the southwest were slightly larger than those formed when the wind was from the northeast. There was no evidence of winter fractures or pressure in the floe ice and the surface was still slightly roughened by the tops of what once had been broken pack ice. Evidently the floe ice was not many years old, or else the snow-fall in that district is not very great.

Judging from the thickness of the snow on the ice near the edge of the pack, however, it appears that the snowfall last season exceeded two feet in thickness. Much of the ice we observed in February had that thickness of last season's snow still upon it.

The Barrier—Ice.

At times, it seemed to us, the ice must break away from the edge of the thick floating barrier or shelf ice. Sometimes a section of the shelf ice comes with it, as evidenced by the low, flat bergs to which the pack ice still adhered. This seems to indicate that the breaking of the ice from the barrier is periodical, but not necessarily annual.

One thing that seems to bear out this theory is the fact that this year there are many icebergs at the edge of the pack within the pack itself. The breaking off of the bergs probably has some influence on the drift of the ice, subjected as the bergs are—with their greater depths and height—to much pressure from the wind and currents.

Our investigations led us to believe the ice this year, except in the neighborhood of Charcot Land, probably would not move far from the Antarctic continental edge.

Too Far for Supplies.

I believe no surface ship—no matter how strong—could have pushed though it to a point below 71 degrees latitude and between Graham Land and longitude [illegible] west. There was no possible chance, so far as we could see, of a ship ever reaching the barrier. Even if the ice was broken from its edge, the band of pack would still be too formidable. And it is doubtful whether a surface ship even could reach floes of sufficient size and nearness to each other to enable a landing party to walk from ship to shore.

This season, so far as we could see in areas visited, even the edge of the fairly solid pack was more than 120 miles from the landfast ice, a distance far too great for any landing party to attempt to draw their supplies on sleds, unless, of course, they were prepared to live on the resources of the country or prepared to return to their ship at once.

It seems, therefore, unlikely that we can hope to establish yearly boat communication with a permanent base on the coastline in the neighborhood of longitude 100.

But because it is of such importance to the comprehensive study of Antarctic meteorology to have a station in that neighborhood, we must look for other means than surface ships to help us. It is possible, of course, to fly over the pack ice as we have done. And if a party is in a condition to wait for suitable weather, there is no doubt that on some day during the summer season a second flight to a southern base would be possible.

He Favors Submersible.

However, the possibility of finding clear weather conditions combined with seas favorable for a take-off with great loads is so scant as to make that method of establishing and maintaining a base too uncertain for adoption.

It might be done by going with a vessel carrying planes and prepared to winter in the pack. Then, in the early spring, the party could make a runway on the ice and by using skiis carry out the necessary flights.

But I believe contact can be more easily and economically established by using submersible vessels which could go under the pack and come up near the land or at the edge of the solid ice shelf. These vessels could carry airplanes if necessary and would offer greater assurance of carrying out the work.

The icebergs in the pack, if conditions are generally as they are this year, would present no great difficulty to a submarine. The bergs were widely scattered and comparatively small in size, so it would be easy to avoid them.

In Arctic and Antarctic.

During the flights we made over the pack ice, we never saw a floe more than 10 miles wide, except on the solid, practically landfast, ice in Stefansson Strait, and south of Charcot Land. It seems to me that while icebergs might be a slight hindrance to the use of submarines in the Antarctic, they are not an insurmountable obstacle.

Some time, in the not-far-distant future, I believe the submarine will help solve the many difficulties of establishing bases and carrying out detailed scientific work in the Antarctic, as well as in the Arctic.

These things passed through my mind as we flew back toward the Scoresby. We hoped at that time to fly south and see more of the ice and the coast line.

Meanwhile, the task of finding the ship was not an easy one. Undoubtedly we had flown a somewhat muddled course when lost in the clouds and snowstorm, so I decided to keep well to the west until we struck the edge of the pack, and then to follow it until we reached the Scoresby.

This plan of making sure to be on one side of the destination until it seems that you are parallel to it and then turning at right angles is one that was drilled into me thoroughly by Stefansson in the Arctic and time after time I have proved its value.

We flew to the edge of the calm, hazy-belt through which we had passed on our southward journey, and after passing through it came again to the westerly wind. The wind was in our favor and soon after passing under a low, thick cloud we could see the dark loom of the open sea ahead.

The sight of the dark cloud was a relief to our tired eyes, which were aching and sore. We were, as a result of the intense study of the hazy, snow-covered conditions, well on the way to becoming snow-blind.

Flying low along the edge of the ice, we noticed that the temperature had dropped and the wind had increased. No snow had stuck to the wings of the machine during flight, but the struts and propeller were lightly coated at times.

We swung over the William Scoresby and landed.

No sooner had we struck the water than the spray from the

"London Conference Left Mediterranean Problem Even Graver Than Before"

Edouard Herriott Declares If France Had Entered Four-Power Pact It Would Have Cut Europe in Two Parts and Created Coalition of Italy-Germany-Russia.

Every Country Left Parley With Divided Opinions, Former French Premier Asserts—Old Type of Armament Diplomacy Conflicts With the New.

By EDOUARD HERRIOT,
Former Premier of France.

(Copyright, 1930)

PARIS, April 19.

THE check at London allows us to tell the truth at least as far as we see it—this ceremony of the fifth plenary seance of the Naval Conference at St. James's was rather deceiving. In my imagination, I can see my friend Ramsay MacDonald without doubt just as I saw him in 1924, but perhaps a little older, like myself, but still alert and, I imagine, rather disappointed at having to register such mediocre results from such a large number of reserves. Now they are going to draw up the acts—acts of death, some wits will say. The delegations begin to leave. It is an appropriate moment to ask what is the result of this solemn reunion.

Optimists tell us that a practical formula has been found for the limitation of naval armaments; limitation by global tonnages was upheld for a long time by France and Italy has been reconciled with the limitation by categories as recommended by Great Britain. And that is an acquisition for future Geneva discussions already incorporated in the three-Power accord.

Hoover's Explanation in D. A. R. Address.

Luckily, too, the three great nations agreed upon their naval programs. President Hoover, in a speech to the congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, signalized with all the authority which is inherent in his person and functions, the importance of these results. The level of English, Japanese and American armaments has been lowered, he tells us, about 25 per cent in comparison with those of the conference in 1927, and about 12 per cent on the programs due for execution. One part of the suspicion which still poisons the world has disappeared. He adds, "We have created a situation which presents neither superiority nor inferiority for the United States, and on the other hand, faithful to the Kellogg pact, we pledge to utilize our forces only in self-defense."

We have a right to hope that the United States will soon become members of The Hague International Court of Justice which is a tribunal that has acquired almost complete confidence of the whole world. A great president admits that his country can associate itself with such an admirable institution without danger to its dignity and independence.

Here are some results which will please you. But how do things stand on our side of the Atlantic? France, Britain and Italy remain primarily European Powers. The accord of the five-Powers was not reached. We must try again at Geneva, but with slight chances of success. The problem seems settled for the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans; it remains graver than ever for the Mediterranean Sea. Admiral Degouy has just called attention of the United States to the gravity of the situation there.

France and Italy Still Estranged.

The Mediterranean, small as it looks on the map, is not only an interior lake. It interests Europe, Asia and Africa. It represents an indispensable route for all nations. It interests not only those who dwell in the valleys but the mountaineers as well. Neutralization of this sea has been suggested somewhat after the manner of the Black Sea which was governed in 1856 by the Treaty of Paris, a regime which lasted till the war of 1870. It would be necessary to preserve such a neutrality by means of an international patrol fleet under the League of Nations. Degouy has said that the United States would be obliged to aid in keeping this route open to the Philippines.

> *I ADHERE to the conclusions * * * * * that there is a society of nations. It is worth what it is worth. The absence of the United States creates a want which we cannot stress too much.*
> So long as the big problems affecting nations are not submitted to this body, so long will this body be incomplete.
> *I understand and I respect the United States' scruples. * * * * But precisely because we admire them we wish freely to tell them our sentiments.*
> Acting from the outside and afar off and regulating first their own problems, the United States is placed in the position of leaving the already fragile equilibrium of peace to break itself, that same equilibrium which President Wilson wished to stabilize.

EDOUARD HERRIOT

But these are questions for tomorrow. Today, the treaty of three has resisted the opposition of all. The treaty of five has accomplished only secondary ends. One must realize that if Briand had entered a four-Power pact, it would have cut Europe in two parts and would have created a coalition of Italy, Germany and Russia; his action at London was not due to stubbornness but simply precaution for the future. It is enough to say that the relations of France and Italy have not yet reached a point where a solution is practicable. Between the two countries, London left a blank page to show for her labors.

Thus, while President Hoover is congratulating himself on what he calls success, we see the "Fortnightly Review" avowing failure since the question of British relations with Europe has not been settled. Let me repeat that the conference in London could have been better prepared by more patient negotiations. It would have been far better to consult the diplomats before rather than interview them afterwards. I shall remain with the firm conviction that there was a definite and essential and inescapable contradiction between the aim which was to arrive at partial disarmament of the five Powers and the method which consisted in achieving at first an independent accord between the strongest units of the group in order to force it later upon the weaker units. It is upon this problem of method that all sincere friends of peace and all partisans of disarmament should reflect.

At London the problem was not taken up. To achieve at first parity between the United States and England was in my opinion, to suggest the idea to Italy of obtaining parity with France. Possibly thinking thus, I commit the error typical of a Frenchman; if so, all we require is to be shown that such is the case. But in our opinion, it is in the depths of logical reasoning and nowhere else that the cause of the failure of the conference must be sought. It was doomed from the start.

MacDonald Agreement Weakened the U. S.

The augur in the "Fortnightly Review" is significant in this respect. It confirms to our way of thinking, that MacDonald first concluded the entente with the United States in order to seek later an entente with Europe. It was a single entente that was necessary. And according to our judgment, the United States, had she arrived a free lance in London, would have weighed even more heavily on the negotiations. Perhaps also, in order to be equitable, England has been a victim in this dramatic situation, and such a situation will often occur which obliges her to examine her problems from two different points of view, from the European and the French.

In fact, whoever wishes to reflect and does not wish to content himself with official communiques, the London Conference will have created as against some apparent results, much disorder and certain dangers. I may ask—what is the real situation? Great Britain is tied with the United States but without a guarantee on the side of France and Italy who remain free. We French Democrats refuse to rejoice with the Nationalists at the liberty which is left to us—we would have preferred a formula increasing our security by the reduction of the perils which can menace us. What will it mean to us if naval armaments are increased in the Mediterranean by others, or by certain French governments? What will Britain do in such a case? Will not the three-Power pact be abolished by this single factor? And then shall we not return to the old odious nationalisms?

A wise man cannot rid himself of doubts and fears. If Great Britain is forced to augment armaments, America and Japan will do the same. Undertaken too soon, the London conference will darken the future which it was intended to render clear.

Deplores Incomplete Society of Nations.

After full reflection, I find myself confirmed in the idea I have always sustained and I adhere to the conclusions of the augur in the "Fortnightly Review" that there is a society of nations. It is worth what it is worth. The absence of the United States creates a want which we cannot stress too much. In revenge one finds Germany there without whom nothing durable towards peace can be accomplished. So long as the big problems affecting nations are not submitted to this body, so long will this body be incomplete; so long as conferences of the new type such as those of Geneva are combined with those of the old type such as that in London, so long will disorder reign. You wish to construct a great monument—a temple of peace. You believe it possible to allow the architects to work on their side and build independently of the rest of the edifice three columns to which it is necessary to adapt afterwards the remainder of the work. So posed, the problem is insoluble.

I understand and I respect the United States' scruples. It was the reactionary and conquering folly of Europe which led them to the Monroe Doctrine. But precisely because we admire them we wish freely to tell them our sentiments. At the center of the great world organization of disarmament and peace, even without taking engagements which are distasteful to their national conscience, by their youthful sagacity and by their force, the United States contributes towards rendering Europe sage, this Europe to which they have rendered so many services, even if only in giving it the Dawes Plan and the Young Plan. Acting from the outside and afar off, and regulating first their own problems, the United States is placed in the position of leaving the already fragile equilibrium of peace to break itself, that same equilibrium which President Wilson wished to stabilize.

For us the London conference was a check, a grave check, a very grave check. It left every country in the world with divided opinions. A German journalist writes "The question of disarmament is posed without any idea as to how to get it." Wickham Steed wrote, "The conference was doomed from the first by the decision of the United States and Britain not to let the real political problems be attacked."

The matter will come up at Geneva in 1936 and the world will again hope.

Poincare Defends Foch Against Attack of Clemenceau; Calls "Tiger" a Victim of Amnesia

Says Premier's Particular Grievance Was "Incurable Disorder" in the Rear of Gen. Pershing's Army.

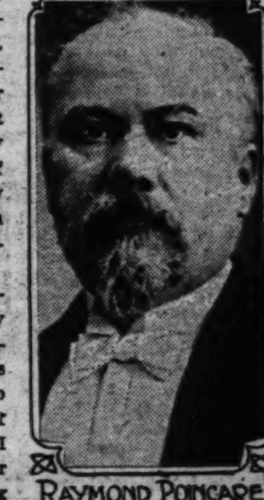
By RAYMOND POINCARE,
War-Time President of France.

(Copyright, 1930. All rights reserved.)

PARIS, April 19.

HAVE you read "Grandeur and Misery of Victory" by the Father of Victory, I was asked some days ago by an old friend of Clemenceau? Aren't you going to reply to the posthumous criticisms of "L'homme Libre" (The Freeman) and "L'Homme Enchainee" (The Chained Man"): I replied I was rather gratified both at its testimentary amiabilities and its errors as well. In truth, they rejuvenated me by 15 years and for that reason I cannot be expected to complain.

I have been asked to criticise certain inexactitudes which may have shocked me. But I will write a later date following my recollections the complete history of the Clemenceau story; I shall do it without the least resentment, naturally, and with the liveliest admiration for the patriot who at that time not only deserved well of France but actually preserved her from the menace of "Defeatism."



RAYMOND POINCARE.

I deplore, regardless whence they came, those retrospective quarrels that have come to trouble the peace of two coffins. I spoke in a similar way to the living Clemenceau. I have not changed my opinion simply because he now revives some faults of bygone days. Such a fact is no reason for us to forget his magnificent qualities.

However, I perceive today my duty in not allowing to pass without protest a certain number of calumninous allegations which have been directed against Marshal Foch regarding facts of which I had personal knowledge and which the failing memory of the almost 90-year-old Clemenceau completely misrepresented. Gen. Weygand, more qualified than anyone to defend the immortal figure of the great soldier, announced publicly his intention of defending his chief at a late date. I who have seen Foch at work and who have been involved in several of the incidents which Clemenceau relates from the tomb, am unwilling to keep silent before the widow and the family in mourning when such silence might be interpreted by strangers if not by Frenchmen as acquiescence.

No, it is not true that Foch was an undisciplined soldier. If he had been the man painted by Clemenceau, if he had been "preoccupied with his personal interests," "lacking in ideas," if he had been capable of "making a religious mess out of discipline," if his soul had "lacked that inflexibility in duty which is the surest manifestation of moral and intellectual grandeur," if he had been as others, "drunk with the brilliance of his renown," "blind by the smoke of incense," if he had not been able to let himself go to the extent of "forgetfulness of personal dignity," he would have had only too many opportunities during and after the war to imitate that Gen. Boulanger with whom Clemenceau attempted to compare him. To devote an entire chapter to Foch under the mean and unjust title "Military Insubordination" is nothing less than an aberration.

Disparagements Inexcusable.

Foch was one of the least proud and one of the most modest and assuming men that ever lived. I am happy to give Clemenceau full credit for the fact that after the unfortunate affair of Chemin des Dames, he courageously defended him in the Chamber against the maddened attacks of certain Deputies. But this noble attitude does not excuse the passionate disparagements which come out of La Vendee today. When Clemenceau says, "For many reasons I am not convinced that he (Foch) played in the conduct of the war the decisive role which public opinion is inclined to lend him; and that history should be written by others than those who have lived it," one can only be astonished and, let me add, saddened by such an unfavorable and unjust appreciation which he aggravates moreover immediately by those words, "It must be said that in the exercise of his solitary command, the Generalissimo several times suffered from a hesitant spirit and to vacillation of will which rendered uncertain results confidently expected to materialize satisfactorily."

Not Violent Nor Capricious.

Clemenceau gives a long account of those so-called vacillations relative, he says, to the use of the American contingents, and he repeats on several occasions that Foch "did not want the command." He calls him outright a chief with a "paralyzed will." Undoubtedly Foch did not have an impulsive will nor was it violent and capricious, but he knew how, whenever it was necessary, to act with vigor and firmness. It is not less false that he had, as Clemenceau wrote, a total incomprehension of the supreme command. He exercised it with equal tact and firmness. The results are there to prove the fullness of his success. What, then, is the particular grievance which Clemenceau evokes to justify the severity of his judgment and all his harshness, some examples of which I have just given? Here it is. In October of 1918, after a visit to the American Army, the Premier sent to the Marshal a letter which he took care not to quote and which contained the following passages: "I went on Sept. 29 into the battle zone of the American Army between the Argonne and the Meuse. In the course of this visit I was greatly struck by the lack of organization and even incurable disorder which reigned in the rear of Gen. Pershing's army. The roads were so congested as to render all traffic impossible . . . . This situation, so different from that which prevails in the rear of our armies, gave a very precise idea that the American Army was paralyzed. Gravely impressed, I communicated my observations to Gen. Petain, who told me you had asked him to describe the situation in some detail and that he was going to send you a report.

"This long list of shortcomings on the part of the American Command engages the responsibility of the Commander-in-Chief no less than the French Minister of War, who has to give an account of the exercise of his powers to Parliament. When I made representations to you in this regard, you replied that your position as Commander-in-Chief of the Allies' Armies placed you outside of my authority. I made a reply appropriate to the circumstances

Are We All Communists?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"THIS is a world of words," and as we approach May day one particular word is perilously near becoming a fearsome bugaboo. A negligible handful of a very minor political party is by some timorous souls pronounced a national menace. So much so that our Government refuses to recognize a nation of 150,000,000 souls that have adopted that party's tenets.

The mere mention of the word "communism," even with bated breath, is to make some timid citizens shake in their shoes. It may be well, therefore, to calm our national nerves by realizing that we already have measurable communism with us, and find it not at all fearsome. Our youngest child is educated in a school run on communistic principles for the free benefit of all the inhabitants of the United States of America, rich or poor, penniless or purse proud.

After school days education is furthered by the reading of books from a common library, free for all. Outdoor life can be enjoyed in delightful parks maintained for the delectation gratis of every human being. Magnificent highways freely invite all comers, and no toil to pay. Our postoffice serves alike prince or pauper, and even provides a people's bank. Moreover music in the air, even the finest, may be had for the asking. Free hospitals for the sick and afflicted commonalty are in the same category.

Finally we are assured that even after death rich and poor are alike communists, sharing the same Elysian fields and partaking of the same perfect paradisaic pabulum or potion. Perhaps, as we remember that the early Christians, led by Peter and John, "had all things in common," we can regard with equanimity any orators that May day soap boxes may inspire.

Thinks Zoo Should Be Indexed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT has always seemed to me that there should be more indexing of the various exhibits at our Zoo, and after an experience I had recently I am convinced of it. I was watching the antics of the sun bears when someone in a group standing nearby remarked: "I wonder if there is anything else to see." I got into conversation with one of them and learned they were visitors from Brazil, Ind. After talking for a few minutes to find out what they had seen I realized they had missed half the exhibits. I volunteered to act as guide and enjoyed pointing out the many superior features of our wonderful Zoo.

Henry George's Remedy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"HENRY GEORGE wrote 'Progress and Poverty' 50 years ago, and his theory has made no eminent converts among economists or statesmen since," says "Student." Well! Well! Neither has the Golden Rule and that is older than "Progress and Poverty," though not older than the principles laid down in the works of Henry George.

The reason the "outstanding attempt at solving the unemployment problem" is unsound is that it ignores the commonest facts (not theories) of social and industrial life.

Labor and its handmaid, capital, produce all of the wealth in the world. Labor produces all wages in advance of at least one week. Capital produces what, for lack of a better term, I call surwages.

If labor and capital are denied opportunity to apply industry to land there can be no wages and hence no wage fund.

To propose a reserve wage fund is to ignore the fact (not theory) that wages are the result and not the cause of labor.

The suggestion that employers should maintain a reserve wage fund even if it cuts into their dividends ought to cause a stampede among employers who are just dying to play Santa Claus.

Quack remedies will not work.

Henry George's remedy is sound because it harmonizes with the laws of the universe.

A Little Horse Sense Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

THE United States of America needs no experiments when it comes to controlling the morals of its citizens by acts of Congress.

The Constitution does not call on Congress to pass laws regarding our appetites.

If there were a little more horse sense practiced by our representatives in Washington and less attention paid to fanatics, we would not be drifting as we are today.

FRANK W. JANSKY.

MITCHELL AND THE JUDICIARY.

An extremely narrow view of the duties and responsibilities of the Federal judiciary was expressed by Attorney-General Mitchell in his defense of Judge John J. Parker. Parker, recently nominated as Supreme Court Justice by President Hoover, is under fire for his decision in the Red Jacket "yellow dog" contract case. It is Mitchell's contention that Parker was compelled by his oath of office to follow previous rulings of the Supreme Court in parallel cases. In other words—if Mitchell's view is sound—when the Supreme Court has passed on the legal aspects of a given set of facts, Judges in lower courts called upon to decide similar cases are mere rubber stamps and must bow slavishly to precedent.

We are unable to find anything in the oath of office of a Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, the court in which Parker sat, to bear out Mitchell's contention. A United States Circuit Judge swears that he "will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me * * * according to the best of my abilities and understanding, agreeably to the Constitution and laws of the United States." Nothing in the oath compels obedience to Supreme Court precedent, nor, in our opinion, can the word "laws" be construed to include Supreme Court decisions. Those decisions are not laws in the sense of a statute passed by Congress. The Supreme Court is not a law-making body, but one which interprets the laws and expounds what has been called "the law of the law."

It is a matter of custom and practice for Federal Judges to follow Supreme Court decisions, but there is nothing mandatory about it. As a matter of fact, it is not unusual for courts of inferior jurisdiction to hand down decisions contrary to those previously rendered by the Supreme Court in similar cases. Even when a Judge feels bound to follow precedent, he may express his personal disagreement with Supreme Court doctrine. Judges have done so in numerous cases and, in so doing, have undertaken to live up to the high conception of their duties as embodied in the oath. It is one of the points against Judge Parker that he contented himself, in the Red Jacket case, with quoting precedent, thus creating an assumption that he was in entire accord with the Supreme Court doctrine.

If a Judge must make unquestioning obeisance to precedent, it is to acknowledge that the law is not a vital, progressive force but a mass of petrified precedent. Speaking on this same point with regard to the duties of the bar, Charles Warren, in his standard work, "The Supreme Court in United States History," made the following powerful commentary:

> One other duty towards the court and towards the public is owed by counsel which should be unflinchingly performed, namely, to insist that the doctrine of stare decisis (to stand by decided cases as precedents) can never be properly applied to decisions upon constitutional questions. However the court may interpret the provisions of the Constitution it is still the Constitution which is the law and not the decision of the court.

Warren then quotes the following from "Works of John Bancroft": "To the decision of any underlying question of constitutional right * * * no finality attaches. To endure, it must be right." And he adds:

> Hence, as has been well said recently: "Any citizen whose liberty or property is at stake has an absolute constitutional right to appear before the court and challenge its interpretations of the Constitution, no matter how often they have been promulgated, upon the ground that they are repugnant to its provisions. * * * When the bar of the country understands this, and respectfully but inexorably requires of the Supreme Court that it shall continually justify its decisions by the Constitution, and not by its own precedents, we shall gain a new conception of the power of our constitutional guarantees. * * * What we need is constant and unrelenting professional criticism of judicial opinions, and constant insistence that judicial errors or reasoning shall be judicially corrected."

When Abraham Lincoln made his brilliant attack upon the Supreme Court for its Dred Scott decision, he agreed that the Supreme Court's decisions were final "upon the parties to a suit, as to the object of that suit"; he also acknowledged that those decisions were entitled to the highest respect and consideration in parallel cases. But there he drew a sharp line, saying that "if the policy of the Government, upon vital questions affecting the whole people, is to be irrevocably fixed by decisions of the Supreme Court, the instant they are made in ordinary litigation between parties in personal actions, the people will have ceased to be their own rulers, having to that extent practically resigned their government into the hands of that eminent tribunal."

The effect of Attorney-General Mitchell's view of the Federal judiciary would be to reduce Federal Judges to the level of clerks, and to fix upon us Judge-made law. It would delegate to the bar and to the citizenry the entire responsibility of conducting the fight against an unsound Supreme Court decision, denying to them the valuable aid of the Judges of inferior jurisdiction. Such a view of the judiciary, it seems to us, is repugnant to the principles of a free constitutional government.

WITH A PUNCH.

Henry Ford has long and ably advocated high wages as the basis of prosperity, but here is how an English industrialist, Seebohm Rowntree, puts it:

> Every industry, every factory, which pays low wages is a menace to the welfare of the community because it is not providing its due share of purchasing power.

That is saying it without flowers.

AN INVITATION TO MURDER.

The District Attorney at Fort Worth, Tex., announces he has obtained a confession disclosing that the recent attempted hold-up of the bank at Polytechnic, a suburb, was a frame-up inspired by the large rewards offered in Texas for dead bank robbers. Four white men induced two Negroes to hold up the bank, the Prosecutor says, and then one of the conspirators shot the robbers down.

This is not the first time such plots have been exposed in Texas, and several men have been convicted of killing persons they had betrayed in this way. When the Texas Bankers' Association a few years ago posted a standing reward of $5000 for each robber killed, it probably hoped to stimulate vigilance. Instead, it has stimulated cupidity. In the effort to protect property, it has cheapened human life.

The association would do better to spend its money to install alarms and protective devices against robbers. The standing reward is a constant invitation to unscrupulous persons to murder their misguided dupes at a flat rate of $5000 per murder. It may have prevented a few hold-ups, but it has made attempted bank robbery subject to capital punishment, not by the authorities, but by private individuals.

SENATOR VANDENBERG'S BILL.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, speaking before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, urged the passage of an important piece of legislation which he introduced last year. The bill, now slumbering in the Senate Judiciary Committee, would give a person cited for contempt the right to have the case heard by another Judge if the contempt arises from an attack on the character or conduct of the Judge who brings the action. As the law now stands, a Judge who feels aggrieved first acts as complainant, then as referee "in a proceeding which primarily involves his own personal status and his own personal feelings as differentiated from the status and authority of his court."

A recent instance of such an abuse of authority was the case of two editors of the Cleveland Press, who bitterly attacked a Judge's decision, in a proceeding involving the operation of a racetrack. The Judge felt his personal integrity was brought into question. He cited the editors for contempt and found them guilty, but his decision was reversed on appeal. Obviously this Judge was no proper person to pass on the contempt charge. He could not possibly dissociate his own feelings from his judgment of the two men. On such an occasion, the power to cite men for contempt is difficult to distinguish from an instrument of revenge and tyranny.

Senator Vandenberg's bill deserves the Senate Judiciary Committee's immediate consideration.

TEE HEE.

Chicago, accused by the states surrounding the Great Lakes of being responsible for the low levels that have prevailed in recent years, lost its fight to continue the diversion of Lake Michigan water into the Chicago River for sewage disposal purposes. That explains the delicate irony in the following editorial from the Chicago Tribune, entitled "Up Goes Lake Erie":

> Lake Erie is a yard higher than it normally is at this time of year. Householders at Point Place, near Toledo, have been driven from their homes. No doubt as they fled they continued to execrate the drainage canal in Chicago which, as all Ohioans well know, is responsible for the lowering of the lakes. No doubt.

Since nearly everyone, including the Supreme Court of the United States, fell for the argument that Chicago was the villain of the piece, this editorial breathes the justifiable intellectual arrogance of one who loses a decision, but wins the argument.

We always believed that if Wild Bill Hallahan ever threw a ball over the plate it would be a wow, and it was.

AFTER MARK TWAIN.

Apprehensions that Missouri humor, which is of a very high type, would decline after the passing of Mark Twain are not borne out by what some of the newspapers out in the State are saying about Charlie Becker.

For instance, because the Post-Dispatch has shown that the largess distributed by our ebullient Secretary of State accounts for the way some of the Republican newspapers are booming him for Governor, the St. Charles Cosmos-Monitor says we have slapped the rural press in the face. That ought to make some of the Democratic editors double up with laughter in a way they have not indulged themselves since they read "Huckleberry Finn." The Cosmos-Monitor also says that all the country newspapers are doing is backing Charlie in his fight for the people, which should make the people roar pretty much as they did when they read "Tom Sawyer."

The Cosmos-Monitor is trying to spoof us. We regard Charlie as the chief obstacle to sound and economic government at Jefferson City, and we deplore the influence of his favors upon that part of the press which would make it appear that he is something else. As for the rest of the State press, we are quite sure that it will bear us out in this respect, and it is not necessary for us to deny that our indictment was ever laid against the rural press as a whole. Like the metropolitan press, it has its bad spots, and we put our finger upon one of them.

The Ford Motor Co. announces it will dismiss any employe found "living in any place where liquor is bought, sold, consumed or given away," but until he stops selling cars to the wets, we shall refuse to catalogue Henry as a fanatical dry.

WILD BILL AND HERMAN BELL.

Wild Bill Hallahan came into his own Friday when he held the Cubs to two hits and one unearned run, and struck out 11 men, including Rogers Hornsby, who appeared as a pinch hitter with the bases full. It is true Hallahan issued nine bases on balls, but he did not, as in the past, permit his wildness to overcome him. Credit for the young man's brilliant performance goes to Gabby Street. On the training trip, it seems Gabby himself lost 12 pounds during the first 10 days working with Hallahan, lulling the wild one to sleep each night with success stories and inspirational talks on finding the plate.

This fills our cup of happiness almost to the brimming point. It means, so we are assured, that the Cardinals will play in the world series next October. However, there remains Herman Bell. Herman has all the physical equipment necessary. His fast ball smokes, his curve breaks sharply enough and, what's more, he has control. Perhaps it is the last quality that has proved Herman's undoing in the many years he has sought a major league berth. By placing his fast ball in the exact center of the plate during the 1926 world series, for instance, is what enabled Prof. Ruth to compile that terrific and historic home run which traveled only a few feet above the grass to centerfield, then zoomed into the seats.

Since the secret of Wild Bill's success is his waxing mastery of direction, perhaps the cue to Herman's failure is for him to acquire the wildness that Bill is losing. We submit this idea to Gabby Street and urge immediate action, for Herman's case is verging closely on the statute of limitations.

FIRST AID FOR THE FARMER.

Barcelona: The Different Spanish City

Unlike the other people of Spain, the Catalans do not think business unworthy of gentle folks; it was here Primo de Rivera first showed the iron in him; Barcelona first honored Columbus with a 200-foot column for discovering America and then pelted his image when Spain lost the Spanish-American War.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Elizabeth Lord Driemeyer.

BARCELONA, March 25.

BACK in the early days of history the Phoenicians, in their wanderings about the Mediterranean, came to the coast of Spain and founded the town which today is Barcelona. From that day to this it has been a thriving community and an important port. It is the capital of the Province of Catalonia, whose people have retained their character and independence through the many invasions of Romans, Goths, Arabs and French. Most Spaniards are inherently prejudiced against trade, as something not quite worthy of a gentleman's attention, but with the Catalans, as they are called, the reverse is true. In Barcelona there are countless factories. The harbor is crowded with shipping. A third of Spain's imports pass through this gate, one of the chief among them being cotton from the United States. It is often spoken of as the Spanish Manchester.

The Catalans were always a proud people, and for this reason it has been difficult to govern them from Madrid. Catalan is spoken more generally than Spanish. Barcelona has long been a center of labor troubles, strikes and Socialist propaganda. Primo de Rivera was Military Governor here for a time in 1923, and to him is ascribed much of the order that now prevails. He handled the situation with great skill. He is said to have indicated that he would side with them in their quarrels with the Government, but urged them to wait until the right moment for action. Before that moment arrived the Moroccan situation became desperate, and he soon afterward gained control of the Government. While in Barcelona he suppressed labor agitators, stamped out a dangerous secret society, put an end to rioting, and restored peace generally. As a result, the industrial leaders of Catalonia became his stanch supporters.

Perhaps the most interesting sight in Barcelona is the street known as the Ramblas, the busiest part of this busy city. The broad central pavement lined with sycamores is flanked with narrow roadways for street cars and automobiles, and these in turn are bordered by sidewalks with their encroaching shops and cafes. The name "Rambla" means stream, and is derived from the brook which once flowed through the heart of the old walled city. From morning to night this avenue is agog with life. Bareheaded women, others with veils covering but not concealing their dark hair, pass up and down, talking and laughing. Officers of the police and the Civil Guard in their bright colored uniforms thread their way through the crowd.

One section is known as the Rambla de Estudios because of the numerous stalls piled high with cages in which gaily colored song birds, green parrots, parrakeets and pigeons are displayed to the ever-interested throngs. Farther down is the Rambla de las Flores, whose stalls are given over to an amazing array of flowers, their bright hues putting the rainbow to shame. When the sun grows hot the flowers are protected by huge umbrellas. Hawkers, displaying all sorts of useless toys, cry their wares. And always the ever-increasing human stream flows restlessly up and down. The hours from 7 until 9 in the evenings are the most popular for promenading. At that time the crowd on the Rambla is so dense that it is impossible to do more than keep one's place in the ranks. Haste is futile. With the dusk this pulsing heart of Barcelona takes on an air of mystery. Sailors of all nations whose ships ride at anchor in the harbor, pass by, pleasure-bent. The cafes along the way are crowded and in some of them there is music to which sailors dance with the girls who frequent these places.

Turning to the right or left into any of the many small streets, one enters another world. Rough cobblestones pave the narrow roadways in their devious windings. On either side the buildings rise five or six stories in height, making veritable canyons of these passages and excluding most of the sunshine. Ground floors are lined with tiny shops, whose interiors are lost in shadows. A boy passes with long ropes of garlic slung over his shoulder, women with baskets on their arms stop to exchange the gossip of the day and an occasional horse-drawn cart clears the narrow street for the moment. Well filled clothes lines, controlled by pulleys, festoon the windows. This part of the city has an Old World atmosphere about it, as foreign to the great avenues and beautiful villas of the new Barcelona as though a continent divided them instead of a few minutes' walk.

At the intersection of the Ramblas with the Paseo de Colon, or "Columbus Parade," is the Plaza de la Paz. Here rises the Columbus monument, a 200-foot column surmounted by a statue of the navigator. He faces toward the West and points with outstretched hand to those lands in which his heart believed before his eyes beheld them. After finding a new world, he was received by the King and Queen in Barcelona. The city was in gala dress to pay him homage, and great was the astonishment at sight of the Indians, the strange birds, animals and precious metals which he had brought back with him to prove his veracity.

The Barcelona contract drawn up at that time granted to Columbus an eighth part of all the riches derived from the lands which he had discovered. Had Ferdinand kept his word, the wealth which would have come to Colon staggers the imagination. Instead, he died impoverished and disillusioned, but the city which honored him at the height of his glory has been the one to open its arms to the treasures of those Indies which he had found. Barcelona has enshrined him in its heart except for one occasion. At the end of the Spanish-American War, when news came of the Spanish defeat and the loss of the last of her far-flung Western Empire, the people of the city gathered missiles of all sorts and pelted the statue of Columbus, who had made possible their humiliation.

WOMEN VOTERS WILL MEET AT LOUISVILLE

Group of St. Louis Women to Attend National Convention April 28.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 20.—The biennial convention of the National League of Women Voters, to celebrate the first decade of woman suffrage and the tenth birthday of the league, will open here a week from tomorrow for daily sessions lasting until May 3.

Members of the Board of Directors, headed by Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland, president, will arrive in Louisville Thursday for three-day sessions.

Friday night, May 2, is the date set for celebrating the anniversary. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt will be present. A roll of honor has been established by the National League to honor suffrage and citizenship workers. The list is to be made public May 1. New York leads all other state leagues in nominating the greatest number for the roll. It has chosen 10 women. Several other states, including Massachusetts, Minnesota, Illinois, Ohio and California, have nominated from four to six names.

The first two days of the convention will be devoted to conferences of the departments and committees. Interest is centered in the living costs conference, when "The Woman Voter and the Tariff" will be the subject, with Dr. John H. Gray, head of the department of economics of the American University, as the speaker. Discussion will be under the leadership of Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin of Washington.

Another conference is to combine legal status and social hygiene committees, with Dr. S. P. Breckinridge, a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago presiding. A jury service skit, which will present the progress of the jury service campaign, accepted by some leaders as the logical campaign for women's rights to follow that of the equal suffrage, will be presented under the direction of Mrs. Chauncey J. Hamlin of Buffalo. The principal conference speaker will be Dr. Helen Vincent McLean, director of the Woman's Division, Chicago Public Health Institute, and a lecturer on medicine in the University of Chicago, will discuss "The Prostitute and the Courts."

New and prospective voters of the college Leagues of Women Voters will have special conferences and luncheons on May 2 and 3.

St. Louis and St. Louis County women who will attend the convention are: Mrs. Ralph Douglas, Mrs. George Gellhorn, Mrs. Virgil Loeb, Mrs. James Rogers, Miss Marie Ames, Dr. Harriet Cory, Mrs. E. T. Senseney, Mrs. Wilford M. Aiken, Mrs. Luella St. Clair Moss, Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, Mrs. T. M. Sayman, Mrs. G. Alex Hope, Mrs. B. F. Bowles, Mrs. John Herron, Mrs. A. B. Crowe, Mrs. Earl Peabody, Mrs. H. F. Chadeayne, Mrs. D. E. Horton, Mrs. P. H. McAvoy, Mrs. Charles Duncan, Mrs. Aaron Rauh, Mrs. Oscar Bausch, Miss Ruth Siemer, Mrs. H. McClure Young, Mrs. J. T. Bush, Mrs. W. J. Dick, Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, Mrs. E. W. Stix, Mrs. Ralph Dustin Griffin, Mrs. Jerome E. Cook, Mrs. W. P. Ward and Mrs. B. F. Bowles.

GROUND-BREAKING TOMORROW FOR HADLEY SCHOOL UNIT

Board Officers, Superintendent and Pupils to Take Part in Program.

Ground will be broken for the first unit of the new Hadley Vocational School in a public ceremony at Bell and Channing avenues at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow. A. S. Werremeyer, chairman of the Board of Education Vocational Education Committee, will call the gathering to order and introduce the chairman, Arthur A. Blumeyer, president of the board.

Speakers will include Superintendent of Instruction Gerling, Assistant Superintendent T. E. Spencer, who is in charge of vocational education and principal of Hadley School, and Acting Building Commissioner Sanger. Pupils of the school will participate in the program and music will be furnished by the Custodians' Band of the school system.

Commercial and industrial interests of the city are watching development of the vocational school with interest. The building to be erected now will cost $1,592,490.

TO INSTALL WEBSTER GROVES PASTOR TOMORROW EVENING

First Congregational Church's New Minister Is the Rev. George M. Gibson.

The Rev. George M. Gibson, former pastor of Trinity Church, Cleveland, will be installed as minister of the First Congregational Church in Webster Groves at services to be held at the church tomorrow nsight at 7:30.

The installation sermon will be preached by the Rev. G. M. Gibson Sr. of Dallas, Tex.

Other pastors who will participate in the services are the Rev. Dr. Wofford C. Timmons of the First Congregational Church in St. Louis; the Rev. Dr. Seth H. Buell of Compton Hill Church; the Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Rev. Charles C. Burger, superintendent of the Missouri Congregational.

The Rev. Mr. Gibson succeeds the Rev. Dwight Bradley. He is a native Missourian, but spent his boyhood in Dallas. He was a member of the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War.

Poincare Defends Foch Against Clemenceau's Attack

and I need not repeat it here. Until you think fit to translate your point of view into practice, I would rather continue to ignore it.

"Speak to Stop Disorder."

"It is not for me to suggest the solution which it behooves you to impose on Gen. Pershing, who is under your command. But I shall be keeping within the bounds of my office if I tell you that when you have found the solution it is your strict duty as Commander-in-Chief to impose it.

"Today it is enough for you to speak to stop the disorder among the American troops and to restore the order which you should exact from all the military organizations under your command. I have often asked that of you without obtaining satisfaction because you think your powers of persuasion will end by obtaining from Gen. Pershing the desired result without having recourse to the Military Command which you seem to think it preferable to postpone as long as possible.

"In these last few days you announced to me that you had at last given an order; you even sent Gen. Weygand to Gen. Pershing with that end. You know the result as well as I: Gen. Pershing refused to obey. You promised me that if Gen. Pershing disobeyed your orders again you would tell him of your intention of referring the matter to President Wilson. My duty, as I understand it, would be to make energetic representations to the American Government myself, if it were proved to me that there was a failing on your part.

"Commands You to Command."

"There is no man in France and in all the allied and enemy countries who does not admire your strategic conceptions, and your manner of putting them into practice. It is, therefore, all the more necessary that the French and British armies should not see their success spoiled by the disorganization of one of the three armies of which you are chief. This is a part of your task which you cannot continue to neglect forever. At this moment the country commands that you should command."

Thus Clemenceau considered, according to his own words, the disorder of the American armies. He knew Foch was busying himself with the problem since he had asked for a report from Gen. Petain. But he found time long. He imagined that to organize the services of a numerous and valiant army still young and inexperienced, words were sufficient. He wanted Foch to give an order as if an order, no matter how imperious could bring the necessary remedy to such a delicate and complex situation. And while mingling flowers with the thorns, he reproached Foch as severely as ever a great General of conscientious action was reproached.

It must be noted, first, that in his book Clemenceau confounds the object of this letter on the disorder in the rear with a request for more numerous American contingents and with the question as to how they were to be employed. But let us leave that and look only at the sentence, "The nation commands that you command." The entire letter was obviously made for this sentence which sounds high-minded and firm. Clemenceau has now written that Foch "refused to exert the authority conferred on the Commander-in-Chief at Doullens. But the authority conferred March 26, 1918, on Foch at the conference at Doullens extended in no manner over the American army. Only the British and the French Governments were represented at that meeting, which undertook to charge Foch only with co-ordinating the action of the Allies armies. I shall explain at the proper time in detail the question of the Supreme Command, and I shall have many points to clear up. But no one can deny today that America remained apart from this first attempt at co-ordination.

It is true that two days afterwards, on March 28, Gen. Pershing himself came to Clermont (Oise) to visit with Foch and courteously placed himself at Foch's disposition in the struggle for the common cause. But the English themselves at that date, had not yet accepted the Supreme Command. Even at Beauvais on April 3, they had not yet come to a decision. They contented themselves with giving Foch "strategic direction of the military operations." At this conference, the desire was expressed to obtain the adherence of the Americans and their assent was even counted upon. But no one was there to represent them. At the request of the English, a tentative agreement clause was added specifying that each Commander-in-Chief shall have the right to consult his government if, in his opinion, his army finds itself in danger by any instruction received from Gen. Foch. And equal care was taken to specify likewise that each Commander-in-Chief should fully exercise the tactical conduct of his army.

Foch Made Allied Chief.

It was only on May 2, 1918, at Abbeville, that the Inter-Allied Council of War was held and attended by Gen. Pershing, although by the will of his country, he was not our Ally but simply our associate, and there the title of Commander-in-Chief of the Inter-Allied Armies in France, including the American Army, was at length conferred on Foch, but with significant conditions and restrictions.

It was stated, "The American Army will be submitted to the direct authority of its chief and will fight under its own flag," and it was added that there would be constituted, "with their own artillery and services, army divisions or army corps under the leadership of Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Force, and will give priority to the counsel of the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in France." There is a vast difference between listening to counsel and taking orders.

It may well be understood that under such vague conditions, Foch, as chief of the military coalition, should be constantly preoccupied with the effort to avoid any rupture by a show of nerves, and that he should prefer to convince his collaborators rather than force them. Gen. Pershing was an experienced soldier, intelligent and admirably well intentioned, who displayed always an ardent desire to co-operate in the common victory, and whose troops moreover, well before October, had bravely withstood hard combat. It was natural that Foch did not wish to give him summary and impractical orders in a question which did not even seem relevant to strategic tactics.

Foch was not entirely wrong, moreover, in thinking that in the question of reorganization of the rear of the Allied or Associated Army, he was not able to intervene as a subordinate of the French Government, but only as a delegate of the Allied or Associated Governments, since obviously after the decision at Beauvais, each Commander-in-Chief had the right to consult the Minister of War of his country. In any case this momentary disagreement could not justify a letter as harsh as that which Clemenceau was pleased to write with his best pen and which he sent to Foch against my advice. Still less excusable are the darts which Clemenceau has let fly now against the Marshal in the depths of immortality.

Victim of Singular Amnesia.

Clemenceau dwells on the discord between the Marshal and himself in another phase of the great conflict. This misunderstanding is publicly notorious, but there again Clemenceau is, in the recital he makes of it, a victim of singular amnesia. He declares that Foch, "whose naive aspirations permit his understanding merely the military aspect of the peace problem, favored for a decisive solution the annexation of the Rhineland." And on this subject Clemenceau launches a new attack against the Marshal, whose idea he again misrepresents. But what he does not recall is that Foch's proposition which he now judges was so ill-conceived and inopportune, was first maintained by himself at the peace conference.

Let us read, in fact, the splendid book which Andre Tardieu has devoted to the negotiations. What do we find there? A note of Jan. 10, 1919, in which the Marshal exposes his ideas about peace. "The military frontier of the Rhine is indispensable to the maintenance of the peace sought by the coalition," but with "no territorial profit to any country." Foch said in the text, "It is not a question of annexing the left bank of the Rhine or of increasing the territory of France or Belgium and protecting it against the German counter-attack, but of planting a common banner of security necessary to a democratic League of Nations. It is not a question of confiding to a single Power the guardianship of this banner."

I do not discuss this theory. It is not mine. As far as I was concerned I wanted only a limited occupation to assure the execution of the treaty. But what does M. Tardieu say? "Clemenceau, after examination of this document decided to uphold the conclusions. He considered even that in view of the objections which had already been permitted, it was necessary to reinforce the thesis of historical and political arguments as well as to reply to anxious questioning and contrary suggestions it seemed to have awakened. I was consequently charged with the preparation of a general document setting forth our requests. This document served as a basis for the entire discussion."

There is no need for my saying that Tardieu's work, composed at the request of Clemenceau, is quite remarkable. It takes up Foch's arguments—those very ones which Clemenceau represents today as designed to "abuse"—it is not a question of enlarging such and such an allied country. It is a question of rendering Germany powerless to do further harm. It is not a question of annexing an inch of German soil. It is a question only of taking away from Germany her offensive instruments.

The discussion was bitter and difficult; it has not yet ended. But Clemenceau approached it willingly and resolutely. How can he then on the eve of his death disavow that vigorous effort and harshly condemn the project that he appropriated as his own? The more one fastens one's attention on the pages from which his anger exudes, the more one is amazed at the gaps and the contradictions they contain. Certainly, there are to be found splendid passages here and there, and even in the disorder of composition, a patriotic accent re-establishes throughout the narrative some measure of harmony and unity.

But such as it is, this book detracts nothing from Marshal Foch. The great deeds are still alive in the memory of men. Nor, on the other hand, will we permit it, thank God, to detract from Clemenceau.

Wilkins' Story of the Antarctic

waves froze to the pontoons and ice began to pile up in alarming quantities.

Had there been such a temperature when we attempted to take off we would not have been able to start. We made all haste to haul the machine on board.

We would have waited for better conditions, but the wind increased and the sea rose in great swells that ridged the pack ice in swaths that were 15 to 20 feet in height. It would take several days for the swell to subside. We had completed the main object of our investigations in that part of Antarctica, so while the weather was clearing we edged our way along the ice in the direction of Charcot Land.

Biologists Collect Data.

Three times, when the wind died down and the weather cleared somewhat, we brought up beside the pack, but the swell of the sea was at all times too great to launch the plane. At each place a series of oceanographical observations were carried out. Many things of interest were collected by the biologists on board.

Apparently our wireless was not able to reach the operators at Deception Harbor. At least, we could receive no response to messages to them. Later we learned they could hear something of our sending, and that they replied, but we did not hear one of their signals.

We were coming again to the end of the Scoresby's fuel supply, so we edged our way still farther North. The weather never for a moment improved sufficiently for flight.

One day we received a message from Deception Harbor that a transport lying in the harbor would proceed in two days to Montevideo. If we could return at once she would carry us back to civilization. If we missed that boat we might lie for six weeks idle at Deception.

A Race for Port.

There was no use in us waiting any longer. The weather was getting worse and worse—too bad, in fact, to carry out even biological investigations.

We headed with all speed toward Deception. The storms increased in violence. The winds and seas were at first behind us. Running before the wind became too dangerous for continuance, but it was more dangerous to try to heave to, so we kept on.

Then we ran into the other side of the storm and the wind was against us. The seas swept the Scoresby and it seemed as if the plane lashed on the deck would roll its wings beneath the water. But after each roll the ship rose in time and the plane was safe.

Most of the men on board, particularly Cramer, Porter and Cheesman, were suffering from the effects of the rough seas.

Everyone was anxious that we should catch the transport, but we could go only half speed ahead; otherwise the seas would have swamped us. It became a race with time. The transport wirelessed she could not wait mroe than two hours beyond her scheduled time for leaving. It seemed we would miss it.

Steamer Waits for Them.

I asked our friend Sverre Nielson, manager of the Deception Island whaling station, to place our second machine and the supplies at Deception on board and we arranged everything on the Scoresby so that we could load it to the transport as soon as we were in the harbor.

Early in the morning the wind abated and by running full steam ahead we managed to reach Deception exactly at 10 o'clock, the time at which the steamer was to sail. She very kindly waited to take us on board and in less than two hours we were steaming toward Montevideo and home.

We cannot speak too highly of the great assistance rendered by Sverre Nielson and the directors of the Hektoria Whaling Co., and the owners of the Henrik Ibsen, which transport brought us to Montevideo.

The cheerful and efficient help of the captain and crew of the William Scoresby had made it possible for us to do the work we were able to do this year. Without the aid of that or some similar vessel we could not have carried out the work.

Praise for Aids.

Both Parker Cramer and Al Cheesman, the pilots, had proved their mettle in the Antarctic as they had previously elsewhere.

Orval Porter, as on each other trip when he has been with me, proved the backbone of the expedition, keeping our engines in such excellent condition that in three years we have not had one forced landing.

We are much indebted to the San Francisco Examiner wireless service. Under the direction of Mr. Martin, we received many messages and transmitted ours direct to San Francisco with comparative regularity. The interruptions, when they occurred, were due to the installation of new apparatus at Deception Island. The Examiner Wireless KUP, broadcasting news, kept us in touch with the events in the world and so each day we had our newspaper. It is strange that although we tried, time after time, we could not receive messages from KDKA, Pittsburg, through which station, due to the kindness of the American and Canadian Westinghouse Co., it had been arranged to broadcast concerts especially for our benefit.

On board the Henrik Ibsen on the way from Deception Island to Montevideo we were able to look back over our record for the season, and consider what the results of our work would mean. We will now be in a position to put before scientific meteorologists a practical, economic plan for the establishment of a ring of meteorological stations in the Antarctic and we hope that this will foster an International Bureau for the control and maintenance of these points of observation.

As Aid to Forecasts.

It is hoped that means will be found to maintain hose stations for a period of at least 10 years in order to test thoroughly the theory that a knowledge of Antarctic conditions collected and collated daily with information gathered in more northern latitudes will help specially trained meteorologists to forecast seasonal conditions with comparative accuracy.

The geographical reconnaisance which we have been able to carry out and the discoveries made are considerable and these emphasize the need for more detailed scientific investigation.

Our activities have been in line with those which have been carried out for ages. Discoverers have been snipping sections from the great southern continent for many years. This year we discovered islands, straits and sea where a continental land was thought to be.

The very earliest geographers talked of a great continent covering and extending from the South Pole. It was assumed by these ancient philosophers that in order to balance the known land in the northern hemisphere there must be a great land mass at the south. They referred to this southern land as the Antipodes and, assuming that it was inhabited they called the supposed inhabitants Antipodeans.

Pushing Back Antarctic.

Since 600 B. C., when, according to geographical records, Africa was first circumnavigated, explorers have been pushing back the fringe of what is known today as Antarctica.

As late as 1520 it was still believed that South America was part of the great Antarctic continent. Fifty years later Sir Francis Drake disproved this theory by sailing around Cape Horn. Twenty-five years after Drake's voyage, New Guinea was discovered and thought to be the northern limit of the Antarctic mainland.

Then, in 1605, a Peruvian expedition discovered new land in the Pacific, in latitude 20 south. Believing it to be part of Antarctica, they laid claim to the whole of the southern continent. But their claim did not hold for long. The Dutch circumnavigated Australia, cutting that large area from the hypothetical Antarctic mainland. Soon after that New Zealand was discovered and circumnavigated.

France's 3-Year Claim.

No sign of land was seen to the south and there began to be doubts about the much-discussed, many-times-discovered, elusive Antarctica.

When, in 1772, the north coast of Kerguelen was discovered it was then thought beyond doubt that the polar mainland was found. The French claimed it as their own.

The French claim lasted but a short three years. Then Captain Cook circumnavigated the Southern Hemisphere in high latitudes, seeing little else but snow and ice in the Antarctic Sea. It appeared again that the "Great Antarctic continent" was a myth.

It was not until years after Cook's voyage that a whaler named Smith discovered the South Shetlands, a group of islands thought, until December, 1928, to be the borders of the Antarctic mainland. Then Eielson and I discovered Stefansson Strait and Hearst Land.

Seven of Eight Disproved.

The next discoveries after Smith were reported by Wilkes, an explorer, who believed he saw a mountainous land extending through 70 degrees of longitude. But the Antarctic conditions played Wilkes false and of the eight points of land he charted, seven have been disproved.

Other men in ships have sailed over the latitudes in which Wilkes charted land. One year later than Wilkes, Sir James Clark Ross pushed through the Antarctic pack ice and

"A continent emerged. In majesty
Of mighty mountains peaks and precipice,
Antarctica was seen. The human race
Records but one discovery so great,
So all embracing."

And so Antarctica as known today was outlined on the chart. For many years explorers have been snipping and snipping sections from that outline. The continent is shrinking year by year.

During the first airplane flight inside the Antarctic circle—when Eielson and I discovered for the first time in history new land from the air, we increased the known area of the Antarctic seas by severing Graham Land from the map of the Antarctic continent.

1929-30 a Big Year.

This season—1929-30—Antarctica has been attacked on all sides. Commander Byrd in the Ross Sea, Sir Douglas Mawson in the African quadrant, near Kemp Land, Riiser Larsen in his Lockheed plane between Enderby Land and Coates Land have snipped sections from the coastline as previously charted. And this season in our Lockheed-Vega monoplane, the Los Angeles, a veteran of polar flying which has carried me over more than 2000 miles of this earth's surface never before seen by human eyes, we have extended the borders of the Antarctic seas still further south in the Pacific Sector.

As we neared Montevideo we put our flying machine overboard. Flying from beside the transport ship Henrik Ibsen when she was still many miles from port, we rapidly approached the River Plata and flew over the Uruguayan capital. We landed in the harbor, moored the seaplane to a buoy and went ashore to arrange for the sale of our equipment. We did not plan to use the machines again in polar regions because the time has come when a new form of exploration—that by submarine—must be carried out.

In less than a week, five days to be exact, we had disposed of all the equipment we would not use in submarine exploration and were on board the steamer headed for New York. The work in the field of the Wilkins Antarctic expedition had ended.

DR. A. ROSS HILL TO ADDRESS EUGENE FIELD FOUNDATION

Dr. A. Ross Hill of Kansas City, president emeritus of the University of Missouri, will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Eugene Field Foundation for the Relief of Crippled Children at Hotel Chase Tuesday evening.

Other speakers include Dr. G. Kenneth Coonse of the University of Missouri, who will give an illustrated lecture on orthopedic surgery, assisted by Dr. M. L. Kleinfelter of Missouri Baptist Hospital; Dr. J. Archer O'Reilly, president of the Missouri Society for Crippled Children; Dr. Edgar Allen, dean of the School of Medicine at the University of Missouri, and former Circuit Judge Samuel Rosenfeld. Discussion will center around additional hospital facilities for crippled children in St. Louis.

Motion pictures of the present facilities for treating crippled children in St. Louis will be shown at the meeting. The Eugene Field Foundation was brought into existence some years ago to solicit special financial aid to supplement the inadequate State appropriations for such medical treatment. Among its early contributors were the late Sigmund P. Baer, Dr. Guy L. Noyes of Columbia, Louis P. Aloe and Firmin Desloge, who will be the subject of tributes at the meeting Tuesday night.

NAMED TO LIQUIDATE UNION-EASTON BANK

George W. Clarkson of Mound City Trust Co. Is Appointed by Cantley.

George W. Clarkson, president of the Mound City Trust Co., has taken charge of the closed Union-Easton Trust Co., 5325 Easton avenue, as a special deputy finance commissioner in charge of liquidation, by appointment of State Finance Commissioner Cantley.

At least four months will elapse before the 6000 depositors who put $816,000 into the bank will get any of their money. This four-month period is stipulated by law for the filing of claims.

The order of liquidation and the appointment of a special deputy had been expected since March 29 when the bank was closed by its directors on Cantley's order after the directors failed to comply with the Commissioner's order to replace $135,000 in loans which Cantley considered "slow paper."

Clarkson succeeds J. B. Norris, State bank examiner, who has been in charge of the bank and who has prepared an inventory of its assets which will be filed with the Recorder of Deeds shortly.

Commissioner Cantley said he could not accurately estimate the loss involved in the failure, as the amount will depend to some extent on how much can be realized on the bank's investments in real estate and real estate securities. He said that a published estimate that depositors would lose $400,000 probably was excessive.

MASS MEETING TO URGE HOME RULE FOR UTILITIES

A mass meeting "to demand for St. Louis the right to regulate the service and rates of street car, bus, gas and electric corporations" is to be held Wednesday night at Community Hall, 6320 West Florissant avenue, under the auspices of the North End Twenty-seventh Ward Improvement Association and the Goodfellow-West Florissant Business Men's Association.

One of the speakers will be William R. Schneider, attorney and former candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. There will be one other speaker not yet selected.

Felix P. Lawrence, one of the sponsors of the meeting, said the plan was to initiate a statewide movement for local control of public utilities.

ED MAYS' HOME AT TOP OF 23-STORY BUILDING

President of Continental Life to Use Two Floors—Aerial Beacon on Tower.

Two of the upper floors of the 23-story Continental Life Insurance Co. building nearing completion on the north side of Olive street west of Grand boulevard will be finished as living quarters for Ed Mays, president of the life insurance company.

Eight rooms are planned for the twenty-first floor and on the floor above will be six bedrooms and four bathrooms. A part of the twenty-third floor will contain residence quarters for representatives of the company in other cities to be used by them while here for conferences or conventions.

Another unusual feature of the building is the aerial beacon unlike any now in use which is mounted on a tower 357 feet above the sidewalk. The beacon itself, a network of 1200 feet of Neon tubing, is 12 feet high and 6 feet in diameter. It is expected that it will be visible for 100 miles on clear nights as a glowing red column. The beacon was erected at a cost of $10.000 by the International Tube Sign Co. It will probably be lighted within two weeks.

Plans for the appointments of May's living quarters are not yet completed. The first floor will contain a reception room, fountain room, library, music and dining rooms, kitchen and servants' quarters. A marble stairway will lead from the living room to the second floor. Their will be two roof garden areas on the second floor, made possible by the set-back construction of the building.

"Aside from the convenience of living near the offices," Mays said, "I expect to be able to have the facilities for entertaining officers of the company during our annual conventions." The conventions have been held in various cities, he said, but now will be held in St. Louis each year.

The building, which is to cost about $1,750,000, will be completed within the next few weeks. Construction was started last July.

VIEWS MIXED ON IMMEDIATE OUTLOOK FOR STOCK PRICES

Too Early to Formulate Definite Conclusions on the First Quarter Earnings Reports.

COPPER PRICE CUT A FEATURE OF WEEK

Reduction in Metal Has Somewhat Clarified the Atmosphere as Adjustment Seemed Inevitable.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review says:

"With the approach of May is coming a run of statistical reports on conditions that leaves the market mixed in its attitude toward the immediate future. Not only is it too early to formulate definite conclusions on first quarter earnings. It is too early to see in the statistics evidence of the improvement that executives believe has begun. That corporate earnings in the first three months this year would be under those a year ago everybody knew. These statements presumably will check the market's enthusiasm as they come out nevertheless. Comparisons for at least three quarters this year will be with an abnormally high level of profits. It is the practice of statisticians in this country to make their judgments of a current condition primarily on the basis of comparison with a year ago rather than with an average showing of several previous years.

Buying Follows Copper Cut.

"In the current week came a long awaited slash in copper prices that has somewhat clarified the atmosphere inasmuch as an adjustment in this market seemed inevitable sooner or later. While the cut from 18 cents to 14 cents a pound for red metal was more drastic than some anticipated the adjustment in price immediately induced heavier buying of the metal. Apparently buyers had held off for a considerable time in the belief that the statistical position of the industry would not warrant 18-cent copper, and that in the end economic laws would assert themselves. With the adjustment in price presumably will come a substantial increased demand from overseas and indirectly tend to revitalize our markets with foreign countries.

March Exports Comparatively Low.

"Incidentally the March figures on imports and exports showed plainly enough that business in this country has been hit by a recession that reaches clear around the world. Our merchandise exports were slightly higher than in February but they were smaller than for any March since 1924. Reductions in our shipments of cotton, wheat and copper explain part of this shrinkage, but so too does the marked run-off in values. The Government's figures reveal a contraction in imports as well as exports. Incoming merchandise shipments likewise were slightly greater than in February but the indicated volume for March was the lowest for that month since 1922. What these figures emphasize is that our own recession in recent months has been accelerated by a world condition. A variety of explanations might be made but overshadowing them all perhaps was the far-flung advance in money rates. That deterring influence, fortunately enough, has been eradicated.

Most Opinions Based on Hope.

"Within the next month or two months the statistics will begin to show evidences of an upturn in business unless the prophets read wrongly the influences now at work. The motor industry particularly is in a statistical position to respond immediately to any substantial pick-up in the demand for cars. While the building industry is not subject to the same seasonal fluctuations those in touch with builders believe that we are on the verge of a widening activity in this industry. Yet it must be confessed that most of the opinions still are based on hopes rather than actualities. Even the stock market itself recently has been unable to push through its own high ground and went into its three-day recess period plainly confident of the more distant future but likewise plainly mixed in sentiment on the near-term outlook.

SHARES SOLD NEW YORK, April 19.—Total sales for the week (four days) on the New York Stock Exchange amounted to 16,706,300 shares, compared with 26,676,800 last week. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 303,166,110 shares, compared with 339,929,300 a year ago and 243,513,530 two years ago.

FEW CHANGES OF IMPORTANCE IN LOCAL MARKET

Coca Cola Bottling, First National Bank and St. Louis Amusement Close With Gains.

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, April 19.—Few changes of importance took place in the four-day week on the local market, final quotations revealing fractional changes for the most part. Coca Cola Bottling, which gained two points, First National Bank which rose 4 and St. Louis Amusement which closed 7 points better, marked the wide ranges on the upside. Mercantile-Commerce finished 3 points lower. A block of 1000 shares of Granite-Bimetallic sold at 40 cents, or 10 cents above the previous sales level.

There was turnover of 1240 shares of Hamilton-Brown between 5¾ and 5¼ with final price of 5⅜ down ⅛ point. "Dr. Pepper," a newly listed stock, sold between 27½ and 32½, closing at latter level.

Wagner Electric, International Shoe, National Candy and Key Boiler Equipment showed fractional gains, while Missouri Portland and Pedigo-Weber recorded small net declines.

Ely-Walker at 29 was unchanged and Laclede Steel closed down a point at 45 after selling at 46.

In the bond section Houston Oil 5½s improved.

Heads Piggly-Wiggly Corporation.

CINCINNATI, O., April 19.—John B. Bonham, vice president and general manager of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., today was elected president of the Piggly-Wiggly corporation to succeed William H. Albers, resigned.

Bonham will continue as vice president of the Kroger company. The Piggly-Wiggly corporation is a subsidiary of the Kroger company, having been acquired in October, 1928.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC ASKS BOND ISSUE AUTHORIZATION

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Authorization for the Southern Pacific Co. to issue $41,294,000 of first mortgage 4½ per cent bonds of its Oregon lines was asked today in an application to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Southern Pacific previously was authorized to issue $61,294,000 of the bonds but only $20,000,000 of this amount has been issued and it now desires to carry through the original financing.

The securities would be sold to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. at 95 per cent of par and accrued interest.

Texas Gulf Sulphur Report.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. reports net income for the quarter ended March 31 of $3,808,701, equal to $1.49 a share on no par 2,540,000 shares. This compared with $4,766,989, or $1.88 a share, in the preceding quarter and $3,880,260, or $1.53 a share, on the same number of shares in the like quarter of last year.

K. C. Southern March Report.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The Kansas City Southern Railway Co. reports March net operating income of $534,492, against $611,956 for March, 1929.

Penna Coal & Coke shows 8 cents on common stock in 1929. In 1928 had deficit of $519,808.

Penna Gas & Electric shows $1.56 on common stock in 1929 vs. $2.12 in 1928.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Renewed ease is expected in the call money market next week, with the passing of the comparative firmness during the mid-month settlement period, accentuated by cash requirements of the pre-Easter retail trade.

The analist index of business activity for March, on the basis of preliminary data, is placed at 89.6 lower than last December, when the index touched 89.6. The revised index for February is 92.4 compared to 93.2 for January.

Wall street interprets the terms of the new offering of American Telephone stock as indicating that the company prefers to receive payment in installments on Aug. 1, Dec. 1 and April 1 rather than in full on Aug. 1. Although the stock is offered at par, subscribers who elect to pay in full on Aug. 1 are required to pay $103.40 a share, to make up for the excess of the 9 per cent dividend rate over the 6 per cent interest rate paid on installment payments.

HOG MARKET GAINS IN TRADE OF WEEK

Diminishing Receipts a Factor in Price Movement Late in Period.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, April 19. (U. S. Department of Agriculture)—Cattle receipts for the week approximated 13,600, compared with 12,355 the previous week and 11,721 the corresponding week a year ago. From the standpoint of salesmen and producers of cattle the past week's trade was very unsatisfactory. An extremely dull trading spirit was exhibited by buyers due to the sluggish condition of the beef trade and was more or less aggravated by the last week of Lent, which is always considered a bearish factor. The fact that a more liberal proportion of good steers arrived than for some time in the past, however, helped matters materially by furnishing purchasers with more of a variety. In the price-hammering campaign lower grade steers, as well as cows, mixed yearlings, heifers and vealers were subjected to the greatest pressure. Compared with a week ago, steers sold 25c to 50c lower; mixed yearlings, heifers and cows generally 50c lower; cutters and bulls weak to mostly 25c lower; vealers $1 to $1.25 lower; all classes stockers and feeders fully 25c lower. Tops for week: 1219-lb. steers, $13; 865-lb. yearlings, $12.75; 676-lb. mixed yearlings, $12.25; 648-lb. heifers, $12; cows, $9.50; medium bulls, $7.75; vealers, $11.75; stocker and feeder steers, $10.60. Three loads of heavy steers scaling 1303 to 1331-lbs. went at $11.10, $11.65 and $12.75, the two former being somewhat rough and coarse. About six loads of medium weights averaging 1207 to 1277-lbs. cashed at $10.50 to $13, while others tipping the beam at 1126 to 1198-lbs. ranged from $10.35 to $12.60, bulk $10.60 to $12.50. Light weight steers held a spread from $8.50 to $12.75, bulk, $9.25 to $12.25, which was also bulk of all steers. Fat steers bulked largely at $11.75 to $12.60; comparably finished mixed yearlings and heifers chiefly $10.50 to $11.50; medium kinds $9.50 to $10.25; cows principally $7 to $8.25; low cutters mostly $4.50 to $5.25. At the close of the week top sausage bulls registered $7.75 and good and choice vealers $11.25.

The corresponding week a year ago top and bulk prices were as follows; steers $11.65 to $13.75, top $14.35; fat mixed yearlings and heifers $13 to $13.75, top $14.80; medium kinds $11.75 to $12.50; cows $8.75 to $10.25, top $11.50; low cutters $6.25 to $7; top sausage bulls, $9.50; top vealers $16.25; stocker and feeder steers top $13.

Swine Receipts Smaller.

Swine receipts this week approximated 74,300 compared with 80,003 last week and 78,623 corresponding week last year. Lower trends in dressed pork were largely neutralized by diminishing receipts in the latter half of the week and hog trade closed with a net gain for the period of about 15c, except for pigs and packing sows which suffered a slight loss. During the early part of the week supplies were liberal and lighter weight hogs encountered considerable pressure which was removed about midweek. Weighty butchers met an improved demand and the spread of prices narrowed appreciably, but on late sessions bearish efforts on the part of packers again pushed heavies well below the level of lightweights. An extreme high for the period was reached on Friday when the top was placed in the $10.60 notch, but a dime setback was recorded Saturday. Most of the desirable 160 to 220-lb. weights finished at $10.35 @10.50 with a sprinkling of 230's at $10.25 and 250 to 280-lb. descriptions at $10@10.15. Pigs ruled steady to 25c lower, with most 100 to 130-lb. descriptions at $9@9.75 while 130 to 150-lb. light lights cleared at $9.75@10.25. Packing sows centered at $9 with a scanty showing at $8.90.

Lamb Trade Drags.

Estimated receipts of sheep and lambs this week 11,000; actual receipts last week 10,245; corresponding week last year 7285. Moderate increases in supplies here and elsewhere coupled with an easier trend to dressed lamb in Eastern wholesale centers gave buyers material for severe bearishness. Trade was draggy throughout the entire period with repeated price losses until Friday when light receipts encountered an active demand and part of the loss was regained. At that a net loss for the week of around 50c was recorded and values sank to the lowest level in nearly nine years. Sheep increased in the supplies and fat ewes shared the losses. Spring lambs, while more numerous than has previously been the case, found a good demand for the Easter trade but sales were too uneven to furnish a definite basis for comparison. Wooled lambs topped for the week at $9.50 with bulk of sales at $8.75 to $9.40. City butchers paid up to $9.25 for choice clipped lambs on Monday but bulk of this class realized $8.25 to $8.75 on packer account. City butchers paid as high as $15 for choice springers but after midweek no sizable lots were able to pass $14 while bulk sold from $13.50 down. Most wooled ewes cleared at $5.50 down during the latter half of the week.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS—The horse and mule market for the week was on a steady to lower basis, although receipts were of light volume and a fairly large number of buyers were on hand, especially for horses.

WHEAT MARKET DOWN ON RAIN FORECAST

Showers Reported in Spring Grain Belt on Both Sides of the Border.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 19.—Wheat futures closed down 1¼c to 2c in a weather market on the local board. Forecast of showers in the grain belt followed report of some rain in the winter wheat belt and report of showers in the spring wheat belt both sides of the Canadian border.

In the cash grain market, soft wheat was down 1c to 3c. The market was draggy. There were two days' receipts on the market and a pretty good volume was offered. Selections of No. 2 had some shipping demand and there was also some call for good mixing grain and garlicky wheat, but ordinary qualities were slow. Sales of No. 2 were on a basis 10c to 12½c above the Chicago May figure and No. 3 at 4½c above. Hard wheat was off 1c to 1½c. Receipts were light and the demand was fair. Country run wheat was wanted. Local mills and elevators were in the market and clearance was close. Sales of No. 2 were on the basis of the Chicago May figure and No. 2 yellow 2c above. Corn was steady to ⅜c lower. There was a ready demand for the good grades of yellow and white, but the cheaper cereal moved slowly. The chief buyers were elevators and shippers. Oats were down ⅛c to ½c. Market was rather draggy. There were limited sales on local account and to shippers.

Declines of ⅛c to ¼c were shown by wheat in initial transactions, July delivery early ranging down a little more early. Winnipeg was closed today. Liverpool was ⅛d lower at the close. Corn here was unchanged to shade lower at opening. May wheat opened at $1.04½, July wheat $1.05⅝, September wheat $1.08¾, May corn 83c, and July corn 85¼c.

Local wheat receipts (2 days), which were 148,400 bushels, compared with 99,400 a week ago and 170,800 a year ago (2 days), included 75 cars local and 31 through. Corn receipts, which were 152,600 bushels, compared with 137,200 a week ago and 148,400 a year ago, included 65 cars local and 44 through. Oats receipts, which were 184,800 bushels, compared with 50,600 a week ago and 198,000 a year ago, included 60 cars local and 24 through. Hay receipts were 21 cars local and 4 through.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Primary dry goods markets were very quiet today, owing to holiday observances. Gray cottons were easier. Raw silk was dull. Foreign burlap markets were closed on account of the holidays. Wool goods were inactive.

WHEAT MARKET IS WEATHER AFFAIR AND PRICES DOWN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Auspicious crop conditions both for spring and winter wheat today had an ill-starred effect on prices. With sellers in a majority, wheat pursued a general downhill course, finishing at almost the day's bottom level. Persistent curtailing of European demand for North American wheat operated as an evident check on buying support from speculative sources.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous 1⅝@2⅛c a bushel lower than Thursday's finish. Corn closed ⅛@½c off, oats ⅛@⅜c down, and provisions unchanged to 7c decline.

Essentially a question of moisture, the wheat market today showed itself especially sensitive to forecasts of general showers throughout the grain belt. Besides, sellers quickly found incentives in reports of some rain over Western Kansas and in spring wheat states Northwest and in Canada. There were also advices that rains have narrowed drouth-threatened sections Southwest and that cooler temperatures have halted crop deterioration.

On the other hand, one of the country's foremost unofficial crop authorities said that rains in the Southwest have not been heavy enough to restore soil moisture to normal. He asserted that unless more rains came before seasonal hot weather set in Southwest during the last half of May, much more serious crop damage would result. Such predictions, however, failed to stimulate buying.

Corn belt weather propitious for field work helped to ease corn and oats prices, although showers predicted would be likely to delay farmers' operations.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to the course of grain, despite steadiness of the hog market.

METAL MARKET REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The sharp 4 per cent reduction in copper prices on Tuesday to 14 cents a pound for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley stimulated heavy foreign buying but domestic demand remained small. Sales for export at the new price thus far are estimated at 14,625 tons. Failure of fabricators to announce a new list of prices for finished products is believed to have checked buying and consumers are said to be waiting developments in this connection before entering the market. The break in copper prices came after a year of stabilization at 18 cents and reflected steady accumulation of stocks by producers and restricted buying by consumers.

Lead was without special change and the consuming inquiry remained light. The feature of the position was the report that most of the producers were well supplied with orders for prompt and nearby delivery.

In view of the smallness of the demand and the moderate selling pressure from various quarters, prices of zinc turned soft. London was also easy.

EVENING UP TRADE IN COTTON DURING WEEK

Disposition to Take Profits on Recent Purhases or on Straddlers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The evening of the interest in near months has appeared to dominate fluctuations in the cotton futures market here during the past week. Following recent reductions in old crop short interest the demand for both May and July became less urgent and, as the buying slackened, there was evidently a disposition to take profits on recent purchases or on straddles between old and new crop positions. This was reflected by reactions which carried the price of May off to 15.74c and July to 15.81c during the middle of the week, or more than a cent a pound below the recent high level. Spot, middling, 16.30c.

New crop positions eased off with the rest of the list, but there was some buying of these months against sales of old crop, and the May premium was somewhat reduced. This brought in some buying later in the week, however, while there was no indication of any reduction in the leading long lines, and part of the midweek losses were recovered. Preparations are evidently being made to deliver cotton on May contracts next month. The certificated stock at designated New York delivery points has increased from about 193,000 bales at the middle of March to approximately 250,000 bales, and it is expected that further additions will be made to it before the end of next month.

It was reported, for instance, that some cotton is being shipped from California here via the Panama Canal to apply on New York contracts, and that some cotton was also coming here from the South. The volume of business in May has been somewhat smaller and the opinion was expressed toward the end of this week that the interest was down to those who intend to receive or tender cotton next month, although further scattering liquidation or evening-up is anticipated before the first notice day on April 25. Reports reaching here from Liverpool during the week stated that some Egyptian cotton has been sold in that market for shipment to America.

The sales of foreign growths officially reported in Liverpool increased sharply and it is reported in trade circles here that handlers of long staple cotton have been buying for prompt shipment in anticipation of the 7c duty provided for in the tariff bill. Ideas as to the probable acreage seem to have undergone no material change during the week and, except for drouthy sections of the Southwest, conditions have been considered favorable from the new crop standpoint.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $1,171,246,200, unchanged; total net demand deposits (average), $68,000,000 increase; time deposits (average), $27,087,000, decrease; clearings week ending today, $6,741,651,704; clearings week ending April 12, $7,651,822,594; clearings this day, $438,141,801.

"Dracula" Last Play of Season At the American

THE melodramatic thriller, "Dracula," returns to the American Theater for one week, staring tonight. Written by John Balderston, author of "Berkeley Square," one of the current successes in New York, and Hamilton Deane, who found their material in Bram Stoker's novel of the same name, the play was imported, after a notable run in London, by Horace Liveright and produced by him two seasons ago in New York. "Dracula" opened the season at the American last September.

"Dracula" is one of the more adroitly constructed of mystery plays of recent vintage. It was Stoker's idea that the cruel Count Dracula, dead and buried for 500 years, should return nightly to earth and resume his evil activities. He has the attributes of a vampire —though he is attractive enough in person—and seeks his victims among young women.

Appearing in the company that is to be seen here is Howard Sinclair, who created the role of Count Dracula in London and later was brought to New York by Horace Liveright. This is his sixth year in the part. Alec Harford is another veteran, in the role of the lunatic.

Opening at the American for a week's engagement beginning next Sunday afternoon comes "Across the World With Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson." It will close the season at the American. This is the Johnsons' first talking picture. It is not a staged movie production and contains no story, but was made by the Johnsons in the course of their expeditions across the globe under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History of New York City, and it takes the spectator to Hawaii, Solomon Islands, New Hebrides, South Seas, New Zealand, Victoria Nile, Kenya Colony, Malekula, British East Africa, Samoa, Tanganyika, Belgian Congo, Ituri Forest, White Nile, Indian Ocean and other strange and out-of-the-way places. The program will also include "Today and Yesterday," depicting about 40 subjects in 30 minutes, beginning with the inauguration of William McKinley as President, one of the earliest films made.

The veteran actor-manager, Sir Philip Ben Greet, will come to the Shubert-Rialto with his company of English players for two performances Saturday, April 26, under the auspices of Miss Elizabeth Sheeny. At the matinee they will be seen in "Twelfth Night" and in the evening in "Hamlet." For 40 years, more or less, the Ben Greet players have been touring this country and England in Shakespeare, playing before audiences in college towns and small cities.

Sir Philip will play the part of Polonius and the first grave digger in the performance of "Hamlet" and of Malvolio in "Twelfth Night." Russell Thorndike, brother of the noted English actress, Sybil Thorndike, will play Hamlet. The Casey Players will continue with "An American Tragedy" another week at the Orpheum.

Looking at Modern Music

Madame Olga Samaroff's Views on Contemporary Composers in America and Elsewhere and What Their Activities May Bring About.

BY THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

MME. OLGA SAMAROFF'S musical connections are such as to free her from any suspicions of willful iconoclasm. As a guiding spirit in the Juillard Foundation and the Schubert Memorial Association she is presumably committed to a view of music that embraces its past as well as its present and future. She is not looking for any of that easy fame which is sometimes achieved by rating Wagner below Waldteufel and disposing of Beethoven as an ill-tempered old bore.

Russell Thorndike, brother of the noted English actress, Sybil Thorndike, will play Hamlet. The Casey Players will continue with "An American Tragedy" another week at the Orpheum.

Her critical writings while acting as chief music reviewer of the New York Evening Post were concerned with illuminating the music which had been played rather than with waving the banner of heterodoxy. When she discusses contemporary music therefore, one may fairly conclude that her opinions are the result of having considered the subject judiciously.

Mme. Samaroff, who is the daughter of Mrs. Carlos Hickenlooper, has been in St. Louis during the last week giving lectures and renewing old friendships. During the course of a talk she made before the Junior League she urged the importance of an open mind so far as music was concerned—not because all new music was important but because music as a whole was a continuing growing organism that necessarily had to be breaking new ground all the time. One could not afford to trust too much to one's instinctive feelings because they naturally led one along the lines of least resistance. Wagner's Tannhauser sounded like "breaking crockery" to one critic—now the "Evening Star" could be used as a moving picture theme song without shocking anybody. And so on.

My object in seeking an interview with Mme. Samaroff was to get a compact version of what—in her belief—was the substantial contribution made to music by modern composers. Mme. Samaroff talked freely and explicitly and what she said may be summarized as follows:

The diatonic scale is a worked out mine.

Modern composers have enriched music permanently by making the intervals smaller, by adding to its rhythmic freedom and, to a certain extent, by loosening the tyranny of a too-rigid tonality.

The great creative figures of the past would have thought in a modernist idiem if they had been alive today.

IN likening the diatonic scale and other characteristic elements of classic and romantic music to a worked out mine, Mme. Samaroff did not mean to imply that the music of the great masters had lost its hold on modern minds or that it would diminish in importance from now on. She did believe, however, that it was impossible for anybody but the purest genius to compose in the old style without seeming allusive and imitative.

Of course no rules applied to the pure genius. Brahms was not an innovator, but wrote music that was strongly individual all the same. And in the same way another composer might arise who could convert other conventional devices to his own peculiar uses.

Nevertheless the modern temper demanded a new kind of expression, and it was getting it. Mme. Samaroff's belief that the smaller intervals would add greatly to the expressive powers of music was the results of having heard several newly invented instruments.

"An instrument invented by a man named Carillo," said Madame Samaroff, "is capable of sounding quarter, eighth and sixteenth tones. A scale played on this instrument sounds a great deal like the wind. At first my ear refused to accept the smallest intervals, but after rehearing the instrument several times the distinctions began to be audible. Then there is the Theremin, which has no limit so far as the subdivisions of the scale are concerned and no limit as to volume. Such instruments as these, I am sure, will affect composition of music in the future and add to its power of expression."

Mme. Samaroff was reminded that her own ear was a trained one and was asked if she thought it possible that the ordinary audience could be trained to accept eighth and sixteenth tones.

"Yes, I think it is possible," she answered. "At least there is no physiological reason why the ordinary ear should not grasp those smaller intervals. The first uses of such instruments should be preceded by an explanation and a demonstration."

Though Mme. Samaroff believed that the present era was one in which musical reform was making a leap forward, a period that might be compared to those in which Wagner, Beethoven and Monteverde had lived, she conceded that

Talking a Good Play

The Favorite Hetero-Sexual Topic Around the Dinner Tables in the Big Eastern Metropolis.

By ROBERT LITTELL.
NEW YORK, April 19.

WHEN bright faces and good digestions gather round the dinner tables in this great, and for the most part hideous, city, there is one favorite hetero-sexual topic of conversation. After dinner the men stick to politics, the market and prohibition, and the women to gossip, children and the color of possible curtains. But during the dinner one of the quickest approaches to the lovely vision on one's right is through discussion of the play. In some cases you can get onto the Green Pastures in one approach shot—if she happens to just adore it and to have been simply thrilled by it, as were you.

For, like golf, this eat-as-you-talk game demands no more than five or six shots to each hole, or play. It is poor form to linger for many words over any one play, just as the golfer who needs nine or ten swings per hole is not thought of as having unusual merit. I have shared in many such conversations, both before the drama provided my meals and the roof over them and since, and on the whole I find the restless skipping about from high spot to high spot, from play to play, a relief. Too long a time spent on any one high spot tramples the grass, and in addition, I get all mixed up, what with trying to remember what I once officially said and trying to reconcile that with what I now think, if any.

SO I, and the lovely vision who is volubly toying with her filet and thereby preventing me from properly chewing mine, cover as much theatrical ground as possible.

It is a little like the view of New York one gets from the subway express—white tiled stations flying by and being instantaneously recognized and dismissed from thought and view. "Berkeley Square," Thirty-third street, "First Mrs. Frazer," Twenty-eighth street, "Death Takes a Holiday," Twenty-third street—the conversation hums and gallops along, and by the time it is proper to turn to the amazing decollete on my left, right and I have put the entire season in its place. Thus:

"I do think he's the most marvelous actor, don't you? And such a gentleman. Don't you think so? So few actors seem to be gentlemen. Or perhaps—well, I don't know. Don't you think so? I mean, do you, really?"

"I didn't think so. Really I didn't."....

"When death takes her and they go off together? Just too creepy for words! And so fantastic!"

"You mean 'Death Takes a Holiday.'"

"Oh yes, yes, of course! How stupid! That's what I meant: Isn't he delightful. Have you seen it?"

"I adore peas. And have you seen—I can't think of the name. It's about crime, or vice or something. Too thrilling.."

"You mean 'Topaze'"?

"No, that isn't it. I don't think that's it. It was a longer name. It rhymes with something else, if you know what I mean."

"I know—'Broken Dishes.'"

"No, it sounds like it, but that isn't it."

"'Strictly Dishonorable'? 'The Last Mile'? Julius Caesar'? 'The Living Corpse'? 'Peter Pan'?

"No, I'll think of it in a minute. No I don't think it was any of those. Have you seen 'Fifty Million Frenchmen'?"

"Yes, marvelous. Have you seen 'Bitter Sweet'?"

"Yes. Isn't it intriguing! Have you seen 'Flying High'?"

"Yes. Have you seen 'sons of Guns'?"

"Yes. I'm all for Jack Buchanan. Have you seen 'Rebound'?"

"Yes. So delicious. Have you seen 'Young Sinners'?"

"Yes. Have you really seen anything?"

"Yes, twice. I think it's adorable. Have you seen 'Street Scene?'"

"Yes, yes. Have you seen the National Winter Garden.

"No, but I've seen 'Death Takes a Holiday.' He's such a gentleman, that Death. But I couldn't sleep a wink, absolutely not a wink. It made me creep, positively creep. Now you must talk to Mrs. Warble. I wish we could go on. It's such fun talking about the theater and saying what we think about actors and actresses and things. I love exchanging opinions and things with people who go to see things and who express themselves about plays and things and one can agree with so well. Have you seen 'The Infinite Shoeblack?'"

But by this time I was deep in actors and actresses and things with Mrs. Warble. It seems she had just been to see "Death Takes a Holiday."

Sarg's Marionettes to Play "Rip Van Winkle"

Washington Irving's famous story of "Rip Van Winkle" is this year's vehicle for the Tony Sarg Marionettes, which will show at Mary Institute, Lake and Waterman, Friday and Saturday afternoon and evening, April 25 and 26. The lifelike portrayal of the well-known characters in this play and others which Sarg has produced, have made of his productions an institution and created a permanent place in the hearts and minds of the play-going public. Rip's dog, which has dropped the name of Schneider and answers to the name of Wolf, is one of the most conspicuous and lifelike characters in the play, just as he was when Thomas Jefferson gave us his delightful stage presentations of the same story. There are other animals, birds, rabbits and butterflies, Nick's shrewish wife, the phantom ship of Hendrik Hudson and his dwarfish crew, but what promises to be most marvelous of all is the transformation scene in the mysterious treasure cave where dance ghosts and goblins, skeletons and spooks.

YIDDISH PLAY TONIGHT.

A Yiddish company, with Mollie and Jack Cohn, will present "The Dance to Death" at the Odeon this evening. It deals with underworld characters and their struggle for regeneration. The play has had over 600 performances in America and Canada. Sol Goldman is in charge of the local appearance of the company.

Lowell Sherman Up to No Good Again

Hollywood Casts About for a New Form in Which to Purvey Its Musical Wards—What's on Display at the Local Houses This Week.

BY M. W. CHILDS.

THE talkies, it becomes more and more apparent, are in a state of fumbling uncertainty. They are in the position of the oil millionaire who, having bought a country house and a town house, fast motor cars, a yacht and all the other conventional luxuries, didn't know what to do next. Hollywood can and does draw upon the entertainment resources of the whole world. Stars of every degree of brilliance, composers, authors, opera singers, all succumb to the lure of fat contracts. But having captured these various luminaries, Hollywood doesn't know quite what to do with them.

The first flush of novelty has gone. Audiences are growing a bit restive. And so is Hollywood, according to word from that capital of opulence.

The whole thing comes down to the fact that no definite technique for the talkies has as yet been worked out. They occupy still a nebulous and uncertain ground, somewhere between the old motion picture and the drama, whether spoken or musical.

There is definite evidence of Hollywood's uneasiness in the fact that the studios have abandoned the cinema revue idea and are hard at work introducing plot into certain revues already in production. For a time Hollywood hoped that if enough stars were introduced the picture would get by. Just give them enough variety, hurl 80 stars at them in 80 different skits and they'll be satisfied, the film magnates argued. But it did not work quite that way. In a revue an intimate flesh and blood reality is apparently essential. Even musical comedies with plot—there were noteworthy exceptions—did not translate overly well into terms of the talking screen.

R. K. O. HURRIEDLY did a flip-flop with the picture known formerly as "Radio Revels," originally planned as an all-star revue. The completed picture is called "The Cuckoos," and serves as a starring vehicle for Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey of the Ziegfeld Follies. It has considerable story. According to those who have seen a preview, it has sufficient plot outline to create suspense.

SIMILARLY Fox is engaged in converting the production originally announced as the "Fox Movietone Follies of 1930." More plot is to be introduced and a new title adopted to make clear that it is not merely another revue. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer also has a problem on its hands—what to do with its big "Hollywood Revue of 1930," which has been in the making for months. It is reported that much of the material already shot is to be discarded and the whole production revamped.

But if the revue and, to a lesser degree, the musical comedy, are to be abandoned, what is to be done with all the musical talent that, obviously, the public likes to hear? How is it to be introduced?

That is what is making film heads gray. For certainly no satisfactory answer has been found to date. A picture such as "Song of the West," at the Missouri last week, is no solution. Neither did "The Rogue Song" and "The Vagabond King" justify the large expenditures and high hopes lavished on them. The music, particularly in "The Song of the West," was forcibly injected and the result was more or less tedious and long drawn out.

Some stylization, some special technique is badly needed. And the special genius who will create it is probably even now panting for recognition at Hollywood's gates. He may, however, have to wait a long time.

Remember how long it took to get a silent picture as good as "The Patriot." And then probably just as the talkies get somewhere there will be a new novelty—three-dimensional movies or something of the sort. But perhaps that is too pessimistic a view.

MEANWHILE, as in politics, you pays your money and you takes your choice. Those talkies that are most completely devoid of musical interludes, or, rather, musical interruptions, have my preference. For this week there is a fair range, with the musicals predominating.

Loews has an all-star comedy, "Free and Easy," with Buster Keaton, Anita Page, Trixie Friganza and many others. It is supposedly inside studio stuff, burlesquing the making of talking pictures. That should be good comedy.

At the Ambassador there is a picture called "Ladies Love Brutes," made from the Zoe Akins' play, "Pardon My Glove," starring George Bancroft, who has the role of a high-powered contractor involved in a fight with racketeers. Mary Astor plays opposite him as, presumably, the lady who loves brutes.

Al Jolson returns to the Missouri in a story of minstrel life. Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell are co-starred again at the Fox in "High Society Blues," which is about a wholesale grocer and his family who try to break into the social register. The St. Louis has "Ladies of Leisure," with Barbara Stanwyck, Ralph Graves, Lowell Sherman and others—another one about New York night life. Lila Lee is in "Second Wife" at the Grand Opera House and the Messrs. Skouras are bringing "The Vagabond King" to the Grand Central at popular prices.

Philharmonic to Plays Its Final Concert of Year

On Wednesday evening, April 23 at 8:15, at Scottish Rite Cathedral, Lindell boulevard near Grand avenue, the orchestra of the Philharmonic Society of St. Louis will give its final concert of the 1929-1930 music season under the conductorship of Frederick Fischer, who is also assistant conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Fischer has succeeded in increasing his personnel to more than 100 young musicians.

Fischer has arranged his program so as to bring out his orchestra's newly acquired playing quality and an interesting feature of his selections is a number written by Oswald Thumser, member of the viola section of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The piece is entitled "Military Expedition in Miniature." The evening's soloist is Miss Helen McFarland, coloratura soprano, who will be assisted at the piano by Miss Helen Herring.

The program in detail is:

London Symphony No. 1 in C
Joseph Haydn
(Composed in 1791-92).
Adagio—Vivace
Adagio ma non troppo—Variations

(Composed in 1842)
Finale Act 1 "Lohengrin"
Richard Wagner
(Composed in 1850)

The Herald's Challenge; Elsa's Lament; Lohengrin's Arrival; Lohengrin's Farewell to the Swan; Prayer; Encounter Between Lohengrin and Frederick of Brabant; Lohengrin's Victory; Finale.

St. Louis U. Club Will Give Tarkington Play

The Playhouse Club of St. Louis University will present the delightful comedy "Tweedles" by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson on May 12 and 13 in the university auditorium, 3642 Lindell. The music will be furnished by the St. Louis University orchestra. The play is under the direction of Milton McGovern and the cast is as follows: Mrs. Caroline Rickets, Miss Lucienne Deschodt; Winsora Tweedles, Rosaline Madden; Mrs. Captain Albergon, Virginia Fuchlen; Mrs. Castlebury, Audrey Koesterere; Mr. Castlebury, Sylvester Kuntz; Julian Castlebury, George Fague; Philemon Tweedles, Edward Reh; Adam Tweedles, Garvey Bridgeman.

Dayton Choir Now Lives in Ithaca; Here May 8 and 9

THE DAYTON WESTMINSTER CHOIR, America's great A Capella Choir, touring in the interest of better choral music, will be heard in St. Louis Thursday evening, May 8, and Friday afternoon, May 9, in the auditorium of the Odeon. It is an organization of 45 men and women, the outgrowth of a system of choral singing, directing and teaching built up by John Finley Williamson, who has been its director since its organization.

Dr. Williamson, dean of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, founded his organization in the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Dayton, O., in 1920. From training the church choir he developed within the church a school for choir leaders. So great was the success of the school that they soon outgrew the building provided for them by the Westminster Presbyterian Church, and when Dr. Williamson was offered the deanship of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, the members of the choir, rather than deny him the honor of the position or themselves the joy of the organization, decided to move as a whole from Dayton, O., to Ithaca, New York. Dr. Williamson was able to find positions in churches of Northern Pennsylvania and in New York for 40 members of the choir. The other five are members of the faculty. In the spring of 1929, the members of the choir and their families moved East. Mrs. Harry E. Talbott of Dayton, the choir's patroness and financial supporter, was agreeable to the move provided it retain the name of the Dayton Westminster Choir.

Every choir member has had three years of training in the choir school. A large number of the singers have been choir directors or ministers of music for several years.

MODERNIST COMPOSERS HAVE ENRICHED MUSIC SAYS MME. SAMAROFF

there was a scarcity of creative talent.

"CARILLO, for instance, is more interesting as an inventor than a composer," she said. "But even though those composers who have altered the structure of music may not be strong enough in their musical ideas to outlive their generation, they will have rendered a great service through having created a new element in which others, of greater vitality, may flourish."

Not that this era was completely lacking in first rate creative figures. Stravinsky, Mme. Samaroff believes, was certainly a composer that the world would not easily forget. He took music back to the primitive and revived the lyric cry. He was, moreover, a composer of genuine creative vitality, though in his later works, those which followed the "Sacre du Printemps," he seemed to be inspired principally by a desire to be different from himself.

Hindemith was another strong composer, a man who thought naturally in a modernistic idiom and at the same time preserved in his composing a sense of the natural limitations of his audience. There was no danger that he would ever get lost in an atonal maze.

Though conscious of the many difficulties that music faces in America, Mme. Samaroff nevertheless feels that certain fermentations are at work which may conceivably bring about a musical development of unprecedented brilliance.

There are more than 20,000 boys and girls playing instruments in high school orchestras throughout the country, she points out. There are college glee clubs traveling from coast to coast singing Palestrina and Bach and singing them jolly well, and the music departments of institutions not specifically devoted to music are growing steadily. Sooner or later music appreciation may become a recognized part of everybody's education. After that anything is possible.

It is even possible, says Mme. Samaroff, that concert goers who regard music as something more than mere entertainment will not be in such a hopeless minority.

Amateur Drama Activities

THE complete list of entrants in the David Belasco cup match of the National Little Theater tournament which opens at the Waldorf Theater in New York on Monday evening, May 5, is as follows: The A. and M. College Dramatic Club of Starkville, Miss.; The Little Theater of St. Louis, Mo.; the Morse Players of St. Louis, Mo.; the Loyola Community Players of Chicago, Ill.; the Wayne Community Players of Goldsboro, N. C.; the Studio Theater Players of Buffalo, N. Y.; the Paravent Players of Providence, R. I.; the Albany Players of Albany, N. Y.; the Gardens Players of Forest Hills, L. I. (the present cupholders), the Players of Bronxville; the Salon Players of Jackson Heights, L. I.; the Sunnyside Little Theater, Sunnyside, L. I.; the Staten Island Little Theater; Cathedral College Dramatic Society; the Association Players of the Y. M. H. A.; the Town Club Players; the City College Players, the Henry Players, the Central Players of the Y. W. C. A.; and the Make-Up Box of Hunter College of Manhattan.

Three groups are being sent to the New York tourney as the winners in elimination contests in their respective areas: The Morse Players, selected from the elimination contest of the St. Louis Art League; the A. and M. College Dramatic Club from the preliminary Mississippi State Dramatic Art tournament and the City College Players, winners of the contest held last week by the College of the City of New York.

The Little Theater of St. Louis is entered in both the one-act play contest for the Belasco cup and in the full length original contest for the Theater Arts Monthly cup which will be played in the second week of the national tournament.

Preliminary Contests.

PRELIMINARY contests among the little theater groups of the Dramatic League of St. Louis will be held April 24 at the Bishop Tuttle Memorial, Morse School of Expression and Shurtleff College of Alton. Seventeen groups are contesting, including Washington University, Highland Players, Ethical Society of St. Louis and the Joan Patterson Players of University City at the Bishop Tuttle Memorial; Lippsonian Players, Morse School of Expression, and St. Louis University at the Morse School of Expression; Wientge School of Expression, Shurtleff College, and Pilgrim Congregational Church at Shurtleff College, Alton, Ill.; St. Luke's Parish, Holy Family Church, St. Stephen's Church, and St. Mary Magdalen Church at St. Francis de Sales Church. The winners will enter the final tournament to be held at the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue, April 30, May 1 and May 2.

At Washington U.

LITTLE THEATER of Washington University will present as its annual spring production Cosmo Hamilton's hilarious comedy, "The New Poor." The play will be given on Wednesday, April 23, at 8:15 p. m., at the Wednesday Club, Taylor and Westminster. Harry R. McLain, one of the most prominent coaches of amateur productions in the city, has directed the play. Besides his previous contact with former Little Theater plays, Mr. McLain has had experience with the Morse School of Expression, the Y. M. H. A., and had several prize entries in the recent Belasco Cup Little Theater contest.

Included in the cast are Elmira Heritage, Betty Hamilton, Lolla Bauman, Betty Reitz, Cecile Mitchell, Elizabeth McDonald, Fred Schroeter, Richard Taylor, Harold Blackman, Julian Berner, Robert Campbell and Fred Hirsch. Staging and technique will be handled by Charles Schroeter and Joe Crocker; costumes by Louise King; patroness committee headed by Delphine Meyer; properties by David Campbell; programs and publicity by Audre Buchanan, and advertising by Julian Berner. The business end of the production will be handled jointly by Jack Danner and Robert Campbell.

Tijuana in Film.

Tijuana, Mexican border resort, is used as a background for one of the sequences in Clara Bow's new picture, "True to the Navy."

"THE TWELFTH DISCIPLE."

TOMORROW night the Little Theater of St. Louis, 812 Union boulevard, will begin a four-day presentation of Mrs. Ernest Sachs' re-written three-act play "The Twelfth Disciple." Because the drama is the product of a St. Louisan, and because it will be played by the Little Theater cast at the Waldorf Theater in New York City on May 16, as an entry in the first national long play tournament for the Samuel French prize and the Theater Arts Cup, the organization considers the production one of its bigger achievements.

Figures recently compiled show that the Little Theater here has made consistent strides toward a position comparable to that of the Little Theaters in Birmingham, Dallas, Santa Barbara and New Orleans; for since its beginning in the fall of 1927, it has produced 24 plays, given 162 performances in the course of which 263 characters were portrayed upon the stage. Sixteen of the plays were new to St. Louis and six were by local playwrights. Dramatists ranged all the way from Milne and Shaw through Synge, O'Neil, Noel Coward, Galsworthy and George Kelly.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD

Paramount Imports a New German Star

Royalty Comes Under The Director's Eye

MOVIE sequels, increasing in number, are replacing the once popular serials.

There are no present indications that the serial will ever stage a comeback.

WILLIAM POWELL

Children, to whom their appeal was made, seem to have become too sophisticated to swallow the superhuman adventures of serial heroes and heroines.

At least Hollywood offers that explanation and maybe it's true.

I prefer to believe that children are as they have always been—that they like adventure, even if they must stretch their imaginations. Too small profit is behind the discontinuance of serial making.

When first-run theaters stopped showing them, on the ground that their almost wholly adult audiences did not care for them, the two-reel chapter pictures were banished to second and third-run houses. Since the rentals smaller theaters pay is considerably less, so is the profit.

And if serials were to keep pace they would have to be made with dialog, further increasing the cost all around. The last serial, made a few months ago, contained some "talk," but the experiment has not been financially successful.

I recently read some exhibitors' reports on serials. Nearly all said the stories were impossible, the pictures poorly made and badly acted.

That was to be expected because the last few serials were cheaply and hurriedly made.

In the sequal list four "murder cases," with William Powell starring in three, are prominent. The Greene, the Bishop and the Benson cases followed "The Canary Murder Case."

Success of "The Cohens and the Kellys," four years ago, sent them off on visits to Atlantic City, Paris and Scotland in three succeeding pictures. Their next trip—and I didn't make this up—will be to Jerusalem. Later they will be "in Dutch."

ALTHOUGH the voting that decided last year's distinctive movie achievements was kept secret, Hollywood is generally of the opinion that Ruth Chatterton gave Mary Pickford a close race.

RUTH CHATTERTON

Awards, just announced by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, were based on the work in pictures released locally during the year ending last August.

Miss Pickford took first place because of her performance in "Coquette." Considering that in it she made her talkie debut and that the type of role was entirely new to her, she probably deserved the trophy.

Miss Chatterton was outstanding in at least two pictures, "The Doctor's Secret" and "Sins of the Fathers."

Her greatest picture, and one which in this critic's opinion she has yet to surpass, is "Madame X." It could not be considered because it was not shown here until after last Aug. 1.

The late Jeanne Eagels probably got many votes for her excellence in "The Letter." It probably was the year's best acting, a belief not a few others here also hold.

The male honors were a walkaway for Warner Baxter. He was given the gold-plated statuette for "In Old Arizona."

Baxter's rivals (still quoting Hollywood opinion) were Emil Jannings for "The Patriot"; George Bancroft for "The Docks of New York"; Walter Huston for "Gentlemen of the Press," and Joseph Schildkraut for "Show Boat."

Runners-up to "The Broadway Melody," named the year's best picture, included "The Barker," "Drag," "Four Devils," "Four Sons," "Hearts in Dixie," "Street Angel," "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," "The Trial of Mary Dugan," "The Case of Lena Smith," "Gentlemen of the Press," "The Letter," "The Patriot," "Alibi," "She Goes to War" and "Show Boat."

A LARGE group of Hollywood extras were standing by for use in scenes on "The Devil's Holiday," at the Paramount studios.

Edmund Goulding, author and director of this Nancy Carroll talking film, cast his eyes over the bit players seeking types.

A well-dressed man attracted his attention. He called the man to him.

"Listen," Goulding whispered to the man, "you're all out of character for this mid-Western scene. Run over to the wardrobe department and have them fix you up with something."

An embarrassed studio employe stepped forward.

Mr. Goulding," he stammered, "this is Prince Frederick Leopolde of Prussia, nephew of the former Kaiser Wilhelm. He is visiting the studio as Mr. Lasky's guest."

MARY PICKFORD announces that Marshall Neilan will direct her forthcoming picture, "Forever Yours," which was adapted by Benjamin Glazer from a famous stage play. This will be the fifth time that Neilan has officiated as director for Miss Pickford, his best known production for her being "Daddy Long Legs." There are 37 speaking parts in "Forever Yours," and while casting has been in progress for a fortnight, it will be another week before a complete cast can be announced.

THE house that Jack (Barrymore) built squats comfortably on top of one of the hills of Beverly Hills. About him and below him are the homes of other highly paid celebrities. Barrymore selected his site for various reasons, one of them being the difficulty of finding a road that would lead to the spot. It seemed to offer seclusion and privacy, a thing that Barrymore enjoys but seldom secures except in the cabin of his own yacht.

But once established in his new home with his bride, Dolores Costello, difficulties developed. The Barrymores enjoyed their friends and the friends enjoy the Barrymores but the Barrymore house was about as easy to find as the fabled hen's tooth. Dinners were delayed while friends telephoned for pilots. Engagements were missed when guests failed to find the road that led to the Barrymore mansion. Long winter evenings were longer because expected guests didn't arrive as expected but became lost in the dark canyons that yawn between these Beverly Hills.

So Barrymore made a sketch of the route to his house and a copy of it goes with his invitations to new or infrequent guests. It contains minute and unmistakable directions and the Barrymore dinners are now on time and the Barrymore guests are now prompt. And the Barrymore seclusion is still intact.

MARLENE DIETRICH, German screen star, known as the smartest actress in Berlin, has come to Hollywood, under contract to Paramount. The discovery of her American screen potentialities came as the result of the recent Berlin visit of Josef von Sternberg, Paramount director, when he was loaned to Ufa to make Emil Jannings' first talking film, "The Blue Angel," which was done in both English and German.

Miss Dietrich possessed a complete command of English, and after Von Sternberg saw her in George Kaiser's revue, "Zwei Krawatten," a reigning success at the Berliner Theater, he engaged her for the leading feminine role in "The Blue Angel."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

FROM G. E., New York: "You commentarians on national life are afraid to speak of the disrespect for law the Government income tax breeds. More than prohibition. Every shrewd person knows that the big industrial giants hire tax experts who know more than the Government's so-called experts. I know a millionaire who boasted to me he paid less personal income tax than I—and my income is a little less than $30,000 a year. Did you notice the millions the U. S. returned the steel corporation? A sharp illustration of Uncle Sam being outsmarted."

Well, anyoldhow, this shows you I'm not afraid to print your beef.

From T. E. G., Philadelphia: "Isn't it amusing that a gullible public will shun any show on Broadway that hasn't a star made solely by press agentry?"

Not to be disputatious—care for it?—but the three biggest Broadway hits "The Green Pastures," "Strictly Dishonorable" and "The Last Mile" haven't stars. And try to get in.

From Miss Sue, Yonkers: "I am one of the girls you eulogize who does not smoke, drink or neck. I am passably good looking and I have a college education. Yet I do not see what good it has done me in achieving a girl's natural desire for a good home and an equally good husband."

You will see—and you can bet on it.

A great building in New York absorbs the neighborhood. Thus when the Paramount Theater was finished there sprung up a Paramount hotel and Paramount cafes, drug stores, shoe shining parlors, etc., etc.—expressing the metropolitan phobia to bask in the reflected glory of unearned greatness.

CUBAN AMBASSADOR HERE TOMORROW FOR TWO DAYS

Orestes Ferrara to Call on Mayor. Address Commerce Chamber Luncheon.

Orestes Ferrara, Cuban Ambassador to the United States, will arrive tomorrow for a two-day visit in St. Louis as the guest of the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

A delegation of city officials and members of the Chamber of Commerce will escort him from Union Station to Hotel Jefferson before he calls on Mayor Miller at City Hall. He will be the guest of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon at the Missouri Athletic Association and will be entertained by the Spanish War Veterans tomorrow evening at a dinner at the Elks' Club.

Official callers will be received Tuesday morning and he will address the members' assembly of the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon at Hotel Jefferson. The afternoon will be spent in viewing St. Louis and inspecting Lambert-St. Louis Field and the new municipal waterworks on the Missouri River.

PRE-SCHOOL PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS OPEN MAY 1

Children Who Will Enter Public Schools Next Fall or Winter to Undergo Tests.

The annual examination of children about to enter school will be conducted by the Hygiene Division of the St. Louis Board of Education from May 1 to June 15.

Parents of children who will enter school next September or January will receive questionnaires concerning the health of their children and will be notified later when and where to take them for examination. The pre-school examinations afford an opportunity to correct physical defects before the child enters school.

St. Louis-Washington U. Debate.

St. Louis and Washington Universities will meet in a debate Tuesday night at 8:15 o'clock in the St. Louis University Administration Building, Grand and West Pine boulevards. Washington University will uphold the affirmative of, "Resolved, That Higher Education Should Be Given Only to Those Who Show Special Possibilities."

NEGRO CHURCH TO GIVE SONG AND DANCE SHOW

100 Young Persons of St. Elizabeth's to Perform This Week at Odeon.

The parish hall of St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church for Negroes at 2715 Pine street on recent nights has taken on the appearance of a musical comedy stage. Strains of syncopated music, accompanied by the thumping of dancing feet and cries of merriment arouse the wonderment of passersby.

Within the hall more than 100 young members of the parish have been rehearsing "Flying Feet," a musical comedy written and directed by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., which is to be presented by an all-Negro cast at the Odeon next Thursday and Friday.

Well known for his pageants and his part in the direction of the moving picture, "The King of Kings," Father Lord turned his hand to musical comedy after witnessing one presented last year by the Young Crusaders of St. Elizabeth's Parish, the organization which is sponsoring the entertainment again this year.

Run-Down Road Show.

The plot concerns a run-down road show which is playing one-night stands about the country while hoping for a chance to make Broadway. The show is owned by Jack Melrose, whose contributions to bookmakers are more regular than the salary payments to his performers. The star of the show is Melrose's son, known as Flying Feet.

The Sheriff threatens to attach the properties of the troupe unless its debts are paid. Melrose goes to the race track, collects $500 on a bet which he had forgotten, and then puts it all back on a horse named Flying Feet, playing the hunch.

The horse loses and Flying Feet, his son, tells his father he is through with him. The situation is saved when a Broadway producer attends what is expected to be the final performance of the troupe and contracts to book them for Broadway.

Current popular song hits have been adapted to harmonize with the plot. The chorus has been directed by Arthur Selectman, instructor in tap dancing at the municipal school of the theater, who trained the chorus for the Municipal Theater production of "No, No, Nanette," last year. Selectman also does some specialty numbers.

The Principal Roles.

Most of the principal roles have been assigned to members of the Aldridge Players, who sponsor the little theater movement among Negroes here. Ernest Hutchinson has the part of Jack Melrose, Ethel Bowles plays Mellrose's wife, and Arthur Burgette the title role. Alice O'Neill is the leading lady.

Proceeds will go to the building fund of the parish, which has acquired ground for a new church and school on Cook avenue. Boxes have been reserved by Archbishop Glennon, President Cloud of St. Louis University, Mrs. Sam Fordyce, Miss Eugenia Chouteau, Mrs. Theresa Lumaghi, Mrs. Leo Moser and others.

Charm that lasts
Soft, dainty skin and beautiful, lustrous hair—the basis of woman's charm—can be made to last! Simply by using CUTICURA SOAP regularly, and CUTICURA OINTMENT occasionally.
The soap is cleansing and soothing, and leaves a delightful after-fragrance; the OINTment is antiseptic and healing, helping to restore skin and scalp to natural health.
Cuticura Soap 25c. Ointment 25c. and 50c. Talcum 25c. Proprietors: Potter Drug & Chemical Corporation, Malden, Mass.

Henderson Asking for 50,000 Watts

WBZA, at Boston, Seeking Super Power as More Effective Than Synchronization With WBZ—WFAA to Put 50,000-Watt Transmitter on Air May 10—KFAB, Lincoln Neb., 25,000 Watts.

Announcements that WBZA at Boston, Mass., has applied for a 50,000-watt construction permit; that KWKH, W. K. Henderson's station at Shreveport, La., is seeking the right to build a 50,000-watt transmitter, and that WFAA, Dallas, Tex., will put its 50,000-watt plant on the air May 10, are regarded as the week's significant broadcasting developments.

WBZA's application is accompanied by the statement that synchronization by wire with WBZ, a 15,000-watter at Springfield, Mass., while reasonably successful in covering New England with programs, is nowhere near so efficient as would be one 50,000-watt transmitter located so that its signals should be received all over New England. The Westinghouse Co., which owns WBZ and WBZA, has synchronized the two stations by an elaborate wire method for five years.

KWKH, which its owner has made one of the best known of American stations, now uses 10,000 watts and comes North so strongly that it "washes" over on adjoining stations. It shares time with WWL at New Orleans.

While the formal opening of the 50,000-watt WFAA transmitter is set for May 10, the station probably will be operating experimentally with that power several nights before that date. WFAA shares time with WBAP on 800 kc. and probably will blot out WGY, Schenectady, which uses the 790kc channel, when it begins using high power.

KFAB, Lincoln, Neb., which now shares time with the 25,000-watt WBBM, Chicago, has made application for a 25,000-watt permit.

A conference of radio supervisors from all over the country has been called by the Federal Radio Commission for the week beginning April 28, in Washington. Reports on interference and on stations heard in the various zones will be discussed, as well as reports on the "blanketing" effect of stations, especially the higher powered transmitters.

The advisability of issuing an order aimed at reducing broadness of transmission will be debated. The chief offenders in this respect, so far as the St. Louis area is concerned, are some of the Southern stations, among them KRLD, Dallas, Tex.; KTHS, Hot Springs, Ark.; KWKH, Shreveport, La.; WSM, Nashville, Tenn., and WLAC, Nashville.

The commission will ask the supervisors for opinions on duplication of stations on cleared channels, limitation of power and for recommendations about reducing interference.

'Amos 'n' Andy' Change Time April 28

AMOS (Freeman F. Gosden) at the left, and ANDY (Charles J. Correll) talking it over. With the going of daylight saving time into effect in New York on April 27, they will seldom be heard in St. Louis early in the evening, for the Eastern stations will broadcast them at 5 o'clock St. Louis time, and WJR and WCKY will carry their sketches in the late period, beginning at 9:30 P. M., instead of 6 P. M. as now. KWK will carry Amos 'n' Andy at 9:30, beginning Monday, April 28. It is estimated that Amos 'n' Andy may make a million dollars out of their first talking picture, which they have contracted to make for Radio Pictures, probably under the title, "Check and Double Check". The contract provides that they receive a share of the profits. Every important film Company had made a competitive bid for their services. Nine months ago, before they went on an NBC chain, they received around $100 a week.

Ganz Plays on KSD Thursday

Former Conductor of St. Louis Symphony to Be Radio Soloist—Other Broadcast Features.

Evelyn Laye, the English musical comedy star, is to sing in the General Motors concert over KSD at 8:30 tomorrow night. She plans to sail Tuesday for England, but will return in July to make a talking picture.

Renee Chemet, the French violinist who has played several times over NBC chains, is to be soloist in a Libby concert over KWK at 7:30 Tuesday evening. Sigmund Romberg, composer of "Blossom Time," "New Moon," "The Desert Song" and other musical comedies, is to take part in a Happy Wonders broadcast over KSD at 8:30 Tuesday night.

Wednesday night, at 8 o'clock, Henry Burbig and John Brandon will make their debut as a radio comedy team. They are billed for the Van Heusen broadcast over KMOX. Martha Norelius, who won the Wrigley swimming marathon last year, will be interviewed by Grantland Rice in a Coca-Cola program over KSD at 9:30 Wednesday night.

The story of how radio and aviation broke the 50-year rule of the opposing party and carried him to the presidency of Colombia will be told by Dr. Enrique Olaya Herrera in a broadcast at 7:15 Thursday night over an NBC chain, probably including KWK. His address will be picked up at a dinner in honor of Dr. Herrera given by the Pan-American Society. Floyd Gibbons is to introduce him. Rudolph Ganz, pianist, who for several years was conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and Renee Chemet, the violinist, are scheduled as soloists in the R. C. A. Hour concert over KSD at 9 o'clock Thursday night. Ganz is to play a waltz by Chopin; Liszt's "Liebestraum," Hungarian fantasy of Liszt and the Jensen-Niemann "Murmuring Zephyrs." Mme. Chemet is to play the Violin Concerta of Vivaldi; Logan's "Pale Moon;" Poldini's "Dancing Doll;" and an arrangement of Herbert's "Gypsy Love Song." Ganz was born in Zurich, Switzerland. At the age of 10 he played in Zurich as a 'cellist and two years later as a pianist. From 1901 to 1905 he was head of the piano department of the Chicago Music College. It was in 1921 that he became conductor of the St. Louis Symphony. His reputation as a concert pianist is very high in Europe, as well as in this country. Renee Chemet is a native of France. In the concert Thursday night she is to play her favorite violin, a Gaglano bearing date of 1731.

The University of Pennsylvania relay carnival at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, next Friday and Saturday, is to be broadcast by Ted Husing over the Columbia chain, from 2 to 4:45 each afternoon. He will use a portable five-watt short-wave transmitter strapped to his back, and the antenna, strung between two poles, will be carried around after him by two men. A short wave receiver in the stadium will pick up his reports and forward them by wire to the CBS studios in New York, whence they will go by wire to the chain stations.

The Scherzo from Beethoven's Third Symphony is to be played by Walter Damrosch's orchestra in the General Electric concert over KSD at 8 o'clock Saturday night. The program will begin with Berlioz's "Roman Carnival" overture, followed by the Beethoven excerpt, the waltz from the Serenade for Strings by Tschaikowsky and the "Tristan and Isolde" preclude and finale.

French Violinist to Broadcast

RENEE CHENET, the French violinist, soloist in a Libby concert over KWK at 7:30 Tuesday evening and in an RCA Hour on KSD at 9 o'clock Thursday night.

'Lady Next Door' Party Tomorrow To Be Staged in Zoo

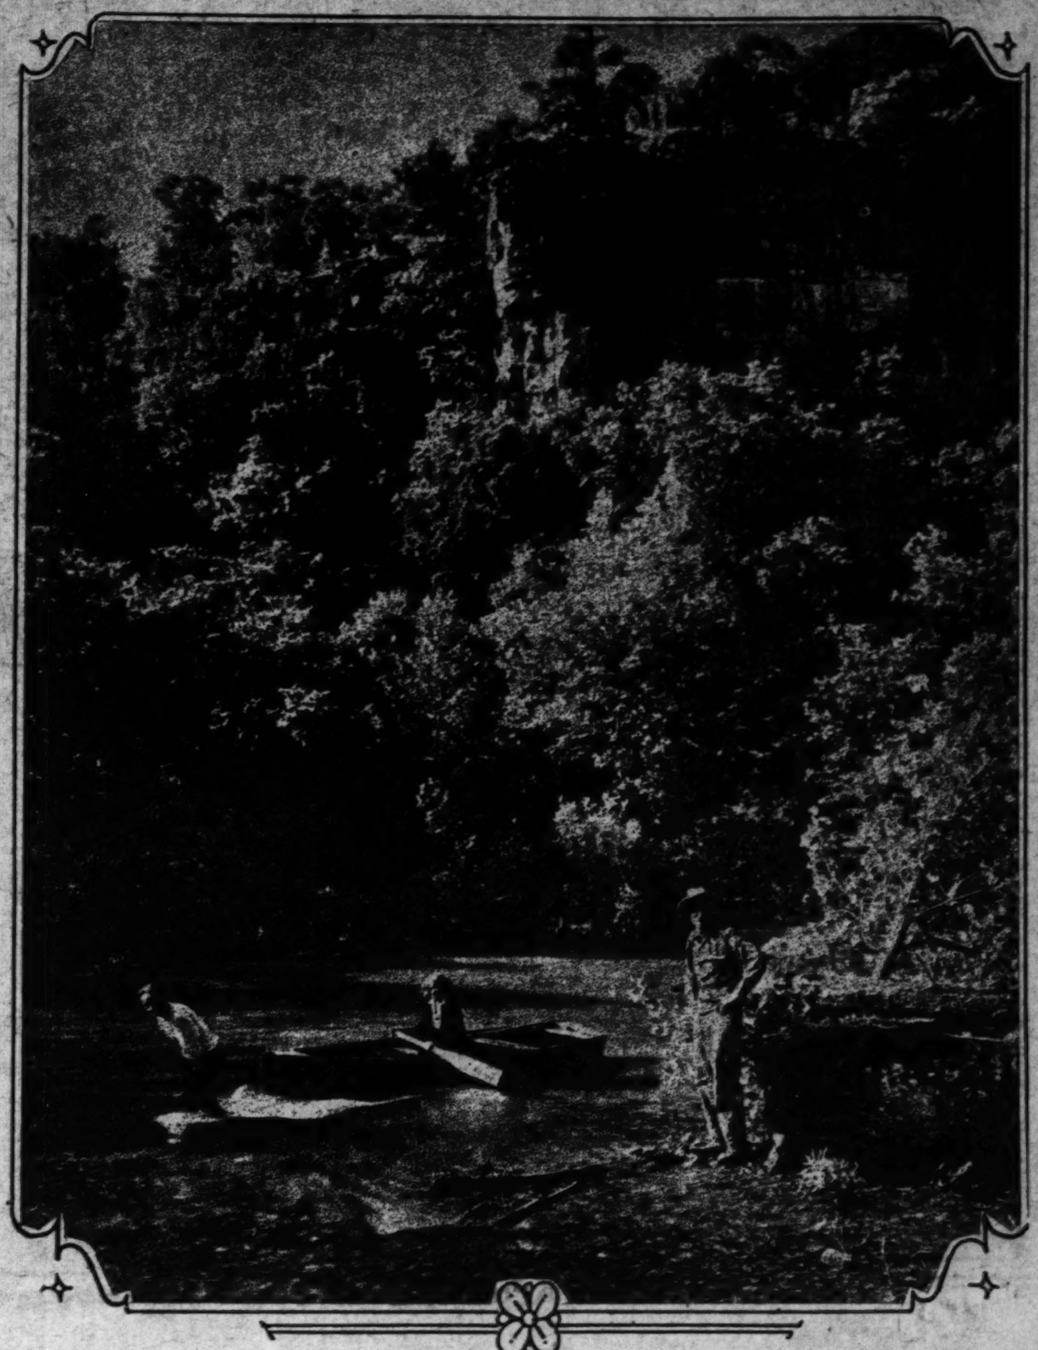
From 2:30 to 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, listeners to "The Lady Next Door" broadcast over KSD will probably hear from the animals in the Bronx Zoo, New York City. Miss Madge Tucker, who takes the part of "The Lady Next Door" and the children in the assisting cast are to visit the zoo for the occasion.

The National Broadcasting Company's mobile short wave transmitter will follow the party through the zoo and will broadcast whatever transpires, the broadcast being picked up by an NBC receiver for transmission over wires to the stations in the chin,

The broadcast itinerary calls for trips through the bird house, around the seal fountain, through the monkey house, past the lions, wires to the stations in the chain. panzees, through the elephant and rhinocerous houses, then to the cages housing the wolves, coyotes, foxes and eskimo dogs.

Week-End Tour Leads Into Rugged Big Springs Country

Section Around Jack's Fork of Current River Is One of Most Picturesque and Primitive in Missouri, Yet Easy of Access — Three State Parks Are Within a Few Hours' Drive of Van Buren and Birch Tree.



ONE of the beautiful spots along the Jack's Fork of the Current River, in Shannon County, which make this part of the State so delightful for motoring. Bluffs similar to the one pictured line the canyon of the stream and natural springs swell its flow.

FROM the standpoint of rugged, primitive scenery, scarcely marred by the intrusion of modern customs or the complicated handiwork of civilization, that section of the Big Springs country of the Ozarks which lies along the Jack's Fork of the Current River is one of the most attractive in Missouri. With all its charm of steep canyons, churning mountain streams and wooded promontories pocked here and there with rocky entrances to mysterious caves, it is yet readily accessible.

The St. Louis motorist who does not mind leaving behind the comforts of the city for a weekend of "roughing it," will find well kept up roads, excellent fishing and a Colorado-esque environment that will more than compensate for a hard bed, perhaps, or the lack of running water and electric lights.

There is that quality about the Big Springs region which causes it to dwell pleasurably in one's memory long after the trip is made.

With Birch Tree, a sleepy village whose chief claim to fame is that it is "on the highway," as a destination, an early start should be arranged. There follow six or seven hours of driving through valleys, over ridges, past heavy stands of timber and beside sparkling little creeks whose waters are pure and cold.

At Van Buren one is tempted to leave the highway and journey a few miles to Big Spring State Park, where, nestling at the base of a craggy declivity, a natural spring bursts forth from the heart of a small mountain, pouring out millions of gallons of water daily onto the ground, to flow merrily on to join the course of the Current.

Passing over the delights of the park, a favored camping and picnic spot, one returns to the highway and drives on through Fremont past a group of frame buildings. They are clustered together in a dignified condition of coma. The hamlet bears the somewhat unusual name of Low Wassie. Perhaps that is Ozark for something or other. We did not linger to find out. One accepts things Ozarkian with a good-natured smile and a shrug.

But Low Wassie is only a few miles east of where Missouri Highway No. 19 comes down from the north to join U. S. No. 60 and should not be overloked for that reason. No. 19 passes through Eminence, which, fittingly enough, is a short distance east of West Eminence, and near West Eminence is another show place of the Ozarks—Alley Spring State Park. The spring giving its name to this park is not quite so bountiful as Big Spring, but still manages to contribute its 44,000,000 gallons of water (or whatever the figure may be) to the ultimate flow of the majestic Current River.

And in Alley Spring Park one first encounters Jack's Fork, which winds its way unconcernedly across one corner of the preserve. It is hardly necessary to add that there is the best of trout fishing in the park and splendid camping facilities.

Returning to Eminence one resumes the journey northward a little way until the highway cuts directly through another State park named after Round Spring. This is one of the smallest of the spring parks, withal one of the prettiest. One might well dally there a few hours, but for the purposes of this tour it would be well to get in the car and drive back to No. 60. Turning west again on this highway, which, incidentally, is being rebuilt to allow eventually for the laying of concrete pavement, one passes through Winona, of which no comment will be made, finally reaching Birch Tree.

From Birch Tree the best route to Jack's Fork is to continue on No. 60 for a few miles to a county road that runs north.

Road signs mark the path to Rymers Ranch, where all of the charm of the Ozarks seems to have been crowded together into a very small area. The ranch is run by "Dad" Rymers, 77-year-old character, who is known all over the region, and his daughter, Miss Marian.

The story of the ranch is typical of the struggles that Ozark people have had to make to eke out a livelihood. Sixteen years ago the girl and her father were confronted with the problem of caring for Mrs. Rymers, who was blind and in failing health. They left their home in Nebraska, where "Dad" Rymers had been a cattle man, in between prospecting forays to the Colorado Rockies. The climate of the Jack's Fork country seemed just suited to their purpose and they settled on 240 acres of land and built their log cabin at the very top of the Devil's Backbone, which rises sheer from a valley on one side and the seething canyon of the Fork on the other. The valley is still called Johnny's Hollow, after the Rebels who sought refuge there for themselves and their cattle during the Civil War.

A road had to be constructed by hand through dense woods and along the side of rocky mountains. For awhile the two were content to make their living from a small truck garden, closely watching the health of Mrs. Rymers.

Soon their friends started to visit them and they conceived the idea of inviting paying guests to share the grandeur of their ranch site. It was not long before hundreds of persons began to make it a practice to spend their vacations on Rymers Ranch. Now the resort has a number of cabins, a large dining room and accommodations for 100 guests.

Rymers Ranch is the end of our trail.

The route to Birch Tree lies over U. S. 61 out of St. Louis, through Ironton, by way either of Bismarck or Highway 21 through Potosi, on to Van Buren over U. S. 60 and westward.

The distance to Birch Tree is about 225 miles and the roads are either paved or good gravel.

If you are breaking in a new car bear in mind that the engine may be damaged by driving too fast in low gear even though the car speed seems very modest.

63 Miles of Pavement Is Started on Highway 66

Road Will Be Blocked From Rolla to Lebanon (Mo.) for Several Months and Travel Detoured South on Routes 63 and 60 Through Cabool, Adding 32 Miles to Distance From St. Louis to Springfield.

One of the most important improvements to be made on a Missouri highway in several years will get under way tomorrow when concrete construction starts on 63 miles of U. S. Highway No. 66 between Rolla and Lebanon. The road will be closed to traffic between these points starting at 7 a. m. tomorrow.

Travel between St. Louis and Springfield will be routed over U. S. 66 to Rolla, all paved, and will then detour south on U. S. 63 to Cabool, and west on U. S. 60 to Springfield. The distance to Springfield by this route is 259 miles, 32 miles longer than the direct route.

Routes 63 and 60, however, are State-maintained gravel thoroughfares and will be found in excellent condition. The detour is necessary all the way from Rolla to Springfield in spite of the fact that No. 66 is paved between Lebanon and Springfield. This is due to the lack of any practical route between Rolla and Lebanon.

Jefferson City-Springfield.

Travel between Jefferson City and Springfield will be routed over U. S. 54 to Linn Creek, Missouri No. 5 to Lebanon and on to Springfield via No. 66. On No. 54 just south of Jefferson City there is a stretch of new construction that has recently been opened north of Brazito. Motorists, however, are still forced to use one mile of the old gravel road, which is in good condition.

U. S. 66 is one of the most important arterial highways leading out of St. Louis. It connects this city not only with Springfield and Joplin, centers of a great deal of the vacation activity in the Missouri Ozarks, but with Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Ok., and points west. From the latter two cities direct routes lead south to Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio, Tex.

The highway is not only used for through touring purposes by motorists bound for the south and the Pacific Coast, but by business men traveling in the Southwest.

For through travel purposes there is no direct route between Rolla and Lebanon, but the Automobile Club of Missouri points out that local travel between these two points may use an unmarked detour over the old Ozark Trail, passing through Dixon, Crocker and Richland.

Owing to the scope of the pav-

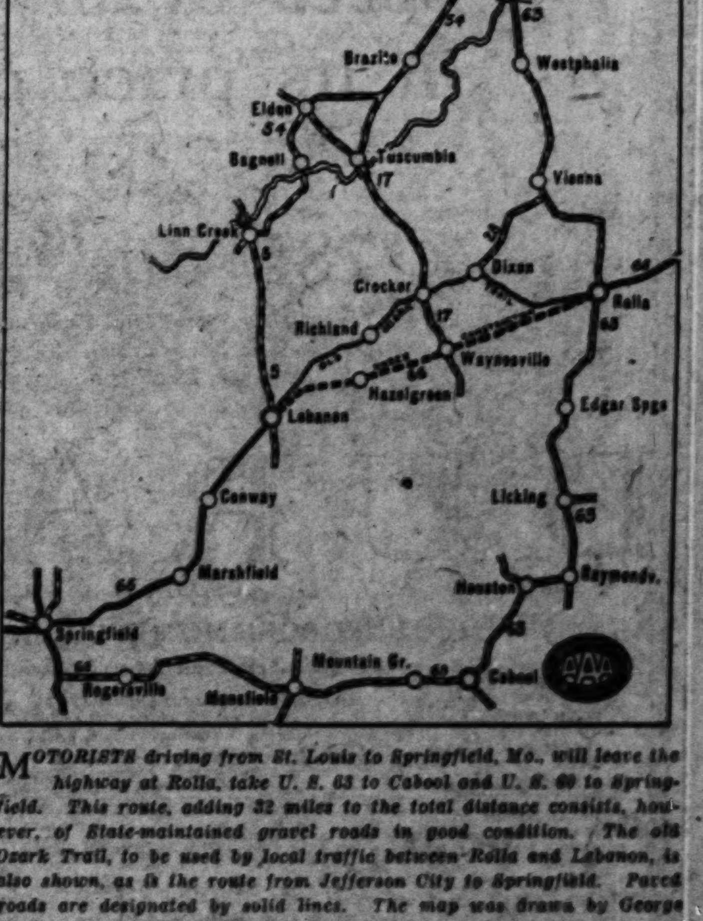
New $6,000,000 Road Along Texas Border Being Contemplated

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., April 19.—Possibility that a new $6,000,000 border highway linking El Paso and Presidio, Tex., in a 200-mile paved strip traversing the wild Big Bend country would be constructed with State and Federal aid, entirely removing the burden of the project from the counties is reported here.

Presidio, now a mere hamlet, probably will become an important Mexican border point when the Alpine extension of the Santa Fe Railway is completed to the Rio Grande at that point.

How Traffic Will Be Routed Around No. 66



MOTORISTS driving from St. Louis to Springfield, Mo., will leave the highway at Rolla, take U. S. 63 to Cabool and U. S. 60 to Springfield. This route, adding 32 miles to the total distance consists, however, of State-maintained gravel roads in good condition. The old Ozark Trail, to be used by local traffic between Rolla and Lebanon, is also shown, as is the route from Jefferson City to Springfield. Paved roads are designated by solid lines. The map was drawn by George E. Drummond, head of the Automobile Club of Missouri's touring department.

Reo Distributer Expands, Moves To 3101 Locust

Steiner-Fahrenkrog Also to Use Two More Buildings for Service.

An important change of location will occur Wednesday on automobile row when the Steiner-Fahrenkrog Automobile Co., moves its headquarters to 3101-11 Locust street. The company, St. Louis distributer of Reo passenger cars, trucks and busses, will also take over the building at 3136 Locust street, for used cars. The latter structure contains 8000 square feet of space. It will also use the building at 3114-16 Washington boulevard for its service station, using the lot to the west of this building for outdoor service.

The passenger car building at 3101 Locust was formerly occupied by the Peerless distributer. It is a two-story structure which has 29,000 square feet of floor space. The new service building on Washington is immediately in the rear of the other, and was formerly occupied by a Moon retail sales concern.

Steiner-Fahrenkrog was organized in January, 1925, by Harry Steiner and H. F. Fahrenkrog, both veterans in local automobile circles. Both have been connected with Reo sales here for 22 years, beginning at 509 North Main street, from which they moved in 1909 to 4156 Olive street.

The company will vacate the service station it now occupies at 4000 Page avenue, on May 15. Service has been rendered there since the company moved to 2921 Locust street. The used car department at 3136 Washington will be occupied about May 1.

Many changes are being made at the new passenger car location, the show rooms being enlarged to accommodate 12 new cars. A similar display room has been fitted up on the second floor for trucks. The rear of these two floors will be used for storage purposes.

Fahrenkrog served two terms as president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and is a former member of the Board of Education.

Hesse With Bilgere

Harry J. Hesse, for eight years connected with the Tate Motor Co., former Dodge Brothers distributer, with whom he specialized in the sale of both passenger cars and trucks, announces his connection with the Bilgere Motor Co., Ford dealer, at 2820 North Grand boulevard.

Hints to Automobile Drivers

JUST why it is so many motorists drive fast when running out of gas is a time-honored mystery in motordom. Speed uses up fuel at a faster rate.

It is a known fact that where fluid is stirred up in any hydraulic system a more positive seal is obtained than when the fluid is more at rest. This explains why your hydraulic-absorber equipped car may ride better over a rough road if you travel faster.

* * *

In traveling it is best to come to a dead stop before entering or crossing any main highway or boulevard. It's the safest course where so many cities have boulevard stop systems.

* * *

An engine that would not idle proved to be quite a problem for its driver until he discovered that the toe board was loose. It changed the position of the accelerator pedal.

If the brakes are of the internal expanding type and do not seem to hold well enough on a down grade never start using the hand brake if this applies internally to the two rear brake drums. This would cause the drums to expand away from the shoes still further, making stopping even less certain. If the service brakes are external contracting on the rear and start to burn on the downgrade any use of the internal expanding hand brake will make matters worse.

Did you ever figure that the clutch may be slipped through "riding the brakes?" These fast stops often play havoc with the clutch plates by checking the speed of the drive line much faster than the engine shaft decelerates. We have been trained to keep the clutch engaged until the car has nearly come to a standstill, but sudden application of powerful brakes simply punishes this unit. A good rule to remember is that the quicker the stop the sooner the clutch should be released.

When troubled with sticky valves and obliged to make a short run before garaging the car for the night, warm up the motor as much as possible by running with the spark well retarded. Speed up the engine as much as possible.

If the battery is low you can get better light over a very rough, treacherous piece of road by running in low gear. The engine and generator then operate at a higher speed.

I. G. McNiece On Sales Staff Of Oliver Cadillac

Guy W. Oliver, president of the Oliver Cadillac Co., 4100 Laclede avenue, announces that I. G. McNiece, a veteran St. Louis automobile man, is now connected with the company's sales organization.

I. G. McNIECE

Since 1906, when McNiece started in the automobile business here, he has been connected with the sale of several makes of high-priced cars, including Pierce-Arrow, Packard, Rolls-Royce and Lincoln. He was for seven years manager of the Cadillac Automobile Co., of St. Louis, from 1912 to 1919.

Through his extensive experience in the sale of high-priced cars, according to Oliver, McNiece is admirably fitted to serve the clientele of Oliver Cadillac, which is presenting at this time the La Salle V-8, the Cadillac V-8 and the Cadillac V-16.

Chambers Motor Has New Used Car Place

An additnonal used car outlet is announced by the Chambers Motor Co., downtown Ford dealer. The company, whose main store is located at 1123-25 Pine street, has opened a department at 3130 Washington boulevard, which is in addition to its used car lot at the southeast corner of Twelfth boulevard and Pine street.

A. T. Chambers is president of the company, F. G. Temme general manager and secretary, E. F. Meinhardt sales manager and Joseph Howard used car manager.

E. J. Walsh Takes Ford Franchise At Overland

Frank J. Walsh, vice president of the Walsh Motor Co., has taken over the Ford franchise at Overland. He has been in the automobile sales business since 1917, associated with the Walsh company at 5127 Delmar boulevard. During the period he was with the Walsh company, he has sold more than 2500 Ford cars.

For two years Walsh served in the war with the 110th Supply Division of the 35th Division.

When you see the New Series Pontiac Big Six demonstrator marked by a bright RED ROCKET, hail the driver. As you ride, note how smoothly and easily the car performs. Then ask to drive it. For only at the wheel of this finer Pontiac can you learn what fine performance it provides.

SPEED, PICK-UP, POWER. You may seldom travel as fast as this car can go at top speed. But you will take frequent advantage of its remarkably swift pick-up in traffic and its plentiful power on the hills. These exceptional qualities are made possible by a sturdy 60-horsepower engine of 200 cubic inches piston displacement. It is the largest engine used in any six of Pontiac's price.

UNUSUAL SMOOTHNESS. Pontiac's engine is insulated from the frame by new-type rubber mountings. Its crankcase is more rigid than ever. And its Harmonic Balancer counteracts torsional vibration in the crankshaft. All these features combine to make Pontiac a car of unusual smoothness.

EASY RIDING AND DRIVING. Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers are standard equipment at no extra cost. Together with Pontiac's roomy, restful Fisher bodies upholstered with mohair of excellent quality, they provide exceptional riding ease. A new roller bearing steering system and a new non-glare sloping windshield also help to make this finer Pontiac remarkably easy and pleasant to drive.

Hail the driver of a RED ROCKET demonstrator, or come to our showroom, and arrange to try out this finer Pontiac's performance in a special demonstration. You'll find it an even better "buy" than ever before!

Prices are $745 and up, f. o. b. Pontiac, Mich., plus delivery charges. Shock absorbers standard equipment. Bumpers and spring covers at slight extra cost. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

PAVING STARTS ON 63-MILE SECTION OF HIGHWAY 66

ing improvement project, one of the largest ever embarked upon at one time, it is probable that No. 66 will be blocked for several months. This condition, naturally, will entail some inconvenience. The fact that the alternative routing through Cabool via Nos. 63 and 60, is some 32 miles longer, is in some measure compensated for by the character of the country through which it leads. When one thinks of gravel roads in the Ozarks, a picture of wooded hills, beautiful valleys and winding streams comes to mind. And this picture is not false insofar as the 63-60 route is concerned.

Fishermen will experience some difficulty in reaching Bennett Spring State Park, 12 miles out of Lebanon. For them the detour over the old Ozark Trail may prove the best method of reaching the park. Undoubtedly the Highway Department will effect some improvements along this route. The counties will doubtless assist.

To reach Waynesville, in the Gasconade, Piney and Roubidoux River district, it will be necessary to go from Rolla to Crocker, via Dixon, and take Missouri No. 17 soutn.

Jerome and the resort section on the Gasconade River in that vicinity may be reached from Divon over gravel and dirt roads.

Cost of Operating Car and Airplane.

The "average" automobile costs 6.43 cents per mile to operate, compared with 9.39 cents per mile as the cost of operation of an "average" airplane costing $3000.

Touring Expert Travels 10,000 Miles in 2 Weeks

Cecil Hawley Careful to Keep Speed Within Legal Limits.

Ten thousand miles in two weeks of March weather driving, from New York to Seattle, then down the coast to San Diego, east along the Southern border and back to New York via the Atlantic Coast, was the method recently taken by Cecil Hawley, director of Texaco National Road Reports, to prove that intersectional and trans-continental motoring is both feasible and practical during any season of the year.

Hawley left New York long before sunrise on the morning of March 10 and arrived back at his starting point shortly before noon on March 26, completing a run of 10,243 miles through every variety of weather and road conditions. He drove a Buick, model 30-44, that had already traveled some 21,000 miles before he started on his trip.

"Three years ago a trip of this kind would have been utterly impossible of accomplishment, but on my entire route I found the roadways in excellent condition, notwithstanding the fact that it was made during March, which is the worst month of the year for automobile travel," Hawley said.

"On the westward trip I encountered snow, sleet, rain and summer weather, but was able, nevertheless, to reach each town at the exact time I was scheduled to arrive."

Hawley's schedule was arranged in such a way that the speed laws of the towns, counties and states through which he passed were observed in every instance. He made no attempt to establish a speed record.

"And the fact that I was able to complete the trip in the allotted time, and without stop for rest or sleep between the two oceans, except for periods of two hours in each eight when I had relief drivers, should be convincing evidence of the correctness of the contention that winter roads are good roads and that the maintenance departments of the highway commissions of the several states have reached a high point of efficiency," Hawley said.

In discussing the details of his spectacular trip, Hawley said his much-driven Buick functioned perfectly under all conditions and that at no time were any major repairs necessary. He was particularly enthusiastic over the economy of operation that the Buick demonstrated throughout the fast, long grind around the country.

The Texaco national road reports, comprehensive and timely bulletins on road conditions everywhere in the United States, are received exclusively in St. Louis by the Post-Dispatch and supplement the service given motorists by the Resort and Travel Bureau.

Sharp Increase In Production at Chrysler Factory

In anticipation of sales and retail deliveries reaching their peak in May, shipments of cars from the Chrysler plants in Detroit have shown sharp increases each week. Total shipments of the company in March amounted to 9801 units, an increase of approximately 69 per cent over February and a gain of 337 per cent over January.

Included in this volume of business are all body types of the Imperial "77," "70," "66" and new Chrysler six lines, representing a wide price range.

Spring days that call motorists outdoors and on long drives over country highways create the urge for a new car with vivid color combinations, unmatched mechanical performance and smooth-riding qualities. The desire to break away from the motoring restrictions imposed by winter weather is reflected by a seasonal sales volume in the months of April, May and June that represents practically a third of the annual sales, according to Chrysler officials.

10-Cylinder Car To Be Built by Spanish Concern

Up to the present Spain has not figured prominently as an automobile-producing country, for though it was the birthplace of Hispano-Suiza that firm has long since transferred its main activities to France. In view of the growth of the motor movement in the kingdom, which now possesses about 200,000 cars, the Government has long been desirous of assisting in the establishment of a home industry.

A step in this direction has now been taken by the formation of the Fabrica Nacional de Automoviles, with a factory at Barcelona. The firm has Government backing, and will eventually have a capital of 70,000,000 pesetas.

The program of the company is the production of a straight eight, three of which type have been entered for the 24-hour race at Le Mans. It is practically certain, however, that the cars will not be ready in time, for the entry was made by Government officials, animated by a patriotic spirit, as soon as the company was formed and before manufacturing possibilities had been estimated.

The straight eight will be followed by an engine with 10 cylinders in line. This type of unit has been very severely criticised in certain quarters, but the chief engineer of the Fabrica Nacional states that he has submitted his engine designs and calculations to eminent experts at the head of Swiss, German and Italian technical institutions, and in all cases his theories have been fully endorsed.

Sets Speed Record

Traveling 285 miles from Huntington, W. Va., to Toledo, O., in 318 minutes, a Willys six sedan established what is believed to be a world's automobile speed record between those two cities, averaging 54.83 miles an hour for the run.

JUST TRY IT

Drive an Oldsmobile . . . know its all'round performance . . . take it over your own pet "Proving Ground" . . . test its speed, its power, its acceleration, and handling ease . . . then check the low price at which this spirited performance is available.

Body by Fisher

Ask your Oldsmobile-Viking dealer to give you the famous "11-Test" demonstration that proves Oldsmobile's Balanced Design.

The surest way to learn all the facts about a motor car is to drive it yourself. Then you can tell exactly how it suits you. Then you are in a position to compare it with other cars on a price and performance basis.

For this reason, we urge you to come in—to inspect Oldsmobile's many fine features—to drive the car and put it through your own performance tests.

Without changing the tried and proved fundamentals of design which have made this car so dependable and so popular, Oldsmobile offers important improvements which add materially to style, comfort, performance, and value.

These advancements include smarter Fisher Body lines, resulting in longer, lower appearance—increased roominess in interiors—more comfortable seats—greater engine efficiency—more responsive steering—and improved, fully-enclosed four-wheel brakes. Just try Oldsmobile and you'll know why it is gaining in public favor everywhere.

Wisconsin Gets Ready for Huge Tourist Season

MADISON, Wis., April 19.—Wisconsin, playground of the Mid-West, is expecting to entertain thousands more of summer resorters this year than ever before.

A million and a half tourist automobiles will enter the State during the vacation season, Gov. Kohler believes.

Last summer 1,400,000 "foreign" cars were counted in a State-wide traffic census.

The Governor does not feel his estimate of an additional 100,000 vacationists' machines in 1930 is at all high, for, as he points out, the popularity of Wisconsin's warm-weather recreational advantages, is increasing annually.

"Wisconsin is famed," says Governor Kohler, "both for its agriculture and industry and as a natural playground where people of the entire nation and from throughout the world in annually increasing numbers find health and enjoyment.

"With its great areas of charming woodland, its thousands of attractive lakes and a topography that is endlessly varied, our State has a remarkable scenic as well as historical interest. It offers unsurpassed opportunities for outdoor life and sports of every description.

"By means of a comprehensive and constantly improving system of highways, visitors and citizens have convenient access to the farms and factories, the varied scenic beauties, and the wealth of opportunities for recreation in which the State abounds."

Wisconsin's highways are said to be in good shape to take care of the great cavalcade of summer motorists. More than 2200 miles of hard-surfaced roads extend throughout the State. Many new lines in the system are under construction. In addition, there are several thousand miles of good graveled roads.

Accurate information service is provided by motor clubs and other agencies even in the smallest hamlets. Every courtesy is shown to the visiting motorist.

Well equipped camping grounds dot the principal highways for the convenience of those who want to "rough it."

Summer camps and resorts provide adequate and comfortable quarters along the State's myriad lakes. Numerous new cottages will greet the early arrivals.

Improved accommodations—and a hearty greeting—will be found at the hotels.

Merchants' shelves will be well-stocked with those innumerable articles so necessary to the complete enjoyment of an outing in the woods or at the lakes.

Railroads, which for several years have run "fishermen's specials" into the State, anticipate record-breaking patronage.

And veteran guides have broadcast the joyful tidings that the bass and trout are biting great even in the smallest streams.

Says Reception of Graham Indicates Business Is Good

An indication of the increasingly healthy state of the automobile market is seen in the reception accorded the recently announced low-priced Graham six models throughout the country, says F. R. Valpey, Graham general sales manager.

Telegrams from distributers and dealers who have the new models on display report a degree of public interest that has seldom been matched in their experience, and sales in quantities which are sufficient to establish firmly the standing of the new Grahams in the very forefront of their price class, Valpey said.

"Three primary factors are responsible for this remarkable manifestation of interest in the new Graham six models," he continued.

"First, the new town and universal sedans meet fully the insistent demand for higher standards of value, quality and performance in the less than $1000 division. Second, the public has learned to look to the three Graham brothers as the logical source for this increased value, quality and performance, and third, in these new models, the quality features which have established the Graham reputation are for the first time available on cars listing for less than $1000."

Schnure-Buick has New Used Car Lot

Herman L. Schnure, president of the Schnure-Buick Co., 2218 Locust street, announces the opening of a used car lot at 2625 Olive street, which will be one of the largest in the city. The lot has a 150-foot frontage on Olive and a depth of 200 feet. It will remain open evenings until 9 o'clock and will be electrically lighted. An office will be maintained on the grounds.

New Automobile Polish on Market

Arrangements have been completed here to market a new automobile polish, called Retsul, product of the Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. of St. Paul, Minn.

Ordinary polishes that are adequate for ordinary automobile finishes are inadequate for high-grade lacquers, according to A. L. Gilstead, district sales manager of the company here. Retsul is a liquid polish designed for lacquer polishing.

John Dawson Resigns As Promotion Head Of Vesper-Buick

Announcement is made by F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., Buick-Marquette distributer, of the resignation of John F. Dawson as sales promotion manager. Dawson, who has been with the company for many years, has a wide circle of friends in the automobile business. He will become associated with the Shell Petroleum Corporation.

M. R. Bramley.

Dawson will be succeeded by Marvin R. Bramley, who has been with Vesper-Buick for 10 years, the last seven of which have been as comptroller. According to Vesper, Bramley's knowledge of the motor car business, particularly of its retail and wholesale phases, will enable him to render invaluable service to the organization.

Kenneth K. Koop of the accounting department, succeeds Bramley as comptroller. Colbert E. Miller, formerly in the parts department, replaces Koop and he, in turn, is succeeded by Joseph Eleming.

Variety of Spring Colors Used on Chrysler Models

Cobalt blue—Haig green—Opal brown—Imperial champagne tan! These aren't the color schemes of milady's Easter chiffon creations that one expects to see at afternoon teas in fashionable society circles. Instead, they are only a few of the colors in which Chrysler cars are being finished this season.

The American motorist is definitely color conscious. He wants dash and brightness in appearance that is in keeping with the improved mechanical performance. Manufacturers alert to the fact that most buyers have developed an acute color sense, have dashed a rainbow of tints over their 1930 models, according to L. M. Stewart, president of Midwest Motors, Inc., local Chrysler distributer.

Charts sent out to dealers by the Chrysler Sales Corporation show that the various body types of the new Chrysler six include such colors as Mobjack brown, Bolling green, Gettysburg blue and State blue. And there are harmonious color combinations used for striping and panels.

Much Interest Here In Gabriel Products

Considerable interest locally is reported in the new automobile accessories placed on the market by the Gabriel Corporation. They include the battery, oil and gasoline gauges, triple vane, hydraulic shock absorbers and spring covers.

The gauges indicate accurately some of the most vital parts of car operation. The shock absorbers soften and distribute evenly spring shocks. The spring covers protect the springs from dirt, grit and rust. H. C. Merry, Inc., handles Gabriel products.

Change Spark Plugs every 10,000 Miles

Duesenberg Sold Here

The Auburn Graves Motor Co., Inc., reports the sale of a Duesenberg phaeton sedan to King L. Parker, this being the third Duesenberg sold in St. Louis in the last few months. The Duesenberg car is practically built to individual order, the chassis alone costs $8500 and the car complete runs from $11,500 up to as high as $25,000, depending on the type of body construction and other details.

Large Retail Order

A single retail sale of 102 Oldsmobiles involving a purchase price of more than $100,000 has just been recorded by Olds Motor Works. This is believed to be one of the largest single retail automobile transactions in the history of the automobile business.

The sale was made to the Hertz Drivurself Stations, Inc., of New York, by the New York zone office of Olds Motor Works. It included 83 Oldsmobile two-door sedans, 15 standard coupes and four sport coupes. The check totaled $100,444, and a special train was used to ship the consignment.

Post-Dispatch Highway Maps Made Available

THE Resort and Travel Bureau of the Post-Dispatch has for distribution an excellent 50-page auto trails atlas of the United States and Eastern Canada, showing the condition and numbers of highways and mileage between towns. The price is 50 cents and 60 cents, if mailed.

St. Louis and vicinity maps show all towns, roads, rivers, streams, lakes and other details within a radius of 50 miles of St. Louis. They sell for 20 cents, 24 cents if mailed. Individual State maps are 10 cents and 12 cents, mailed.

City guides giving the location of streets and street car and bus lines, churches, hospitals, theaters, office buildings and containing a map of the city, sell for 25 and 30 cents.

Maps of St. Louis and the suburbs, showing the streets of St. Louis, East St. Louis, Madison, Venice, Clayton, Ferguson, Kirkwood, Webster Groves and University City, sell for 40 and 45 cents.

Auto Carries Electric Refrigerator

THIS Cord front-drive car has a special body built for H. E. McMullen, head of the Norge Corporation of Missouri, which distributes Norge refrigerators in five states. A standard 1930 model package refrigerator is attached to the rear of the car and is used for cooling demonstrations by McMullen, who travels constantly through Missouri, Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Not only does the refrigerator make ice cubes; but it preserves foods on his long trips. The car is finished in Norge ivory, with two-line striping of Venetian red. It was bought through Auburn-Graves here.

Shamrock Sales Grow

Sales in the Greater St. Louis area in March of the Shamrock Oil and Gas Co. totaled 265,000 gallons, an increase over sales in March, 1929, of more than 150 per cent, according to Frank Oswald, president. In an intensive retail sales drive last week-end, Oswald said, his dealers reported sales were more than 300 per cent greater than in any week-end in their history.

Owners, New Buyers, Prospects call it Value of Values

The greatest appeal of the New Essex Challenger is dollar-for-dollar value. That is the verdict of owners, new buyers and prospects, in the widest campaign of personal demonstration ever conducted for any automobile.

What Men Say:

"I bought Essex because it stands out in its field with absolute distinction of value, appearance and performance."

"I want a car to be proud of—and Essex is it. It is the master in get-away, roadability and hill-climbing. Its economy is wonderful. Its appearance as smart as any money can buy."

What Women Say:

"My car must be as much a matter of pride as my clothes, my appearance or my home. Essex satisfies that requirement with the smartest of looks and performance. For me there is no other choice."

"Just as proud of my New Essex Challenger as of a $3,000 car I also bought. It has every performance requirement. It is easy to drive and the most comfortable car I ever owned."

We invite you to drive the New Essex Challenger. And we invite you especially to examine the fine quality way it is built—its rich upholstery, its individual fittings and hardware, its careful workmanship in every detail. For even those who bought it chiefly for supreme performance, are captivated by its notable beauty of design, its luxurious appointment and well-dressed distinction. It is the crowning value of this greatest dollar-for-dollar value.

World's Costliest Automobile Built to Shah of Persia's Order

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 19.—Completion of what is asserted to be the world's costliest motor car, a bejeweled, white and gold creation, for Riza Khan, Shah of Persia, is announced by the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co. The car cost $18,500 at the Pierce-Arrow factory here, this price being exclusive of the diamonds and other jewels which the Shah will furnish himself. The machine has been shipped to New York for sailing.

Adoption of the motor car by the Shah reflects the gradual transformation of Persia into a modern country. The Shah, like Mussolini and Kemal Pasha, emerged from obscurity as a self-constituted monarch to force his people into step with the twentieth century West.

Although the imperial car is one of the most luxurious equipages of all times, it by no means typifies the Shah's customary mode of living. As reported by Lady Drummond-Hay in the World Traveler, the Shah, successor if he wishes to all the luxury, splendor, ceremony and privileges of his predecessors, dines alone with his wife in a simple manner. "Rarely," says Lady Drummond-Hay, "does the repast exceed three courses. The Shah enjoys a smoke and has no prejudice against a glass of light wine at dinner, although he drinks very moderately. The royal Persian family might serve as a model for millions of less exalted homes.

"The Shah himself sets an example of devotion to duty and consideration for family life to his subjects. He rises about 4 o'clock in the morning. Morning inspection of troops, however, means that he is up and about before sunrise. By 6 o'clock he is at his desk. Between 8 and 11:30 he receives Ministers and executives, handling state questions. Respite then until 2:30, during which time he lunches alone or with the Crown Prince.

"Very occasionally does the Shah invite state ministers to luncheon, and when he does, it is never singly or by twos or threes, but a number together. Dinner at seven is strictly a private function. Gorgeous uniforms, jewels and rich decorations are reserved for strictly official occasions. His everyday dress is a khaki uniform. The Shah has no harem, but looks to his wife and children for comradeship and company."

Regal in appearance, the style of the Shah's new Pierce-Arrow resembles that of a town car. Although of unusually liberal dimensions, it is low-hung and graceful.

The chassis, of standard Pierce-Arrow manufacture, the duplicate of many in daily use throughout the United States, measures 144 inches in wheelbase. The engine is a straight eight and develops 132 horsepower.

The coachwork, however, represents the ultimate in luxury. Of spotless white, the exterior is richly relieved by stripings of gold and by the gold-plated metal work—the fender headlamps, the door latches, the radiator, the windshield frame, the inlaid metal striping on the thick rubber running boards, and the bumpers.

Emblazoned on both doors is a golden bas-relief replica of the Persian crown, mounted with a green jewel.

The interior is upholstered in a light champagne—colored silk rep, embroidered with wreaths, a family insignia. It is piped with white leather, edged with gold. The wood trim is inlaid satinwood. The silk window curtains are finished in a figured design.

The broad luxurious cushion is tailored in one expanse of cloth, as the Shah rides alone. On the floor is a rug of Russian wolfhound fur, imported especially for the car.

A cigaret case and lighter of solid gold, encrusted with diamonds, is mounted within easy reach of the royal passenger.

The chauffeur's compartment also reveals a lavish use of gold plate, the steering column, the instrument mountings and the control levers all being finished with the precious metal.

The car is glazed throughout with nonshatterable glass.

The award of this order is a tribute to Pierce-Arrow's reputation as a creator of fine custom coachwork, for the company has built perhaps more fine chauffeur-driven cars than any other American maker.

Traffic Experts Will Meet to Discuss Safety

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON.—Death is stalking the highways with increasing effect each year and traffic experts will convene here May 27 to 29 to study ways of curbing automobile accidents.

Called by Secretary of Commerce Lamont, the third national conference on street and highway safety will consider in detail factors intensifying the vehicle accident and traffic problem.

Careless driving, excessive speed for highway conditions, and improper turning, passing, and parking, adjudged the major menaces to safety, may become subjects of conference recommendations.

Growing death tolls from automobile accidents are marked by figures of the Bureau of Census which reveal an increase of 12 per cent in the mortality rate for the year ending the third week in March.

With 78 large cities in the country included in the survey, there were 8596 deaths during the period compared to 7661 deaths for the previous 52-week term.

The toll for the first three months of 1928, 1929 and 1930 has been heavier for each succeeding year, the averages show.

'10 Commandments' For Service Are Given Tire Users

W. W. Whiting, manager of the service department of the Fisk Tire Co., Inc., has issued 10 commandments for tire users. By following this decalogue, he says, tire users will get longer wear and better service from their tires.

1. Learn the proper amount of air for your tires and always keep them properly inflated.
2. Never run a tire when it is soft or deflated. To do so spells trouble.
3. Never let any of your tires stand in oil. It is injurious to the rubber.
4. Never overload a tire or use an undersized tire. Tires are built to carry specific loads. Overloads and undersized tires reduce mileage.
5. Always keep your wheels in line. Having wheels out of line is a cause of rapid tread wear.
6. Don't start and stop too quickly. This is a frequent cause of excessive tire wear.
7. Have your brakes equalized. Unequalized brakes cause tread wear.
8. Be sure that your tires set and fit right. Rims, flaps and tubes are made for each size of tire. Be sure to use the right size.
9. Inspect your tires for nails, bits of glass and sharp metal. This will give you more mileage.
10. Have as much respect for your tires as you have for your car. Treat them right and they will serve you well.

Reverse Plug to Stop Hum.

When more than a normal amount of hum is noticed in an electric receiver, it is a good plan to reverse the power plug. With the plug instered one way, considerably more A. C. hum will be noticed than when it is inserted in the reverse position.

Passenger Car Output Finally Showing a Gain

DETROIT, Mich., April 19.—Passenger car manufacturers, generally, are showing considerably more activity insofar as production schedules are concerned, according to B. H. Cram, president of Cram's Automotive Reports, Inc., industry authority.

With April already showing good increases over the first weeks of March, a substantially higher total for the month's output is assured. The feeling that April will be the turning point from the sluggish condition of the past few weeks is being shown as well founded, with almost daily gains in output being recorded.

Sales are not yet as active as production, but the trend in the retail market is upward in practically every section of the country and a substantial demand should make itself apparent before the end of this month. Dealers' stocks are in good shape and the industry is in an excellent condition to take thorough advantage of the retail demand when it opens up.

W. Grossman Made Distributer Here of Dodge Motor Boats

William Grossman, distributer of canoes, boats and motors, at 1908 Olive street, has been appointed distributer of Horace E. Dodge motor boats. Dodge boats, according to Grossman, are equipped with electric starter and generator and sell in a price range of from $945 to $27,000.

Grossman has been in the boat business for 15 years and specialized in the outboard division. Since prices have dropped on the inboard boats, however, he has been attracted to this divison.

Driving Lights for Night Are Popular

Driving lights for safety and convenience in night driving are gaining in favor every day and one of the most popular makes is the Lorraine, according to F. S. Wiemeyer, head of the company which distributes them here. No danger results from bad connections, broken wires or short circuits that cause fire and loss by theft, he says. Special tools and equipment, with a complete assortment of repair parts, are being received by the Wiemeyer company at 2625 Locust street.

Building 33-Mile Road on Island

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL. — Construction of a super-boulevard to stretch for 33 miles over the center of Montreal Island will be undertaken in the spring.

The highway will be 200 feet wide with two 40-foot traffic lanes. Two years will be required to finish it. The total estimated cost is $6,000,000, of which $4,500,000 will be borne by Montreal.

Gene Krug Made Superintendent of Auto Body Concern

Gene Krug, for 13 years with the Herman Body Co. here, has been appointed general superintendent of the plant of the St. Louis Body & Equipment Co., 4111 Forest Park boulevard. The company is distributer of Heil hoists and tanks and Fager six-wheel attachments for trucks.

Stutz Production Increased to Meet Big Unfilled Orders

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 19.—The Stutz Motor Car Co. of America, Inc., now has on hand more unfilled orders than at any time during the past five months, according to an announcement by Col. E. S. Correll, president.

In the light of this condition, Gorrell states that the Stutz and Blackhawk production schedule for April provides for a steadily increasing output.

The tax on gasoline in British Columbia is now 5 cents per gallon, and car owners will contribute an average of $15 a year toward the upkeep of provincial roads. It is expected 100,000 cars will be registered in the Province this year. They will consume an average of 300 gallons annually and will contribute $1,500,000 to the provincial treasury.

Motorists May Tour Canada for 60 Days

For a period of 60 days a motorist who is a resident of the United States may take his automobile into Canada for touring purposes only and return to this country either by way of the point of entry or any other point, without having to file a bond with Canadian customs officials.

E. H. McCarty Made General Manager of Nash Motors Co.

E. H. McCarty, who retired from the automobile business a year ago after many years of association with the Nash Motors Co., has returned to that company as vice president, general manager and a director, it is announced by C. W. Nash, president.

The Nash company recently voted a dividend of $1.50 a share. Commenting on this action, Nash said: "Conditions are looking much brighter for business in the immediate future. During the last week we delivered at retail more automobiles than in any week since last July. We will continue our production activity."

Predicts Auto Sales Will Be Firm This Year

Marmon Official Says Value Will Determine Market Scope of Product.

A bewildered public early this year saw on the one hand automobile manufacturers busy introducing their 1930 models—better cars than ever before—and on the other hand business forecasters busy predicting an uncertain future for automobile sales and for business in general. It was a perplexing situation to the man who planned to purchase a new car.

As a result of this unusual situation, the extent of the 1930 automobile sales volume and the buying tendencies of the public were not clearly disclosed until the spring season was well under way, according to Thomas E. Jarrard, general director of the Marmon Motor Car Co.

"While it is true that motor car sales will not reach the record-breaking volume of last year," Jarrard said, "it is equally evident that 1930 sales will be of healthy proportions and will more firmly establish the automobile industry as the largest in the country.

"Instead of the average man postponing his purchase of a new car until this fall or next year, he is looking a little more carefully at the various makes within the reach of his pocketbook and analyzing, not only the design, but the value of each. He wants his money's worth and he realizes that he can only get full value from the car that is priced right in the first place, that will give him a long period of good service, and in the end will be the type commanding the highest trade-in value.

"Out of the maze of conflicting statements and opinions, one thing is certain as far as the automobile business in 1930 is concerned and that is the tendency toward the straight-eight. Everywhere sales of straight-eights are showing an increase over last year, even in the face of smaller sales of other types of cars. Because the straight-eight now is available in all important price fields and because its advantages are now well-known, it has become the outstanding product this year, and if production and registrations for the first three months of the year are analyzed, it will be apparent that companies producing the eights are the companies with the best comparative statements."

Phillips Oil Buys Another Company in Expansion Move

The Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Ok., which has been steadily expanding its retail marketing divisions until it now comprises more than 875 retail and wholesale stations and more than 7500 retail outlets, announces another purchase in the St. Louis territory.

The company has acquired the Armould Oil Co.'s office building, car laundry, garage, warehouse, 11 retail service stations, 11 wholesale bulk plants and 150 retail outlets, located in and near Quincy, Ill.

Eleven parcels of real estate, included in the purchase, are said to be well located for service stations.

The Armould Co. is one of the oldest and largest motor fuel and oil distributers in Western Illinois.

Demand Leads To Production of 1000th 'V-16'

FULL confidence in the buying power of the automobile public was voiced recently by Lawrence P. Fisher, president of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., in announcing the shipment of the one-thousandth Cadillac V-16.

"This is an indication of the buying power of the present-day motor market," Fisher said. "It means that since January 1000 persons have accepted a radically new engineering development embodied in a car costing from $350 to $15,000.

"When the V-16 was introduced last January at the New York auto show, there were only four of these cars in existence. So great is the demand now that it has been necessary to increase V-16 production schedules four different times within the last 30 days."

Average Taxation Of Autos Gained 13 Pct. in 1929

WASHINGTON, April 19.—State motor vehicle taxation continued its upward trend in 1929 and increased nearly three times as much as motor vehicle registrations.

At the same time, the average per vehicle tax for the country increased 13 per cent in 1929 over 1928.

The total increase in motor vehicle registrations for the United States last year was 8.6 per cent, while the increase in the total amount of special motor taxes (exclusive of personal property taxes) for the 48 states and the District of Columbia, was 22.8 per cent.

These figurees were revealed in the annual registration and taxation survey by the American Automobile Association made public today.

Following is a summary of other facts brought out in the review: First—The average per vehicle tax for the entire country was $28.56 in 1929 as compared with $25.24 in 1928, an increase of 13 per cent in a period of 12 months. The per vehicle tax has increased more than 300 per cent since 1919, when it was $8.55.

Second—Special taxes collected from car owners by the States reached a new high peak last year, with a total of $767,011,595 as compared with $624,325,670 in 1928, an increase of $142,685,925.

Third: The States' revenue from the gasoline tax increased 32 per cent in 1929, the total being $422,216,641 as compared with $319,906,417 in the previous year.

Spring Colors Are Features of Novel Viking Displays

A novel method of demonstrating 1930 Viking automobiles is being used by St. Louis Oldsmobile-Viking dealers. Cars have been placed at various hotels and other gathering places for inspection. If persons who view the interior, exterior and motor are sufficiently interested to ask for a demonstration, according to A. C. Williams, St. Louis district manager of the Olds Motor Works, cars are sent out and the prospects taken for a ride.

Among the places at which Viking demonstrators have been stationed are the Chase Hotel, Coronado Hotel, a parking terminal at 3630 Washington boulevard and on Olive between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets. Two more are to be placed on view.

In this display, Williams said, the new spring colors are being featured, including the following combinations: Tilbury blue with Ulster green belt panels, Tuscany brown with Brazilian brown panels, sable body with coach painter green panels, victoria maroon, marblehead gray, Bennington blue and teel wing green.

Th demonstration is part of a national campaign to acquaint the public with features of the new Viking models, including de luxe equipment.

Demonstration of 'Red Rocket' Cars To Begin Today

A number of new Pontiac sixes, identified as demonstrators by large red rockets painted on their sides, will be stationed today in front of local Oakland-Pontiac dealers ready to accommodate passersby who ask for a ride.

The local demonstration, part of a national campaign in which more than 4000 dealers are taking part, will continue through April 30. Every day the demonstrators will be available until 10 p. m. According to E. A. Hatfield, president of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co., distributer, the watch word of the campaign is "ask for a ride."

"The Pontiac has introduced new elements of speed, performance and comfort into the field of low-priced sixes," Hatfield declared. "We want the public to be informed as to these features."

Notes Improvement In Used Car Sales

Marked improvement in the sale of used cars throughout the United States is indicated by dealer reports received by the Oakland Motor Car Co.

The figures cover the period of March 1 to March 31, during which there normally is recorded a progressive increase in the sale of used cars. During 1929, the period of March 10 to March 31 showed an increase of 209 per cent in used car sales over the period of March 1 to March 10. During the corresponding periods of the present year the increase in used car sales jumped to 414 per cent.

He is also president of the Alton Municipal Band. Paddock has been associated with Neuhaus in the same firm for the last 10 years and also has a wide circle of friends.

New Super-Highway To Make Travel in Michigan Easier

Other Road Improvements Effected for Benefit of Motorists.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 19.—Without any official ceremony, Michigan this week threw open to the touring public its new double-width super-highway between New Buffalo and St. Joseph. This climaxes 10 years of good roads work by the State Highway Department and is perhaps the most important road work the State has done.

To accommodate increasing motor traffic on this highway, known as U. S. 12, and commonly called "The Gateway to West Michigan" it has been rebuilt so that 40-foot wide bituminous concrete has been achieved at points of heavy traffic. The new right-of-way has 150 and 100 feet width, compared to the old width of 66 feet. Improvement plans include planting trees, 140 to the mile, along the new road.

In addition to newly widened U. S. 12, more than 21,000 miles of other improved roads, thoroughly marked and easy to follow, will help the tourist enjoy the delights of Michigan this summer. Many beautiful new State parks, golf courses and hotels are being opened for the first time this season.

Singing sand dunes, sparkling lakes, old Dutch settlements, rugged forests, glorious shoreline drives, famous zoological and botanical gardens, historic forts and many other points of interest will continue to draw a flood of tourists.

Taxes in Pennsylvania.

The average motorist in Pennsylvania pays 10 cents a day in State taxation in driving his automobile. It is estimated that $36.50 a year will be paid during 1930 by the average motor vehicle owner in the state. This sum is about 8 per cent of the total cost of nearly $500 a year to operate an automobile.

$3 and you make your car new!

WITH Steelcote, you can paint your own car to look like a factory finish.

Why? Because Steelcote is that rubber base enamel.—

It flows itself on without a brush mark, lap or streak, leaving a smooth, brilliant finish that looks and lasts like baked enamel.

You can use Steelcote right over old lacquer, paint or any car finish. Being elastic, it won't crack, chip or peel, and stays glistening new months after ordinary finishes are weather-beaten.

Why drive a shabby car when you can paint your car like new so easily?

Warning: Don't buy too much. Steelcote goes twice as far as any other kind of paint. Buy only a pint for small car or quart for large. Sold by hardware, paint and auto accessory stores.

Judging the value of a motor car is just a commonsense matter of weighing what it gives you against what it costs—and the obvious starting point is the amount of money you have to spend. ¶ What will $1,000 buy in today's motor car market? A few months ago, such a sum would limit you to a six-cylinder car—now it will buy a straight eight—a Chrysler-built De Soto—the lowest-priced eight in the world. ¶ By every standard of value, the De Soto Eight is a true leader. You may think of it in terms of low price—but you will buy it because of its high quality. A few minutes behind the wheel will convince you, beyond all doubt, that an equal number of dollars cannot buy its equal from any other source.

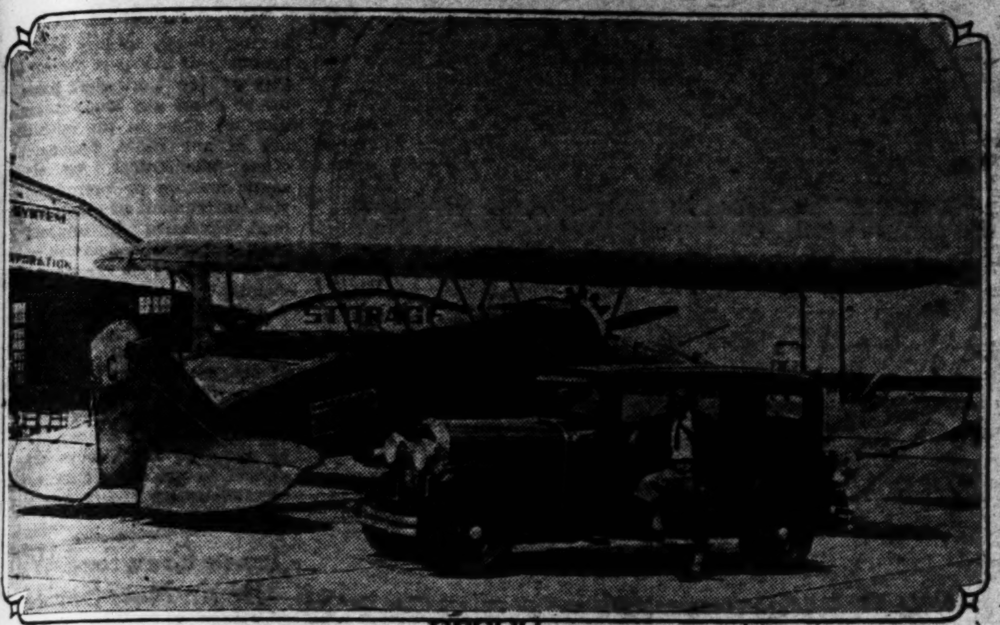
Aerial Photographer Must Travel on Land, Too



AIRPLANES are all right for Ralph R. Rugh, with the Universal Lines, when he does sky photography, but when it came to making trips on the ground he purchased this Buick sedan from the South Side Buick Co.

A NETWORK of passenger, freight and express lines spanning both land and sea, large transport planes and dirigibles embodying stability and comfort, and schedules between neighboring cities on "street car frequency," are envisioned within the next 15 years by Charles C. Parlin, head of the Division of Commercial Research of the Curtis Publishing Co.

Parlin and his staff have just completed a six months' flying survey of the aviation industry. It is also predicted that within 10 years it is entirely probable that 250,000 privately owned airplanes will be flying over the airways of the United States, and that within 15 years the number of privately owned planes will have reached 1,000,000. The forecast is contingent upon mechanical improvements, and reductions in prices of planes and costs of instruction.

Main trunk lines will be fed by smaller planes, and most of the Pullman class day travel in excess of 100 miles will be made by air, Parlin believes. It is significant that he stresses day travel. Ultimately, Parlin estimates, all first-class mail will be carried by air wherever planes can speed delivery, and overseas service for passengers, mail and express will be operated twice weekly.

The length of time required for this development, he says, will depend upon local and Federal Government support, adequate capital and an effective educational program to educate the public in the safety of air travel.

St. Louis-Memphis Line.

The proposed passenger line from St. Louis to Memphis, Tenn., and New Orleans, to be operated by the Robertson Airplane Service Co., has been enthusiastically received in the South, according to Frank H. Robertson, president of the company, who returned home Wednesday from a survey trip over the line. Civic leaders at Memphis and New Orleans assured Robertson of the need for a line to St. Louis and will give the project full support, Robertson said.

Use of Mail Planes Grows.

Planes of the Universal Aviation Corporation operating out of St. Louis carried 2174 passengers and 47,408 pounds of mail during the first quarter of this year. A total of 253,962 miles were flown in 2607 flying hours. Over the entire Universal system 6031 passengers and 61,817 pounds of mail were carried during the 90-day period. In the corresponding period last year 2821 passengers and 37,519 pounds of mail were carried by all Universal planes.

During the first quarter of this year flying students of Universal schools spent 4274 hours in the air, an increase of more than 200 per cent over the same period last year.

Improvements at Lambert Field.

Grading preparatory to construction of concrete drives, walks and a parking area in the rear of hangars on the west side of Lambert-St. Louis Field will begin tomorrow. Plans call for a concrete drive 60 feet wide from Bridgeton Station road and concrete roadways and walks extending for about 2000 feet immediately to the rear of the hangars. The area will be graded to the level of the concrete apron in front of the hangars. During the period of construction visitors will be required to park their machines near the southwest and northwest corners of the airport.

Wind Stops Student Flying.

A ground wind of 32 miles an hour swept over St. Louis County Thursday, interrupting student flying at Lambert-St. Louis Field and causing transport planes to take off after the briefest of runs.

Chicago Route 4 Years Old.

Last Tuesday was the fourth anniversary of the starting of the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route. Charles A. Lindbergh made the first flight over the route from Chicago to St. Louis four years ago and Phil Love made the first northbound flight. A total of 203,275 pounds of mail has been carried over the route in four years without a fatality.

Plane Radio Heard 100 Miles.

Vocal broadcasting from planes of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service flying over Lambert-St. Louis Field has been heard at distances of more than 100 miles, according to reports received by Lieut. W. B. Whitacre, radio officer.

Limited Licenses Granted.

The following graduates of Parks Air College qualified for limited commercial licenses last week following examination by Inspector Fox: Milburn Miller, Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Noel Clark, Marlboro, N. Y., and Ray Norton, Allenwood, Pa. Norton and Clark are continuing their training for transport licenses.

Graduate Now Air Chauffeur.

Eugene Schwab, a recent limited commercial graduate of the Von Hoffmann Flying School, has obtained a position flying for a private owner at Thomasville, Ala. Schwab stopped at Lambert-St. Louis Field last week on his way to Thomasville in a new Barling monoplane purchased by his employer.

Ryan Foursome Sold to Cincinnati.

A new Ryan Foursome has been sold to Frank Airport, Inc., Cincinnati, by the Ryan Aircraft Corporation. The plane will be delivered within 10 days.

30 Pilots Suspended.

The Department of Commerce dealt with 122 violations of air commerce regulations during the first quarter of the year. Two licenses were revoked, two applications for license were denied, and 30 pilots suspended. Fines amounting to $550 also were collected. The most common violations involved acrobatics and low flying.

T. A. T.-Maddux Statistics.

The total number of passengers carried during March by T. A. T.-Maddux planes was 4082, as compared with 2736 during February. The increase in net revenue over the previous month was $28,878. Distance flown during March totaled 213,202 miles. One-fifth of the passengers carried were womn.

Visitors at Parks.

Clayton Knight, aviation artist and illustrator, stopped at Parks Airport last week on his way to the Air Service maneuvers at Sacramento, Cal. Other visitors were: A. F. du Pont, member of the Du Pont family of Delaware, who was flying a Fokker amphibian to Los Angeles, Cal.; Ira Hewitt, Lincoln, Neb.; J. B. Hinchey, Moline, Ill.; J. E. Herndon, Kansas City, Mo.; Lieut. J. R. Reed, Post Field, Ok., and Fred Kane, Kansas City.

To Demonstrate Diesel Engine.

A Ryan Foursome has been sold to the Packard Motor Co., and will be used on a demonstration flight of the new Packard Diesel engine.

Baseball Season to Open.

The first baseball game of the Lambert-St. Louis Field League will take place next Saturday at the airport between teams representing the Von Hoffmann Flying School and the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service.

O. E. Scott Returns.

Orville E. Scott, former field manager at Lambert-St. Louis field has returned to St. Louis from California, where he was employed by a transport line.

Helping Air Travel.

Under a recent ruling of the Comptroller General of the United States transportation requests for travel over airlines will be issued to Government employes traveling on official business, providing the fare does not exceed the rail-Pullman rate.

McMillan Back From East.

Jack McMillan, test pilot for the St. Louis Aircraft Corporation, returned last week from a trip to New York, Philadelphia, and Detroit, where he demonstrated the Cardinal monoplane.

Job for Four in California.

Four graduates of the mechanics' course at Parks Air College have obtained jobs at the Lockheed plant, Burbank, Cal. They were hired by Carl Squier, general manager of the Lockheed Co., during a recent visit he made to St. Louis.

New Wheels Take Up Shock.

All training planes of the Von Hoffman Flying School are being equipped with the new air wheels, which are designed to absorb the shock of rough landings. The summer training schedule has been started at the school, calling for planes to be on the line at 5 a. m.

Lambert Field Visitors.

Visitors to Lambert-St. Louis Field during the week were: Warren White, Albany, N. Y.; Joe Wright, St. Elmo, Ill.; J. W. Welborne, Tulsa, Ok.; Fred Ridenoun, Wichita Falls, Tex.; R. E. Griffith, Chicago; R. M. Seymour, Kansas City, Mo.; R. S. Starcliff, Swanton, Vt.; W. R. Fuckerson, Kansas City, Mo.; Lee Shoenhair, Akron, O.; and Tom Huntington, San Francisco.

Qualified for Licenses.

Five Universal School students qualified for licenses as follows: Hobart Cook and David Harris, transport licenses; James Jarratt, limited commercial, and Silas Olesby and Henry Satterlee, private pilots.

Patrolman Frank R. Schwartz of the St. Louis Police Department resumed his instruction at the Universal School. New students enrolled during the week included Ben Melcher, St. Louis; P. J. Plattner, Peoria, Ill., and J. H. Youkers, Shippensville, Pa.

12 Students Fly Home.

Twelve students from Lindenwood College going home for the Easter holidays were among the passengers boarding planes for Chicago and Tulsa Thursday.

German Officer a Visitor.

Capt. Helm Speidel of the German Embassy stopped at Lambert Field on his way from Washington to the army air maneuvers at Sacramento, Cal.

Buys an Eaglerock.

Ted Johnson of St. James, Minn., purchased a new Eaglerock biplane from the Von Hoffman Aircraft Co. last week. He plans to use the ship for business trips.

201 Women Pilots.

There are now 201 licensed women pilots in the United States, current statistics of the Department of Commerce show.

Answer for Today's Crossword Puzzle

Radio Device On Automobile Opens Garage

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., April 19.—A pull on a knob on the instrument board of your automobile and your garage door opens. Drive in. Another pull on the little dash board knob and the door swings closed behind you. All done by radio.

While press dispatches from Switzerland were telling of an invention to open and close garage doors by radio, discovery was made at the plant of the Barber-Colman Co. here that the radio closing and opening of garage doors was beyond the stage of experiment in the United States, the equipment having been perfected and in practical use already having been made of the development.

Automatic operation of garage doors by radio is possible by a mechanism within the garage and on the dashboard of the automobile.

Coded signals make it private. Those cars which are to control a given door broadcast a particular series of impulses—a radio key—which is recognized by that door alone.

Thus one may broadcast signals at his neighbor's garage but the doors will not move. Substitute the neighbor's car, which sends the correct signal, and immediately the door will respond.

The operating mechanism holds the door open and does not allow the wind to blow it shut. In like manner, when the door is closed it is securely locked by the mechanism—a locking arrangement which cannot be picked.

The radio control apparatus consists of a small transmitter in the car and a receiver in the garage. The transmitter in the car is inconspicuously mounted that only a small knob on the instrument board shows. There is an antenna on the bottom of the car and a receiving antenna buried in the driveway.

The radio control apparatus is ready for operation at all times. Master-code combinations are made possible so that, for instance, the executives of a factory may all open the factory garage and also open their own garages at home, but not each other's.

The Barber-Colman Co. has been manufacturing textile machinery in Rockville, Ill., Framingham, Mass., and other places and the genius of its engineers has brought another product in the radio garage door.

ONE of the two 32-passenger Fokkers that will be placed in service by the Western Air Express. Nothing but Pennzoil is used to lubricate the powerful motors. The photograph was taken when the ship stopped over in the city recently, on its way to the coast.

Says Truck Sales Are Holding Up

PONTIAC, Mich., April 19.—"Business not only 'looks good,' but it actually is good," states Paul W. Seiler, president and general manager of the General Motors Truck Corporation, who has just returned from a complete circuit of the United States, the last 3000 miles of which were covered in his private motor coach.

"Truck sales are said to be barometers of general business," says Seiler. "During my trip I talked with practically every one of our branch managers and distributers, and, frankly, I have never seen them more enthusiastic. It isn't merely an optimism based on hopes, either. I found that our stocks in the field on April 1 were about two-thirds of the total trucks on hand at the same time last year."

New Broadcast on KMOX From Coast

Beginning Friday, May 2, a weekly Hollywood program will be broadcast over KMOX, from 10:45 to 11 a. m. In each broadcast a feature picture will be reviewed, and if it be a musical picture, the principal songs will be sung or played. The "Answer Man" will be featured, and will reply to questions about movie and talkie celebrities.

Here and There on the Air — — — By J. L. S.

KMOX NOTES.—Walter D. Parker has joined the staff as first organist and will play every morning, except Sunday, from 8 to 9 o'clock, presenting the "Around the Clock" program as well as at intervals daily.

W. D. PARKER.

Parker, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Nat H. Parker of Webster Groves, resides with his wife and family at 5736 Kennerly avenue. He was one of the first musicians to play a theater organ in St. Louis, 15 years ago at the old Grand Central at Sixth and Market streets. He was organist for two years at the Fox Liberty Theater, and then for 20 months was at the Missouri Theater. Later he worked in Chicago and Kansas City theaters and for two years was organist at the Majestic Theater in East St. Louis. He returned to St. Louis from Hollywood last week. George Wythe, U. S. commercial attache at Mexico City, will broadcast a talk at 6:20 Tuesday evening. At 10:15 Friday H. P. McGowan, trade commissioner from the Caribbean area, will speak. • • • Kay Austin, blues singer, will sing on the bill opening today at the St. Louis Theater. She will continue to sing over KMOX as usual. • • • The Careful Children's Club will be shifted from 4:30 p. m. daily, beginning Monday, to 5:35 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays and on Tuesdays and Fridays at 5:30. • • • Miss Florence Lee, specialist in home economics and food values, will speak on Tuesday's Women's Radio Institute program at 9:35 a. m. • • • The stage show of the Ambassador Theater will be broadcast every Saturday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock over KMOX. • • • For the benefit of shut-ins, a special showing of Al Jolson's latest talking and singing picture, "Mammy," will be broadcast from the Missouri Theater over KMOX at 11 o'clock tonight. • • • "The Wanderer" is scheduled for character analysis programs at 1:00 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. His feature is billed as "Graphology."

THE WANDERER.

THELMA KESSLER, the 19-year-old Missouri singer, who has startled musicians by the speed with which she won a chance at stardom. An unknown, she got an audition on "nerve," and was immediately cast for an important role in the final Puccini Opera broadcast.

Thelma Kessler, whose professional debut was scheduled for the broadcast of "La Boheme" over KSD and other NBC stations at 6:30 last evening, left Kansas City, Mo., in January, 1928, to study music in New York. Within two years she won an opportunity such as hardly any famous singer ever got in so short a time.

"She had gained considerable of a reputation as a promising youngster," says the Kansas City Star. A committee of Kansas City music lovers, headed by J. A. Harzfeld, Cornelia Harzfeld and Miss Blanche Lederman, arranged to finance her studies in New York. That was in January, 1928, when she was 17 years old. Now, just after she has passed her nineteenth birthday, she is hailed by Eastern managers as the possessor of one of the most beautiful lyric soprano voices that has ever been heard and she makes her debut in a performance with Mme. Frances Alda, Mario Chamlee, Pasquale Amato, among other notables.

Wins Role in Radio Opera.

Miss Kessler, solely on her nerve and ambition, walked into the studios of the Judson Radio Program Corporation recently and requested an audition. It was granted, and the musician in charge was so impressed that he asked Robert A. Simon to come upstairs to listen to a new prodigy. Simon was so impressed that he phoned for William B. Murray, president of the Judson organization. Murray, who has heard more than 10,000 auditions, was so impressed that he asked Gennaro Papi, orchestral conductor and musical director of the Puccini series, to come and listen. The immediate result was a decision to use Miss Kessler in La Boheme, to sing Musetta, a role which some critics say has not been well sung since Fritzi Scheff sang it at the Metropolitan 27 years ago.

"In the memory of music managers no such honor or success as this has ever come to a girl so young and so quickly. In one motion, as it were, Miss Kessler was taken from her music classes and placed at the top of the heap in radio broadcasting.

Born in St. Joseph.

"Thelma Kessler was born in St. Joseph, Mo., and lived there until her eighth birthday, when the Kessler family moved to Kansas City. Although her mother has been with her in New York since Thelma went there two years ago, and her father has been there for the last year, they still consider Kansas City their home.

"It was always intended that Thelma should be a singer. When she was under four years of age she sang, 'It's a Long Way to Tipperary,' before 20,00 people in St. Joseph, Mo. After she came to Kansas City, she attended St. Agnes's Academy, singing in the junior choir. Her coach was Sister Mary Xavier, to whom she gives a great deal of credit for her later development. Later, she went to Chicago and studied at the Chicago Musical College there.

"After that, she returned again to Kansas City and wanted to launch into the concert field there. It was at this time that the Harzfelds, Miss Lederman and others advised her that her development was not ripe enough to permit her to go into concert work and they then arranged the finances which would permit her further study in New York. In New York, she quickly won a fellowship of the Julliard Msuical Foundation and it was from there that she obtained the radio audition.

"All who have heard her voice consider it gorgeously beautiful; a perfectly true, natural, lyric soprano."

Tito Schipa, leading tenor of the Chicago Opera, is announced as soloist for the R. C. A. Hour over KSD, May 1, Thursday night. He will sing several of the most popular arias for tenor, including "Il Mio Tesoro," from "Don Giovanni;" "La Donna e Mobile," from "Rigoletto," and "LaReve," from "Manon." In addition, he is to sing "Princesita," by Padilla; "Mandoline," by Debussy, and "El Gaucho," for which he himself wrote the music. Schipa is a native of Lece, Itatly. He made his operatic debut at the Costanzi Theater, now the Royal Opera, in Rome. Ten years later he made his American debut as the Duke in "Rigoletto." He is as popular in Italy and South America as in this country. Recently, at the request of Mussolini, he delayed his return to the United States so that he could sing at a gala performance in Rome during the festivities attending the marriage of Crown Prince Umberto to the Belgian Princess, Marie Jose.

New Law Protects New Yorkers From Over Loud Speakers

A curb on operation of radio sets over loudly or to a late hour in New York City is provided by an amendment to the city's sanitary code that has just become effective. This amendment reads as follows:

"No person owning, occupying or having charge of any building or premises or any part thereof in the City of New York shall cause, suffer or allow any loud, excessive or unusual noise in the operation or use of any radio, phonograph or other mechanical or electrical sound-making or reproducing device, instrument or machine, which loud, excessive or unusual noise shall disturb the comfort, quiet or repose of persons therein or in the vicinity."

Any person aggrieved by a neighbor's radio may complain to the Board of Health. An inspector of the department will investigate and testify in court if the speaker disturbs the repose of the neighborhood. Corroboratory proof will be required from more than one person to protect set owners from "malicious or highly neurotic individuals."

Jesse Crawford Will Begin New Series of Broadcasts on May 7

The first of a new series of organ broadcasts by Jesse Crawford is scheduled for 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, May 7. This will be an announcement program, and thereafter the recitals will be broadcast over the Columbia chain from 9:30 to 10 o'clock Monday nights, beginning May 12.

Crawford plans to present as "guests" on these programs some of the better known composers of the day. Mrs. Crawford will take part in the recitals, frequently playing at the twin console with her husband. Paul Small, tenor, will be the regular soloist.

Apparently the broadcasts will be about the same as those featuring Crawford in the "Royal's Poet of the Organ" series.

Catholic Vespers Service Scheduled On Air Next Sunday

A special Catholic service of vespers, sermon and choir music, arranged for the National Catholic Alumni Federation convention Sunday afternoon, April 27, from 1:30 to 2:30, will be broadcast by the Columbia chain.

The National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on the campus of Catholic University in Washington is to be the scene of the solemn pontifical vesper service, which will be conducted by the Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector emeritus of Catholic University.

The Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University, will preach the sermon, taking as his subject the recent papal encyclical on education. The choir of the Dominican House of Studies will sing.

Come play in MINNESOTA "Sportland of 10,000 Lakes"

Think of the amazing variety of sports you can enjoy! 10,000 crystal-clear, grass-and-tree-bordered lakes within reach of your car. Visit a dozen of them in a day's travel.

Play every day, every hour...fish, swim, canoe, sail...dance, golf, ride, explore...or just do some honest loafing at lake-side camps, cabins or modern resort hotels.

Play indoors or outdoors...or both! The nation's finest fishing...bass, trout, pike, "muskie." Motor roads famed for their excellence. Hospitable people. And everywhere the most reasonable prices for supplies and accommodations. Special low rail and bus fares.

By all means bring the family. A vacation in the cool tonic air and bright sunshine of Minnesota is the best health policy you can buy for them...and for yourself!

"Live Where You Can Play and Prosper"
Countless openings for a successful business await you in this prosperous year 'round playground.

Farming and Dairying
Minnesota is the greatest "Bread and Butter State" in the Union. Of $683,663,000 farm production last year, $187,000,000 was in dairy products alone. Why not come and investigate your chances? To start, send coupon below for free booklets.

New Law Protects New Yorkers From Over Loud Speakers

A curb on operation of radio sets over loudly or to a late hour in New York City is provided by an amendment to the city's sanitary code that has just become effective. This amendment reads as follows:

"No person owning, occupying or having charge of any building or premises or any part thereof in the City of New York shall cause, suffer or allow any loud, excessive or unusual noise in the operation or use of any radio, phonograph or other mechanical or electrical sound-making or reproducing device, instrument or machine, which loud, excessive or unusual noise shall disturb the comfort, quiet or repose of persons therein or in the vicinity."

Any person aggrieved by a neighbor's radio may complain to the Board of Health. An inspector of the department will investigate and testify in court if the speaker disturbs the repose of the neighborhood. Corroboratory proof will be required from more than one person to protect set owners from "malicious or highly neurotic individuals."

Jesse Crawford Will Begin New Series of Broadcasts on May 7

The first of a new series of organ broadcasts by Jesse Crawford is scheduled for 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, May 7. This will be an announcement program, and thereafter the recitals will be broadcast over the Columbia chain from 9:30 to 10 o'clock Monday nights, beginning May 12.

Crawford plans to present as "guests" on these programs some of the better known composers of the day. Mrs. Crawford will take part in the recitals, frequently playing at the twin console with her husband. Paul Small, tenor, will be the regular soloist.

Apparently the broadcasts will be about the same as those featuring Crawford in the "Royal's Poet of the Organ" series.

Catholic Vespers Service Scheduled On Air Next Sunday

A special Catholic service of vespers, sermon and choir music, arranged for the National Catholic Alumni Federation convention Sunday afternoon, April 27, from 1:30 to 2:30, will be broadcast by the Columbia chain.

The National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on the campus of Catholic University in Washington is to be the scene of the solemn pontifical vesper service, which will be conducted by the Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector emeritus of Catholic University.

The Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University, will preach the sermon, taking as his subject the recent papal encyclical on education. The choir of the Dominican House of Studies will sing.

Sunrise Service, Lucrezia Bori, Rebroadcasts Today

Chain features scheduled for today over KSD, KWK, and KMOX are as follows:

Easter sunrise service from the summit of Mount Davidson, San Francisco, at 7 a. m. on KWK. More than 25,000 persons are expected to attend. The voices of the congregation will be heard in Easter hymns, led by the San Francisco Concert Orchestra under the direction of Max Dolin, NBC musical director. The invocation will be by the Rev. Charles P. Deems. This will be followed by a scriptural reading by the Rev. Homer K. Pitman; the Lord's Prayer recited in unison by the congregation, led by the Rev. Louis J. Sawyer; a sermon by the Rev. Lynn T. White, and the benediction by the Rev. Herbert P. Shaw. Included in the musical program will be contralto solos by Eva Gruninger Atkinson and orchestral music. The prelude and postlude to the service will be played on the organ by Paul Carson in the NBC San Francisco studios. Giant amplifiers will make the organ music audible to the thousands gathered on Mount Davidson at the same time it is heard by radio listeners from coast to coast.

Jennings Pierce, chief NBC announcer on the coast, will describe the setting of the service and will announce the program.

An Easter cantata, "The Soul Triumphant," at 2 p. m. over KSD. A musical picture of the soul's progress from rebellion, through repentance and redemption to the triumph of resurrection is given in the cantata. The work is by Harry Rowe Shelley. The text is a combination of scripture and poetry compiled by Anne P. L. Field.

EVELYN LAYE, the English operetta and musical comedy star, who is to sing in the General Motors concert over KSD at 8:30 tomorrow night.

SIGMUND ROMBERG, the famous musical comedy composer, who is to be featured in the Happy Wonder broadcast over KSD Tuesday evening.

The characters portrayed are:

|---|---|
| Soul of Man | Bass-Baritone |
| Spirit of Redemption | Tenor |
| Spirit of Rebellion | Bass-Baritone |
| Spirit of Faith | Soprano |
| Spirit of Hope | Soprano |
| Spirit of Love | Contralto |

Choruses depicting the Departed Spirits and Souls on Earth also participate. Musically, this is one of the best of Shelley's works. Especially fine is the soprano solo, "Now Faith Is the Substance."

The cast includes Erva Giles and Laura Coombs, sopranos; Ruth Ann Watson and Gertrude Berggren, contraltos; Henry Shope and Frank Horiaday, tenors; John Wainman, baritone, and Earl Waldo, bass. Dana S. Merriman is the director.

Canadian Pacific program at 8:15 p. m. on KWK. A prize fight set to music will be heard over the air for the first time when the ballad opera, "Hugh the Drover," is broadcast from Toronto, Can.

A motion picture of the orchestrated prize fight as it sounds and appears in opera has been taken for the particular benefit of Foster Hewitt, Canada's fight announcer. Hewitt has viewed this film a number of times so that he will be able to describe accurately the fight scene in "Hugh the Drover."

R. Vaughan Williams, well known English composer, who wrote the prize fight into his opera, is an ardent fight fan. Allen Jones, who will sing the tenor lead, was a miner in the Pennsylvania coal fields. Jones has sung in the Opera Comique in Paris.

British Prelate In Broadcasting Today

The Rt. Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London, will speak on "The Naval Conference" during a broadcast from London over the Columbia chain at 11:30 this morning. He will speak for 15 minutes.

As KMOX will not be able to carry his speech, listeners might tune in WMAQ.

What's New in Radio Industry

S. H. Kehoe Appointed Zone Manager for General Motors Radio—B. J. Grigsby Made Chairman and W. C. Grunow President of Grigsby-Grunow Co.—Philco Distributers to Take Sea Cruise—All-American Mohawk Plant Moved—Trade Notes.

General Motors Radio Zone Headquarters Here.

S. H. Kehoe has been appointed zone manager for the General Motors Radio Corporation, which is to manufacture General Motors receivers. Headquarters for this zone have been established in the Railway Exchange Building.

It is indicated that General Motors' merchandising of radio sets will be carried on much in the same way as is its elaborately systematized selling of automobiles. For example, the services of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation are to be extended to buyers of receivers as well as to automobile purchasers. Also, radio service is to be established and organized on a country-wide basis. Main service stations are to be operated at strategic points, and each will be equipped and stocked to render quick service to dealers.

No hints have yet appeared as to what will be the circuit or price range of the General Motors receiver. But organization of manufacturing and merchandising facilities is under way on a most comprehensive scale.

Philco Jobbers to Begin Cruise to Bermuda on May 27.

Philco distributers are to spend the week preceding the June radio trade show at Atlantic City on a cruise to Bermuda, which will start May 27. They will return in time to attend the trade show. More than 500 Philco jobbers and leading salesmen are expected to go on the cruise. A 19,400-ton liner has been engaged by Philco for the trip.

A convention will be held aboard the vessel, beginning as it passes Sandy Hook outward bound. At Bermuda the Philco men will live aboard the liner, but will be entertained by civic welcome groups in Hamilton, where the ship will dock.

All-American Mohawk Plant Moved to New York State.

The All-American Mohawk Corporation, maker of Lyric receivers, has completed moving its entire factory from Chicago to North Tonawanda, N. Y. Its new plant, combined with that of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., makes the corporation one of the largest of radio manufacturers. The All-American Mohawk sales and advertising departments remain in Chicago.

The factory is one of the most modern and completely equipped plants in the country. A feature in production is the assembly belt which carries 93 per cent of the completed set.

To Distribute New Set.

The Van Ashe Radio Co. and the E. J. Straus Co., Inc., are to distribute the new Trav-Ler compact, low-priced receiver, in addition to the Henshaw-Dudley Co.

Grigsby-Grunow Co. Changes—New Refrigerator Ready.

B. J. Grigsby, who has been president of the Grigsby-Grunow Co. since its organization, has been elected chairman of the board. He will continue as chief executive of the company. W. C. Grunow, who has been vice president, has been elected president. Herbert E. Young has been made vice president in charge of sales; Duane Wanamaker, vice president in charge of advertising, and H. F. Kranz, vice president in charge of engineering.

Officers of the new Majestic Household Utilities Corporation, which is soon to put a refrigerator on the market, have been elected as follows: B. J. Grigsby, president; W. O. Grunow, vice president; A. C. Winan, secretary; J. L. Overlock, treasurer; J. R. Cardwell and Albert F. Mecklenburger, directors. It is announced that a full line of refrigerators has been perfected and tested and that every part of the refrigerators will be made by the corporation, which is affiliated with the Grigsby-Grunow Co., which will exercise control through ownership of a fourth of the stock to be issued. It is said that eventually the corporation will also make vacuum cleaners and washing machines.

De Forest Making Transmitters.

The De Forest Radio Co. reports that it is busy making transmitting tubes and complete transmitters. Its patent rights, according to its president, James W. Garside, cover building and sale of transmitting equipment for nontoll communication purposes, including broadcasting. Experimental transmitters are being operated at Passaic and Jersey City, N. J., as part of the company's development work, and a large staff of engineers has been assigned to handle the company's transmitter activities.

Radio Lessons In 5 Languages Planned by WLW

Teachers for 5-Days-a-Week Series Being Carefully Selected.

Lessons in French, Spanish, Italian, German and English are to be broadcast by WLW every afternoon except Saturday and Sunday beginning the first week in May. The half hour lessons will come somewhere around 4 o'clock.

Each period in the week will be devoted to one of the languages. Part of the time will be given to grammar lesson and another part to conversation in the language. In the remaining minutes, music typical of each country will be played by an orchestra, and bits of biographies of the composers will be given. The history and geography of the countries also will be touched upon.

Following the policy of radio education already adopted by WLW in connection with the Ohio School of the Air, the language lessons will be planned and taught by experts. John L. Clark, general manager of WLW and WSAI, is selecting the faculty only after extensive conferences with educators. The instructors will be chosen for perfect accent and ability to impart information to the unseen audience.

There will be no commercial sponsorship of the new program, Clark said, since it is to be strictly educational.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

JEFFERSON BARRACKS BOY SCOUT POW-WOW

Members of Campers' Club to See Army Tanks in Action Saturday.

A campers' pow-wow, for members of the St. Louis Boy Scout Campers' Club, will be held at Jefferson Barracks next Saturday. Admission to the pow-wow, which will be held under joint auspices of the local Boy Scout Council and the army post, will be obtained by display of a Campers' Club button.

Although complete details have not been arranged, five main divisions have been scheduled for the program, including a demonstration of army tanks stationed at the post, a group of other military maneuvers, a parade of scouts and soldiers, a camp dinner, and camp games in the barracks woods. The army maneuvers will take place in the morning, the afternoon being devoted to the games and other scout activities.

The scouts are to assemble at the south end of the Broadway car line at 9 a. m., carrying a drinking cup, a spoon, and a bowl for hunters' stew. Special cars will carry them to the barracks, the same specials making the return trip at 4 p. m.

No other equipment than the eating utensils will be necessary, according to staff members of the council, although slickers may be taken if the weather appears threatening. In case of a heavy rain after 8 o'clock, the pow-wow will be postponed.

The St. Louis Boy Scout Campers' Club is an organization of scouts who have signed up for attendance at one of the camps to be conducted this summer by the local scout council. As last year, these camps will include the regular camp at Irondale, Mo., the Ranger camp on the same grounds, but separate, an all-summer tepee camp, several roving camps, and several special camps such as the ranger ride through the Ozarks.

FREE COOKIES FOR VISITORS TO GIRL SCOUT EXHIBITION

Exposition Will Be Held at Famous-Barr Co. Hall on May 3.

Free cookies to all visitors to the Girl Scout Exposition will be supplied by girls of the many troops, and all will be made from the Girl Scout cookie recipe. The exposition will be held all day Saturday, May 3, in the exhibition hall of Famous-Barr Co. The public is invited.

Many activities of the Girl Scouts will be demonstrated from nursing and child care to folk dancing, and there will be hundreds of scouts at work and play. Music will be furnished by the Girl Scout Minstrels and harmonica band.

Posters advertising the exposition designed by the scouts will be placed in neighborhood shops. The best poster of each troop will be reserved and entered into a competition at the exhibition with others. The scout making the best poster in the city will be awarded a two weeks' scholarship at Cedarledge, the summer camp of the Girl Scouts.

Troop Notes

South District.

Scouts Fred Miller and Tom Baumgartner of Troop 16, of the Immaculate Conception Church, received Life Scout awards, and Scout Richard Henermann, a Star Scout badge, at the recent Court of Honor.

A parents' night was held by Troop 167 at the meeting two weeks ago. A program demonstrating the various phases of scouting from the rank of Tenderfoot to First Class was given. The meeting was well attended.

A parents' night also was conducted by the Scouts of Troop 180 at the Rose Fanning School. The program consisted of a short sketch depicting the various requirements for Scout advancement. Eagle Scout Schaumberg acted as master of ceremonies.

Six new scouts have been admitted into Troop 247 of the Froebel School since Feb. 1, when the troop reregistered for its fifth year. They are Scouts Tom Bjorkman, Oliver Strubhart, Robert Mantey, John Pelikan, John Fisle and Reid Freiermuth. The troop now has a membership of 26.

West District.

A demonstration of first aid was give nby the scouts of Troop 2 recently. Practice in signalling also was held and a recruit enlisted.

Scouts Tom McConnell, Harry Svatek, Bob Tyzzer and Bob White of Troop 26 of the Delmar Baptist Church qualified for the pioneering merit badge while on a two-day camp with the troop at Happy Hollow last week-end. Twenty-one scouts, Scoutmaster Carleton and Troop Committeeman Cartside were present. In addition to the merit badge qualifications, most of the camp period was spent giving Camparall tests in knots, fire building, axemanship and judging. Scouts Arthur Whorton and Wellington McNichols qualified for first-class rank, and Scouts Will Brown and Bob Gartside passed their requirements for second-class rank at the district board of review last week.

A series of elimination contests is being held by Troop 60 of the Union Avenue Christian Church to determine membership in the Camparall patrols. The troop plans to enter two patrols in the event.

Scout Elliot Gillerman of Troop 30 received a Bronze Eagle Palm at the Court of Honor a week ago Thursday evening. The troop, which meets at the Y. M. H. A., attended the court in a body instead of holding a troop meeting that week. Scouts Edward Hopper, Stanford Rederer, Francis Klein, Melvin Hertzman and Leroy Stacks took part in the Oregon Trail parade and pageant that afternoon.

Prizes to the scouts and patrol who sold the most tickets for the recent scout circus were distributed to Troop 156 at the McCausland Avenue Presbyterian Church last week. Scout Magidson, who sold the most tickets individually, received an official scout sweater, while each member of the Mohican patrol, which led in patrol sales, received a vest pocket flashlight. At a meeting of the troop committee April 4 each member had supervision over certain activities of the troop, as follows: P. W. Shull, records; J. W. Fares, publicity and scribe; N. R. Brice, outdoor activities; C. S. Johnson, institutional cooperation; E. Bahn, parental cooperation.

North District.

A contest in second class Morse code signaling was held by the scouts of Troop 3 at the regular meeting at the Grace Holy Cross Church last week. At the meeting two weeks ago Senior Patrol Leader Thompson gave a talk on merit badges. Two officers from Troop 206 were visitors.

The scouts of Troop 205, of the Bates School, are working on Camparall subjects, as the troop expects to enter a strong team in the Camparall next month. Scout Winston Carter recently passed one of his second class tests.

Suburban District.

A three-troop rally between the Scouts of Troops Kirkwood 3, Maplewood 5 and Webster Groves 15 will be held at the Kirkwood High School Field next Sunday.

The scouts of Webster Groves 8 are holding regular practice for the Camparall at the troop's old camp near Webster.

At Marvin Park 1, the last report showed Patrol Leader Hanish's Lion patrol only one point ahead of Patrol Leader Moore's Eagles.

FINAL MEETING ON TUESDAY OF SCOUT SWIMMING CLASS

The final meeting of the class in swimming being given by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council as one of a series of Scoutmasters' training courses, will be held at Principia pool Tuesday evening, according to William Puffer, educational director of the council. Attendance at the final meeting is compulsory to class members who are working to receive a training certificate.

The only exceptions, Puffer said, will be made for men who, unable to attend for a valid reason, complete the work at a Scout Leaders' Training Camp at Camp Irondale May 29 to June 1.

Regular meetings in the other courses will also be held this week, the remaining classes being scheduled to continue for several weeks. The second meetings of two recent additions to the series, in nature study and astronomy, will be held Tuesday at the Michael School and Childrens' Hospital, respectively. The nature study class was originally planned for Wednesday, but a vote of the members at the first meeting last week changed the date to Tuesday.

The seventh meeting of the first aid course will be held at Washington University Medical School tomorrow evening.

LAZA PROJECTS REVIVED WITH PRICE REVISIONS

elay in Completion of Civic Center Affects Values to Win Back Interested Parties.

IGURES AT $700 TO $5000 A FOOT

ite at Northeast Corner of Thirteenth and Olive Said to Have Resisted Handsome Offers.

By Berry Moore

Several times recently efforts ave been made to assemble blocks ntiguous to the area of the pro- sed Memorial Plaza, with plans r the erection of representative ructures, but the prices asked ave caused the abandonment of ost of these projects, according real estate men.

Since the completion of the Me- orial Plaza project has been de- rred because of a lack of funds, ices of property that will di- ctly overlook this civic center ave undergone a revision. The wer prices have met response in e revival of a number of former ojects, as well as prompting new es, several on an ambitious scale, nationally known concerns, it is nderstood.

Project for Plaza Reported.

The city block bounded by hestnut, Market, Fifteenth and xteenth streets, which will af- rd a comprehensive view of the emorial Plaza, has been under nsideration several times recent- , it was stated, for buildings hich would set a high standard r both Market and Chestnut reets, west of Twelfth boulevard.

A story was current in real es- te circles last week that a large e insurance company, whose gen- al offices are in another large ty, is a prospective purchaser of is block as a site for a tall build- g, with plans for moving its eadquarters to St. Louis. This ock also is attracting professional perators. It comprises many dif- rent ownerships.

The Hemmelman-Spackler Real state Co., it is recalled, was com- issioned by the city to obtain op- ons on this block as a site under nsideration for the new Police epartment buildings. The prices uoted, ranging from $700 to $5000 front foot, according to real es- te men, however, excluded this ock from consideration for these uildings, which were erected at e southwest corner of Twelfth reet and Clark avenue.

This block, which has a frontage n Chestnut, Market, Fifteenth and xteenth of several hundred feet, just west of the site on the south de of Market street, extending rom Fourteenth to Johnson street nd from Johnson to Fifteenth treet, acquired for the projected unicipal Auditorium. Plans for he auditorium call for the vaca- ion of Johnson street, a narrow horoughfare hardly performing he functions of a street.

Loose-Wiles Purchase.

Less than a year ago, the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. purchased ap- roximately three-quarters of a lock on the west side of Four- eenth street opposite the Munici- al Courts building, and extending hrough to Johnson street, through Elmore Cave & Co. This property has 175 feet on Fourteenth, 150 eet on Clark avenue and 175 feet n Johnson street, the purchase in- luding both the northwest corner f Fourteenth street and Clark venue and the northeast corner of Fifteenth and Johnson streets. Just west of this purchase is the six- tory plant of the Loose-Wiles company, occupying 175 feet on Johnson street, 150 feet on Clark avenue and 175 feet on Fifteenth street.

At the time of the purchase, Hanford Main, general manager of the Loose-Wiles plant in St. Louis, id that the property had been ac- uired to provide for the ultimate expansion of the plant here. The Loose-Wiles property is just south of and adjoining the site acquired for the Municipal Auditorium.

Blocks Favored in Plans.

The block bounded by Chestnut, Pine, Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, which will also overlook the Memorial Plaza, has been under discussion for divers building projects on a large scale. The block bounded by Twelfth, Pine, Chestnut and Eleventh streets, which courses, will be held at Principia pool Tuesday evening, according to William Puffer, educational director of the council. Attendance at the final meeting is compulsory to class members who are working to receive a training certificate.

The only exceptions, Puffer said, will be made for men who, unable to attend for a valid reason, complete the work at a Scout Leaders' Training Camp at Camp Irondale May 29 to June 1.

Regular meetings in the other courses will also be held this week, the remaining classes being scheduled to continue for several weeks. The second meetings of two recent additions to the series, in nature study and astronomy, will be held Tuesday at the Michael School and Childrens' Hospital, respectively. The nature study class was originally planned for Wednesday, but a vote of the members at the first meeting last week changed the date to Tuesday.

The seventh meeting of the first aid course will be held at Washington University Medical School tomorrow evening.

PLAZA PROJECTS REVIVED WITH PRICE REVISIONS

Delay in Completion of Civic Center Affects Values to Win Back Interested Parties.

FIGURES AT $700 TO $5000 A FOOT

Site at Northeast Corner of Thirteenth and Olive Said to Have Resisted Handsome Offers.

By Berry Moore

Several times recently efforts have been made to assemble blocks contiguous to the area of the proposed Memorial Plaza, with plans for the erection of representative structures, but the prices asked have caused the abandonment of most of these projects, according to real estate men.

Since the completion of the Memorial Plaza project has been deferred because of a lack of funds, prices of property that will directly overlook this civic center have undergone a revision. The lower prices have met response in the revival of a number of former projects, as well as prompting new ones, several on an ambitious scale, by nationally known concerns, it is understood.

Project for Plaza Reported.

The city block bounded by Chestnut, Market, Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, which will afford a comprehensive view of the Memorial Plaza, has been under consideration several times recently, it was stated, for buildings which would set a high standard for both Market and Chestnut streets, west of Twelfth boulevard.

A story was current in real estate circles last week that a large life insurance company, whose general offices are in another large city, is a prospective purchaser of this block as a site for a tall building, with plans for moving its headquarters to St. Louis. This block also is attracting professional operators. It comprises many different ownerships.

The Hemmelman-Spackler Real Estate Co., it is recalled, was commissioned by the city to obtain options on this block as a site under consideration for the new Police Department buildings. The prices quoted, ranging from $700 to $5000 a front foot, according to real estate men, however, excluded this block from consideration for these buildings, which were erected at the southwest corner of Twelfth street and Clark avenue.

This block, which has a frontage on Chestnut, Market, Fifteenth and Sixteenth of several hundred feet, is just west of the site on the south side of Market street, extending from Fourteenth to Johnson street and from Johnson to Fifteenth street, acquired for the projected Municipal Auditorium. Plans for the auditorium call for the vacation of Johnson street, a narrow thoroughfare hardly performing the functions of a street.

Loose-Wiles Purchase.

Less than a year ago, the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. purchased approximately three-quarters of a block on the west side of Fourteenth street opposite the Municipal Courts building, and extending through to Johnson street, through Elmore Cave & Co. This property has 175 feet on Fourteenth, 150 feet on Clark avenue and 175 feet on Johnson street, the purchase including both the northwest corner of Fourteenth street and Clark avenue and the northeast corner of Fifteenth and Johnson streets. Just west of this purchase is the six-story plant of the Loose-Wiles company, occupying 175 feet on Johnson street, 150 feet on Clark avenue and 175 feet on Fifteenth street.

At the time of the purchase, Hanford Main, general manager of the Loose-Wiles plant in St. Louis, said that the property had been acquired to provide for the ultimate expansion of the plant here. The Loose-Wiles property is just south of and adjoining the site acquired for the Municipal Auditorium.

Blocks Favored in Plans.

The block bounded by Chestnut, Pine, Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, which will also overlook the Memorial Plaza, has been under discussion for divers building projects on a large scale. The block bounded by Twelfth, Pine, Chestnut and Eleventh streets, which will form one of the most valuable sites adjacent to the Plaza, has figured in plans for not a few pretentious structures, including hotel, office and mercantile buildings of all kinds, since the inception of the Plaza undertaking.

Erection of the new Missouri Pacific at the southeast corner of Thirteenth and Olive streets and the Shell Building at the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets undoubtedly was predicated primarily on the Memorial Plaza.

One of the most imposing sites adjacent to the Memorial Plaza area is the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Olive streets. This site which is owned by the Rozier estate, has resisted many handsome offers, presumably from hotel promoters, the corner forming a superb site for a large structure of that type. Also available in connection with the Plaza, as sites for monumental structures, are the blocks bounded by Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Olive and Pine streets, and by Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Chestnut and Pine streets, both having figured in building plans, which have collapsed because of a diversity of ideas to ground values.

NEW EDWARD L. BAKEWELL RESIDENCE NEARS COMPLETION

Construction work is nearing completion on a new residence of Edward L. Bakewell on the hilltop acreage on the west side of the Denny road, in the Village of Huntleigh. The house is of French architecture. It was virtually grouped with the estates of Louis Hager, Beverly Jones, Adalbert von Gontard and Edward L. Bakewell and is just south of and overlooking the beautiful exclusive Bridlespur Hunt Club property.

The estate owners, all of whom are residents in the village, propose to make Denny road one of the most attractive highways in the county, restricting it to homes of the highest class.

The new Bakewell house, which is in the French style, is designed from plans by Maritz & Young, has eight bedrooms and four baths, large living room, dining room, kitchen and pantry; also three-car garage.

LAFAYETTE MUTUAL BUILDING ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Lafayette Mutual Building Association held Monday the following officers were elected: George Oliver Carpenter Jr., president; E. Glion Curtis, first vice president; Clifford B. Allen, second vice president, and S. A. Koster, secretary. The association, which is the oldest in St. Louis, has just completed its fifty-seventh year of operation and now has more than $900,000 lent on property in the city and county of St. Louis.

DINNER MEETING OF BROKERS' DIVISION TUESDAY EVENING

NEGOTIATIONS FOR SALE OF SCHOOL BOARD BUILDING

President Blumeyer Discusses Offers for Property, One Rejected and One Still Under Consideration.

Arthur A. Blumeyer, president of the Board of Education, said yesterday, negotiations for the Board of Education property at the northwest corner of Ninth and Locust streets, were still in progress.

He referred especially, he said, to the offer recently submitted by W. J. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co., for a 99-year lease of the building and site, at a rental of 5 per cent on a valuation of $1,250,000, with the privilege to purchase at that price within 20 years. While the School Board owns the property it is exempt from taxation.

Holbrook plans to add additional stories and to alter the building for retailers' use. It is understood that he has organized a group to lease or to purchase the property.

Prior to Holbrook's offer, Skouras Bros. sought a 99-year lease of the property at 4½ per cent on a valuation of $1,100,000, or $49,500 a year, which was rejected. A new offer is expected from Skouras Bros., who have plans for a 37-story structure for the site.

It is understood that the property is for sale on a cash basis for $1,250,000. The site fronts 127 feet on Locust and 112 feet on Ninth street.

Blumeyer said the building, which is seven stories in height, had been tested and found strong enough to bear several additional stories.

The Board of Education Building is opposite the Federal Building, which it is expected will be on the market when the new Federal Building is erected. Several plans, regarded as visionary, have been suggested, one for a combination department store and hotel, with an underground station for suburban trains, on the Federal Building site. The Terminal company's railroad tunnel passes this point.

GROEBL-SENNINGER REAL ESTATE FIRM INCORPORATED

The Groebl-Senninger Co. has been incorporated by Emil P. Senninger and Albert F. Groebl. The concern has taken quarters at 922 North Kingshighway where it will do a general real estate loan, sales and insurance business. Members of the concern, which formerly had offices in the International Life Building at 722 Chestnut street, have had wide experience in the real estate field, both as salesmen and as general real estate agents and are regarded as thoroughly conversant with values and details.

JOHNS H. RADFORD BUYS HOME IN WEBSTER GROVES

Mr. and Mrs. Johns H. Radford have purchased a handsome residence at 432 Fairview avenue, Webster Groves. Radford is assistant manager of the Paul Brown building. They will take possession as soon as alterations and repairs now under way are completed.

NEW COMPANY TAKES OVER POKORNY & CO. PLANT

A new firm, Pokorny Galleries, Inc., has taken over the operation of Pokorny & Co., and is occupying the fine new building which that firm has been occupying for the last six months.

The new firm's officers are: Marion W. Niedringhaus, president; H. Rodemeyer, vice president; Frank Felker, secretary.

Joseph Pokorny, founder of Pokorny & Co., will continue to direct the making of furniture.

JOSEPH L. KOHNER CO. MOVES TO 814 CHESTNUT

The Joseph L. Kohner Realty Co. has removed to larger ground-floor quarters at 814 Chestnut street. The concern was formerly located at 108 North Ninth street.

Koehler Agency Sells Bungalow.

The Erwin A. Koehler Agency reports the sale of a six-room bungalow at 5525 South Kingshighway for George C. Weber to Perry F. George.

FOUR LEASES CLOSED BY MARTIN & BREITT

David H. Governick Co. Takes Quarters on Fifth Floor of Rumsey Building.

The David H. Governick Co. has leased quarters in the eastern section of the fifth floor of the Rumsey building at 1906 Pine street to be used in the manufacture of pillows and sundries pertaining to said business. The lease was made for the Investment Real Estate Co. through Martin & Breitt.

Knapp Monarch Co. also has taken space on the fourth floor of this building for a machine shop and an experimental laboratory. This company has its main offices and headquarters at 1413-15 Pine street and a number of branch offices throughout the United States. The additional space was acquired to provide for expansion of the company's business. This lease also was made for the Investment Real Estate Co.

Martin & Breitt leased the first floor storeroom at 925 Market street to Theo Lazanax for use as a barber shop and the storeroom in the same building at 4 North Tenth street to the Missouri District Telegraph Co. The company will use this for one of its various branch stores. This building has recently been altered and divided into small stores and is now entirely occupied, having six stores on the ground floor and a 30-room hotel on the second and third floors. Both leases were negotiated by Martin & Breitt. The building is owned by M. J. Miller.

Martin & Breitt also leased the fifth floor of the building at 714-16 Washington to F. R. Roberts, who will use the space for the manufacture of draperies and curtains. The property was leased for the account of the Eighth Street Realty Co., Martin & Breitt representing both parties.

MORRIS AACH REALTY CO. QUARTERS ARE MODERNIZED

The building occupied by the Morris Aach Realty Co. at 826 Chestnut street has been modernized on a scale that gives it place with the most attractive on Chestnut street. The concern, organized 25 years ago, conducts a general real estate loan and insurance agency. It has a record number of transactions in business property, flats and apartments to its credit. It underwrites both first and second deeds of trust.

Sale by Walter H. Hahn.

Walter H. Hahn reports the sale of 2011 South Jefferson avenue to the Knickerbocker Furniture and Moving Co., who purchased the property for the expansion of their rapidly growing business.

STEINER & FAHRENKROG LEASES FLOOR SPACE

Reo Distributors Acquire 50,000 Square Feet in Three Buildings.

The Steiner-Fahrenkrog Automobile Co. has acquired a long lease of 50,000 square feet in the two-story building at the northwest corner of Locust street and Cardinal avenue, in the one-story building at 3114-16 Washington avenue, and in the one-story building at 3136 Locust street.

The Locust street-Cardinal avenue building, held by Charles Thuener, trustee, will be used exclusively for the sale of the new Reo pleasure cars and trucks; 3114-16 Washington avenue, which is owned by Joseph Walpert, for service and sale of parts, and 3136 Locust street for the sale of used cars. A sublease has been acquired through Walpert on the vacant lot adjoining 3114-16 Locust on the west, which will be used for parking space.

The Steiner-Fahrenkrog Automobile Co. is the exclusive distributor for Reo cars and trucks in this territory. The president is Harry Steiner. H. F. Fahrenkrog is secretary and treasurer.

First National Co. and Bush-Burns Realty Co. represented all parties in these transactions, except in connection with the lease at 3136 Locust street, in which deal the owner was represented by Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co.

EGGERS REALTY PUTS TRACT ON SPOEDE ROAD ON MARKET

The Eggers Realty & Investment Co. has placed upon the market an 80-acre tract on the Spoede road, one-half mile north of the Ladue road. The development will be called "Colonial Hills" and it will be restricted to colonial homes to cost not less than $25,000.

The property has a frontage of a half mile on the Spoede road with a gradual rise from the road eastward reaching an elevation of about 200 feet. The view from this hill is unbroken for miles in every direction. Mary Institute lies less than a mile away across the valley and its colonial architecture offers a setting for colonial homes.

A St. Louis architect is preparing plans for a modern Monticello to be located on five acres of the southern end of the tract, overlooking the large spring fed lily pond just completed on the property. Each tract will be completely landscaped by the developers.

AMERICAN FOLDING BOX CO. LEASES AT 1901 WASHINGTON

The second floor of the building at 1901-11 Washington avenue has been taken under a long lease by the American Folding Box Co.

The building, which covers this entire block, is owned by the Wrought Iron Range Co., which was represented by M. H. Rodemyer & Co. David D. Lynch represented the lessee, now located at 1123 North Sixth street.

CARTER REALTY CO. REPORTS SALES IN PASADENA HILLS

The Carter Realty Co., through W. C. Philbrook, report marked increase in inquiries for locations for homesites this spring in Pasadena Hills. Three homes were started last week, with the outlook for at least 20 more during the summer. He reports No. 1 display house sold and that No. 2 house is furnished and now open for the public.

Weather permitting, the completion of improvements will be started by the last of this month, and it is expected that all improvements will be in by the latter part of August. Work has been started on a miniature golf course to be in Winchester Park. Spring water has been turned into the lagoon in Roland Park, which is rapidly filling with water.

Ten locations were sold last week for homesites.

WRIGHT-GUHMAN CO. LEASES MONOGRAM BUILDING SPACE

The Wright-Guhman Co. has taken a 12-year lease of the west part of the third floor of the Monogram Building at Seventeenth street and Washington avenue, owned by the Central States Life Insurance Co., of which Oscar F. Wright is president.

The Wright-Guhman Co. represents several large Eastern firms that manufacture products for the shoe trade. The space leased approximates 10,000 square feet. Wright-Guhman Co. are now occupying the second floor of the Cupples Building on the northeast corner of Eighth and Spruce streets and will move to the new location this week.

David D. Lynch & Co. represented the Wright-Guhman Co. and M. H. Rodemyer & Co. the insurance company.

BUILDING RISES IN MARCH AFTER 4-MONTH DECLINE

Gain of 46 Per Cent Over February With 20 of 25 Leading Cities Showing an Increase.

That building construction throughout the United States has definitely taken a turn for the better was indicated in official reports received by S. W. Straus & Co., showing a 46 per cent gain in March over February. Building permits issued in 583 representative cities and towns in every part of the country totaled $187,270,491 compared with $128,043,217 in February.

Building permits for March, 1929, amounted to $408,931,092, which at first glance would appear to indicate a drastic decline in building activity this year amounting to 54 per cent. Had March, 1929, been a normal month in the building industry, this decline would preclude any possibility of an encouraging interpretation of the figures. However, it should be remembered that during March of last year an abnormal volume of building plans, more than $170,000,000, was rushed through and filed in New York City because of the pending multiple dwellings legislation at Albany.

The significance of the 46 per cent increase in March over February lies in the fact that the normal expected increase from February to March is only about 37 per cent. The March increase further compares favorably with a loss of 2 per cent from January to February; 17 per cent from December to January; 19 per cent from November to December, and 23 per cent from October to November. The reports constitute the most reassuring indication so far received that the building trend has turned the corner and is headed upward.

In the group of 25 cities in which the greatest building activities currently exist, March permits were $109,056,842, as compared with $66,156,153 in February—a gain of 65 per cent. The loss from March, 1929, was 60 per cent, but against the abnormal conditions prevailing in New York City last year must be taken into consideration.

Twenty of the 25 cities showed substantial gains over February, only Chicago, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Oklahoma City and Cleveland falling behind.

Los Angeles ranked second to New York in building volume with $7,045,931, followed by Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Detroit and Chicago in the order named. Permits in San Francisco amounted to $3,502,312, compared with $2,701,111 in March, 1929. Boston declined from March of last year but gained over February. Pittsburg also gained over February, but showed a loss from March, 1929.

SUBURBAN PROP. FOR SALE

Clayton Road estate, consisting of 17 acres, nine-room brick and stucco residence, with two baths, swimming pool, natural lake, garage for five cars, poultry houses, kennels, etc. Studio living room 30x40 with 19-ft. ceilings. 800 feet Clayton road frontage, fronting on the east on a road also. Ideal for subdivision.

Wonderful profit in future. The county is spending ten million dollars on roads. Institutions are being built throughout the county, making these locations more desirable all the time.

Just 45 minutes from Broadway. Clayton Crest, just west of Mason Road on the north side of Clayton Road. Almost one acre of lawn with giant shade trees, making it a Summer haven.

Enjoy the country air away from smoke of the city. Time is worth money and you live longer here. Your children will reflect its advantages.

Fruit orchard of 74 trees; 600 strawberry and raspberry plants; 260 grapevines, 87 evergreen trees; 1200 feet of Japanese Barberry and California privet hedge.

Present owner has averaged $125.00 monthly from produce and poultry, in his spare time.

IN MEMORIAM

BROCKMAN—In loving memory of our brother-in-law, Henry Brockman, who passed away March 26, 1929, and dear sister, Lucile Brockman, April 20, 1929.
You suffered hours, yes hours of pain,
To wait for cure, but all in vain.
Till God alone knew what was best,
Called you home to give you rest.
Days of sadness still come o'er us;
Secret tears often flow,
But memory keeps you nearer,
Though you died a year ago.
Sadly missed by
SISTER AND BROTHER, SISTER-IN-LAW AND BROTHERS-IN-LAW.

BUREN, AUGUST—Died 1 years ago, April 19, 1929:
I cannot say and I will not say
That he is dead, he is just away
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land.
Sadly missed by his wife,
ROSE BUREN, and Children

CAIN—John T.; departed life one year ago, April 20, 1929.
His smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall;
He had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet him;
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp his hand in the better land,
Never to part again.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, MRS. VIVIAN E. CAIN, AND FAMILY. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

CURRIER—In loving memory of Annie Currier, who departed April 17, 1929:
Not dead to the ones who loved you,
Only gone on before to that beautiful isle of somewhere
Where we meet to part no more.
Sadly missed by
Daughter and Son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Shippel.

EIFFERT—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Fred Eiffert Sr., who departed this life four years ago, April 20, 1925. Sadly missed by WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

FOSTER—Isabell; died one year ago, April 24, 1929.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender and true.
There is not a day, dear mother,
We do not think of you.
Sadly missed by
FOSTER AND WEHRENBERG FAMILY.

HOWARD—In loving memory of Mrs. Florence Howard, who departed this life April 23, 1929:
Surrounded by friends I am lonesome;
In the midst of joy I am blue;
With a smile on my face I've a heartache,
Longing, dear mother, for you.
Sadly missed by her daughters,
MRS. MAY ALLISON, MISS MARGARET HOWARD.

JACOBSMEYER—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Elizabeth Jacobsmeyer, who departed this life April 17, 1929:
And while she lies in peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

KOERNER — In loving remembrance of my dear mother, Mary A. Koerner, who departed this life April 19, 1929:
Surrounded by friends, I am lonesome;
In the midst of my joy I am blue;
With smiles on my face, I have heartaches,
Longing, dear one, for you.
My lips cannot tell how I miss you,
My heart cannot tell what I say;
God alone knows how I miss you,
Dear mother, in a heart that is lonesome today.
Sadly missed by her daughter,
OLGA KOERNER. (c)

MEIER—In memory of beloved mother, Helena Meier, departed this life April 20, 1918. Sadly missed by MRS. MOSER AND FAMILY.

MICHEL—In sad memory of our dear mother, Anna Michel (nee Boos), who departed this life eight years ago, April 24, 1922. Sadly missed by HER DAUGHTERS. (c)

NOBLE—In loving memory of my dear wife, Paulin Noble, who departed this life April 18, 1929:
You suffered hours, yes, hours, to wait for cure, but all in vain,
Till God alone knew what was best;
He called you home to give you rest.
We do not forget you, nor do we intend;
We think of you often and will to the end.
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you ever will be.
Sadly missed by husband and all who loved her.

PLAIKE—In memory of my beloved daughter, Louisa Plaike, who died April 24, 1927. Sadly missed by mother, MARY RUPP AND HER CHILDREN AND BROTHERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

ROBSON, MRS. KATE—Departed April 26, 1929:
Precious one from us has gone;
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
Fondly missed by Children and all those who loved her.
Requiem mass St. Edwards Church, 8 o'clock, April 26. (c)

ROHS—In loving memory of our dear daughter, mother and sister, Mary E. Rohs (nee Rogers), who departed this life one year ago, April 19, 1929:
A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Some may think you are forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more;
But in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
Sadly missed by PARENTS, SON, SISTER AND BROTHERS. (c)

SHULTZ, JOHN V.—In memory of our dear husband and father, who departed this life two years ago, April 14, 1928. Sadly missed by WIFE AND SON. (c)

SPRINGMEYER—Died April 16, 1927. In loving memory of our dear father, Frank H. Springmeyer:
"You are not forgotten, father dear; never shall you be as long as life and memory lasts; we shall remember thee."
Sadly missed by his son, Herman; daughter-in-law, Katherine, and two grandchildren, Milton and Emily. (c)

STOCKGLAUSNER—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Amelia Stockglausner, who departed this life April 20, 1928. Sadly missed by DAUGHTER (MRS. P. J. PFEIFFER) AND GRANDCHILDREN.

TEAINBANK—In loving memory of our dear father, Edward S. Teainbank, who departed three years ago, April 19, 1927:
You suffered days, yes days of pain;
Though God alone knew what was best.
And took you away to peace and rest.
Hours of sadness often come over us;
From us secret tears often flow,
Though you left us a sad three years,
You are not forgotten, father, dear,
Never shall you be as long as memory lasts we shall remember thee.
Missed by his two daughters,
MRS. E. ROEBEN, MRS. J. ANDERSON.

VOLLING—In loving memory of Edward F. Volling, who departed this life April 17, 1928.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.

WAELTERMANN—In memory of Rev. John Waeltermann, late pastor of St. Francis de Sales Church, departed April 19, 1929. Remembered by his brother, sisters-in-law, nieces and nephews. May he rest in peace.

WILLIAMS—Mary; in memory of our dear mother who died April 20, 1928. Sadly missed by DAUGHTERS AND SON. (c)

WILLMANN, RUTH BESS—Died April 17, 1926.
More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.
MOTHER, BROTHER, GRANDMA AND THOSE THAT LOVED HER.

Letters without full details of yourself ignored Silver's Mfg. Co., 847 W. Harrison st., Chicago, Ill.

SALESMAN

I want several salesmen who have enough common sense to know that it is necessary to work eight hours per day to make some real money. They should also be intelligent enough to know that in order to sell anything clean it is necessary to know something about it. They must take a training course. Bear in mind, it takes four years to make a painter, and a plumber is an apprentice for five years.

I have a real meritorious line that is sold direct to the home owner everywhere and it's not magazines, real estate, clothes, conversation, insurance, nor mechanical. But I have enough confidence in it to send you out with an experienced man for a week or more who takes you out and shows you how it's done and give you a generous portion of the commission while you're learning the ifs and hows of our line. You probably earn $75 or more during your training period, but after that you write your own ticket. One of our new men earned $45 his first day out, another made $640 during March. We have a number of men in our organization who earn $10,000 or more year after year. We are interested only in men who are looking for their last job. We have no time for curiosity seekers or advanced artists. We want family men who have a substantial background and a fair-looking car.

Read this over again. If you think you can convince us that it's worth while to invest $150 in your services (that being the cost of training you), call Monday, 9 to 2, at 4545 De Tonty, and see Mr. Trepel.

New Things for Old at the Season That Has Both a Religious and a Secular History.

The old pagans, after a hard winter, welcomed the rebirth of the earth with a joy that was quite unrestrained.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

NEW spring finery on the streets, new eggs for breakfast, new toys for the youngsters, new life in the earth, new faith in the Christian soul—today is Easter, at once the greatest religious festival of the year and the formal occasion for mundane joy over the coming of spring.

Jubilant hymns and hopeful prayer in churches adorned with tall lilies of liturgical white commemorate the victory of Christ over death. The gay show of hats and frocks, fresh and bright whether they come from Paris or the bargain basement; the hilarious hunting and rolling of colored eggs, and the play with Easter bunnies express the triumph of spring over winter.

The two ideas are closely interwoven in the modern observance of Easter. The millions of persons who crowd into churches and sing, "Hallelujah! Christ is risen!" also heed the pagan injunction of old Omar and "in the fires of spring the winter garment of repentance fling." Their walk home from church is a fashion parade. From Christian worshipers one may learn what the well-dressed man and woman will wear this season.

THE worldly significance of Easter is due to the fact that the early Christians consolidated their religious festival with ancient pagan celebrations of spring. The name itself is said to be derived from Eostre, the Anglo-Saxon goddess of spring. Those old pagans, after a hard winter, welcomed the re-birth of the earth with a joy that was quite unrestrained. The celebration they held each year in honor of the goddess was an occasion of boisterous rejoicing. They played riotous games, danced, engaged in sports and farcical entertainments. And they bedecked themselves with flowers and new clothes.

The first Christian missionaries to England tried to abolish this heathen celebration, but found it had too strong a hold on the people. So they took it over in part, welding its spirit of joyousness at the appearance of new life in nature to their own devout jubilation at the resurrection of Christ.

Many Easter customs and symbols, therefore, are of pagan origin. The Easter fires, for instance. It was part of an ancient celebration in honor of spring to build great fires on mountain tops, lighting them with flame struck from flint. A figure representing winter often was thrown into the fire. When the Christians could not stop this practice they gave it a Christian significance, the new flame from the flint standing for the reappearance of the Light of the World out of a tomb of stone. One of the most spectacular features of the Easter celebration in Rome is the lighting of St. Peter's with the "silver" and the "gold illumination."

The exchange of eggs in spring has been traced back far beyond the Christian era. The egg was a symbol of the germination of life; sun worshipers considered it the seed of the sun. The ancient Romans and Persians held a Feast of Eggs at their solar new year, about March 20. Eggs were dyed and games were played with them. It was an occasion of great licentiousness.

"The Holy Women at the Tomb," by Bouguereau.

When eggs first became identified with the Christian festival they were dyed red to commemorate the blood of Christ, shed on Calvary. But this practice did not remain universal, for it is recorded that Edward I, in 1305, ordered "450 dozen eggs to be stained in boiling and some to be covered with gold leaf" for distribution in the royal household.

It was once the custom to take bowls of eggs to church on Easter to be blessed by the priest and sprinkled with holy water. And in Russia, a member of the church was expected to carry an egg in his hand for three days after Easter.

The custom of egg-rolling, common now in the United States, probably came from Germany. For many years it has been an annual spectacle on Easter Monday in Washington. The children used to roll the eggs on the terraces below the Capitol, but the grass and shrubbery suffered so much that Congress stopped the practice. Then the scene of operations was transferred to the sloping lawn back of the White House. The festivity is a democratic affair, in that there is no social precedence at this party, but it is exclusive in that no adult can get in to see the fun unless he is accompanied by a child. Some of the urchins capitalize this rule by hiring themselves as escorts to childless grownups.

The rabbit, as well as the egg, has long been a symbol of fertility. According to a German legend, a group of children once found some colored eggs which had been hidden for them, and seeing several rabbits scamper away, thought the bunnies were responsible for the eggs.

The lamb is one of the earliest symbols of the resurrection. Among the Eastern Christians it is customary to eat a spring lamb on Easter Sunday. In England and France it is considered a good omen to see a lamb when one first looks out the window on Easter morning. And in some parts of Europe shepherds dance at Easter time among their sheep.

Many other quaint customs in connection with the festival have been followed in various lands. In rural districts in England and Scotland the men lift the women Easter Monday and the women lift the men on Tuesday, in commemoration of the rising of Christ. Two persons make a saddle by clasping each other's wrists, and the lifted one is raised three times. And on the same two days the men and women take turns whipping each other with willow switches, pagan symbols of spring. In Mechlenburg the peasants wash in "Easter water," which is rain water or dew, and in Sachsenburg the men ride horses into the water on Easter morning. In the valley of the Voralburg, bands of musicians roam through the country and at each house where they stop receive baskets of food and colored eggs. In the Azores many Christians eat almonds all day on Holy Thursday as evidence of their bitter sorrow. Devonshire children get up early Easter morning to see the sun spin around three times as it rises, a feat credited to it on this day by ancient superstition. And in East Yorkshire it is considered not merely unfortunate but actually unlucky to wear old clothes on Easter.

In its liturgical sense Easter is an outgrowth of the Jewish Passover, with the new conception of Christ as the true Paschal lamb, whose blood saved the believers in Him. But since it commemorates an event of uncertain date, controversies over the proper time for the celebration have been carried on for centuries.

The early Hebrew Christians maintained that Easter should be observed at the Paschal Full Moon, that is, on the fourteenth day of a lunar month reckoned according to an ancient ecclesiastical computation and not the real or astronomical full moon. The Gentiles identified the resurrection with the first day of the week, Sunday, without regard to the day of the month. The Council of Nicaea decided that Easter should be on Sunday and that the correct date should be calculated at Alexandria. Many churches, however, continued to follow the Hebrew view. Then different cycles of years for the fixing of the date were adopted successively, and parts of the Christian world refused to conform to some of the changes. When the Gregorian calendar was adopted in 1582 the Eastern churches did not accept it. In 1923, however, the Greek Orthodox Church adopted the Gregorian calendar and Easter is now celebrated on the same day throughout most of Christendom.

EASTER is the first Sunday following the Paschal Full Moon which happens upon or next after March 21. Under this rule, the date can vary from March 22 to April 25.

For some years a movement has been under way to have Easter celebrated on the same Sunday every year. The matter was referred to the League of Nations, which called a conference of the Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and Anglican churches. The conference agreed that virtually all Christian nations favored a fixed Easter. In 1928 an English law was passed, to be effective if internationally accepted, setting Easter as the first Sunday after the second Saturday in April. Whether this day will be adopted universally remains to be seen.

The WAR'S MOST SEDUCTIVE SPY

Major Thomas Coulson's Realistic Picture of MATA HARI, the Woman Whose Intrigues Are Held Responsible for the Death of 50,000 Men.

Mata Hari.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

FIFTY THOUSAND men went to their death because of her intrigues. That is the figure supplied by competent French authorities. She numbered among her dupes a French Minister of War and the Minister of Foreign Affairs, a Dutch Premier and innumerable French officers, soldiers and aviators. She had countless lovers, and almost without exception they paid a tribute of information, often vital information on which depended the lives of hundreds, sometimes thousands, of men. Her sybaritic orgies, performed under the guise of worship of Siva, god of evil, were the talk of all Euorpe for 15 years. The woman was Mata Hari, most notorious and most seductive of wartime spies.

Major Thomas Coulson, British intelligence officer, has stripped aside the romantic legends built up around the career and exploits of the dancer. He tells the stark truth, which happens to be more romantic, more astonishing than any of the shabby fictions that have gained currency. The book is "Mata Hari: Courtesan and Spy." It was published recently by Harpers.

The picture Major Coulson paints is not a flattering one. The only virtue he allows Mata Hari is courage, a calm, cold fearlessness that did not fail her even at the bitter end before a firing squad. Otherwise he leaves her not a shred of decency. In fact, one of his avowed intentions is to shatter the Mata Hari cult that has come into being in Paris and elsewhere on the Continent among those who accepted Mata Hari for what she claimed to be.

"IN ORDER to realize," writes Major Coulson, "how she accomplished her astonishing feats one has to have a picture of her in one of her favorite seances, not a vaudeville appearance this time (for her public appearances were only gestures to the mob of unbelievers), but the type of occasion from which she extracted most enjoyment and most wealth, and which was the foundation of her amazing power over men of position and influence. It is such a scene as might be witnessed in the intimacy of the elegant palaces of, say, the Prince Drago, the Princess Murat, or the Duchess of Eckmuhl. In the voluptuous abandon of semi-privacy, before a group of selected guests, reclining in luxurious ease after copious sacramental libations and surrounded by her worshipers, Mata Hari invokes the image of her youth.

"'I was born,' she says, in a soft, languorous tone, which the listeners immediately associated with the mysterious East, 'in the South of India, on the coast of Malabar, in the holy city of Jaffnapatam, the child of a family within the sacred caste of Brahma. By reason of his piety and pureness of heart my father was called Assirvadam, which means "The Blessing of God." My mother was a glorious bayadere (a ministrant enjoying the respect of the worshipers) in the temple of Kanda Swany. She died when she was 14, on the same day I was born. The priests of the temple, having cremated my mother, adopted me under the baptismal name of Mata Hari, which means Eye of the Dawn. From the time I took my first uncertain steps I was shut up in the great subterranean hall of the pagoda of Siva, where I was trained to follow in my mother's footsteps through the holy rites of the dance. . . . When I reached the threshold of womanhood my foster-mother saw in me a predestined soul and resolved to reveal to me the mystery of love and faith on the night of Sakty-pudja, in the coming spring.' . . .

"THE soft, caressing voice trails off into silence, and at the recollection of this blissful moment a tremor of religious ecstasy passes over the exquisitely-molded, amber-tinted body, daringly revealed for these nocturnal invocations of her sacred youth."

After an appropriate pause, Mata Hari describes the religious orgy by which she was dedicated to the service of Siva. By pose and gesture, more provocative than plain speech, she recounts these rites until her audience is hynotized, completely under her spell. The conclusion of the story is wildly romantic. Rescue from the temple by an English officer who became infatuated with her. And subsequently marriage.

As a matter of fact, she was born in the little Dutch town of Leeuwarden, the daughter of a respectable family of burghers. Her nearest approach to Oriental ancestry was a strain of Jewish blood through the descent of her father, Adam Zelle. Her girlhood was eminently quiet and circumspect. She was sent to a Catholic convent to be educated with the other burghers' daughters. At 18, for the first time in her life, she went to spend a vacation at The Hague, the Dutch capital. Here she met and shortly afterward married Captain Campbell MacLeod. Of good Scottish descent, he held a commission in the Dutch Colonial Army. Captain MacLeod was a rake, probably, Major Coulson intimates, a victim of erotic dementia.

The marriage, except for the honeymoon period, which appears to have been blissful, was a miserable failure. Captain MacLeod forced his wife, not long after the birth of their son, to participate in a blackmail scheme. Later they turn up in Java, where her husband is commanding a battalion of the Colonial Army Reserve. It was in Java that Margaret Gertrude MacLeod got her first whipping from her husband.

SHORTLY after they had returned to Amsterdam divorce proceedings were instituted and Mrs. MacLeod left for Paris, where she was quickly to slough off all traces of her Dutch background and assume the identity of Mata Hari, mysterious priestess of Siva.

She began as an artist's model. But it was not long before she realized that there was a more subtle way of exploiting her face, with its strangely Oriental cast, and her body, with its rich amber tints. Under the tutelage of an Oriental scholar she gave a performance of Javanese dances at the Guimet Museum, devoted to Oriental curiosities. An invited audience received her with awed acclaim. The following morning the Paris newspapers were filled with the novelty of this extraordinary performance in a museum of serious studies. She decided to reap the full benefit of her sudden fame. With the aid of books she began to build up the Mata Hari legend.

Almost immediately she became the rage of Paris. She received large sums for her vaudeville appearances, but her greatest source of wealth was the private purses of wealthy dilettantes who took her up. And her lovers, who followed each other in an endless procession from this period of her life, 1905-06, to its close. She had a sumptuous apartment near the Champs-Elysees, her private carriage, a collar of pearls and adulation sufficient to satisfy even her enormous vanity.

Unfortunately, however, Paris tired after a time of this fad. She felt her position slipping in 1907 and, casting about for a new locale, recalled the reception she had been given during a brief previous appearance in Berlin.

Berlin it was, then. She speedily repeated her Paris success, captivating the male aristocracy of Germany. She accompanied the Crown Prince to the army maneuvers at Silesia, and she appeared frequently in the Berlin night life as a companion of the young Duke of Brunswick.

And here begins Mata Hari's initiation as a spy. "The simple truth is," Major Coulson writes, "that she was a spy before she knew it, and, once begun, it was impossible to withdraw. In accepting employment with Abteilung III, the German intelligence service, a spy had the most exacting taskmaster, for once the agent became restive or his reports ceased to be useful from inaccuracy or inadequacy, the disciplinary action was severe and inevitable.

"The usual method was to send the delinquent some messsage in an indiscreet manner, so that it would fall into the enemy's hands and so expose his activities to the authorities of the nation against whom he refused to work.

"There are many known examples of this hateful practice; one. that of the beautiful Marussia Destrelles, a friend of Mata Hari's."

One of Mata Hari's lovers in Berlin was Herr von Jagow, chief of the secret police. He established her in a handsome apartment and lavished money on her. But it was not solely the generosity of an admirer that moved him. This apartment was a gilded web to which were attracted all those from whom Herr von Jagow hoped to extract information, under the ministrations of wine and the caresses of Mata Hari.

Later she was sent to the spy school at Lorrach, in Bavaria, the same school at which Anna Lesser, the famous "Mademoiselle Docteur," received training. From time to time she toured Europe as a vaudeville performer and, incidentally, as a spy. But all this was merely a novitiate for the work she was to perform during the war. On the day that war was declared between France and Germany Mata Hari lunched at the famous Adlon with her friend, the chief of the secret police. Later they drove through the streets in what amounted to a kind of triumphal procession. The secret agents of both France and England noted this, and in due course passed the information on to their respective headquarters. All of Europe was then, and, according to Major Coulson, still is, ramified with the most intricate spy system.

Mata Hari was not Oriental, but was born of a respectable Dutch family.

But even though the Second Bureau, the French intelligence service, was fairly positive that Mata Hari was a spy in the pay of Germany, the intelligence chief was powerless when, several months later, she sought to enter France as a Dutch citizen, a neutral. For she enjoyed the protection of Minister of the Interior Malvey and Minister of War Messimy, two of the most powerful officials in France. And she had a plausible excuse to justify her application for admittance—the sale of her villa and its effects at Neuilly. Moreover, her application was supported by the head of the Dutch Cabinet, another of her admirers.

For months she carried on her activities, defying detection. She gleaned her information from various sources, from drunken officers and in the ministerial circle in which she moved. This information was passed on to the district head of the German secret service in Holland. The system she employed was flawless. And the officials of the Second Bureau could not bring a charge of spying against her without tangible and preferably documentary evidence.

THEY could not even restrict her movements because of her powerful friends. They were helpless when she announced to her circle of intimates she was going to the war-torn village of Vittel to nurse an old friend of former days, a Russian, Captain Marov, who had been blinded during the early months of the war.

It so happened that Vittel was the very center at that time, in July, 1915, of preparation for a secret offensive that was to be launched toward the close of September. Vittel was the last place in the world the Second Bureau wanted Mata Hari to go. Later to her judges Mata Hari was to give the following account of her stay at Vittel:

"While staying at Vittel I devoted myself to a poor Russian officer who had lost his sight. It was my intention to abandon my life of debauchery and to consecrate myself to the care of this unhappy man, whom I loved sincerely. He was the only man whom I ever sincerely loved."

As a matter of fact, during most of the time she was at Vittel she was entertaining aviators from a neighboring sector and officers on brief leave, anxious to forget in carousal the terrors and hardships of warfare. Meanwhile, the bustle of preparation for a great offensive continued through August and September.

On September 25 the great drive that was to take the Germans completely by surprise began. But instead of encountering the 90 battalions they had expected the attacking forces were met by 192 battalions prepared for the onslaught. It was later learned that as early as August 15 the place and time of the attack was known to the lower German commands. The French closed this operation with 80,000 killed and 100,000 wounded.

Shortly afterward Mata Hari abandoned her Captain Marov, returned to Paris and took up her former life. By this time the Second Bureau had succeeded in placing an agent in the Dutch embassy. It was known that the Ambassador extended to Mata Hari the courtesy of diplomatic immunity for her mail. She sent letters to Holland in the diplomatic mail bag. But the agent of the Second Bureau got access to the Ambassador's mail pouch after extraordinary difficulties. He read all letters to and from Mata Hari.

THEN the amazing truth came out. One letter she wrote contained exact information as to how the allies were landing spies and observers in occupied Belgian territory. A letter to her from the chief of the German secret service in Holland congratulated her not only on the Vittel success but for information which she had sent that had enabled the German command to repulse successfully the Chemin des Dames offensive.

Still the Second Bureau could not act. For any prosecution would have meant a confession that the Dutch Ambassador's mail bag had been tampered with. This is a point of extreme sensitivity with all diplomats, and France at that time could afford to do nothing that would antagonize Holland.

After a year or more in which her activity was considerably less valuable to her employers, Mata Hari bungled. It was not her fault. She had to follow out a prearranged plan in an effort to secure information about the activities of French and Belgian spies in occupied Belgian territory. The whole plan was miserably devised. According to this plan, Mata Hari went to the head of the Second Bureau and volunteered to spy for the French. The director of the bureau pretended to accept her services and gave her a document of supposedly great value. She

As a matter of fact, during most of the time she was at Vittel she was entertaining aviators from a neighboring sector and officers on brief leave, anxious to forget in carousal the terrors and hardships of warfare. Meanwhile, the bustle of preparation for a great offensive continued through August and September.

On September 25 the great drive that was to take the Germans completely by surse began. But instead of encounting the 90 battalions they had excted the attacking forces were met 192 battalions prepared for the onught. It was later learned that as ly as August 15 the place and time the attack was known to the lower erman commands. The French closed is operation with 80,000 killed and 0,000 wounded.

Shortly afterward Mata Hari abanned her Captain Marov, returned Paris and took up her former life. this time the Second Bureau had cceeded in placing an agent in the utch embassy. It was known that e Ambassador extended to Mata ari the courtesy of diplomatic imunity for her mail. She sent lets to Holland in the diplomatic mail g. But the agent of the Second ureau got access to the Ambassaor's mail pouch after extraordinary ifficulties. He read all letters to and om Mata Hari.

THEN the amazing truth came out. One letter she wrote contained exact information as to ow the allies were landing spies and bservers in occupied Belgian territory. A letter to her from the chief of he German secret service in Holland ongratulated her not only on the Vittel success but for information which he had sent that had enabled the Geran command to repulse successfully he Chemin des Dames offensive.

Still the Second Bureau could not ct. For any prosecution would have meant a confession that the Dutch Ambassador's mail bag had been tampered with. This is a point of extrem sensitivity with all diplomats, and France at that time could afford to do nothing that would antagonize Holand.

After a year or more in which her activity was considerably less valuable to her employers, Mata Hari bungled. It was not her fault. She had to follow out a prearranged plan in an effort to secure information about the activities of French and Belgian spies in occupied Belgian territory. The whole plan was miserably devised. According to this plan, Mata Hari went to the head of the Second Bureau and volunteered to spy for the French. The director of the bureau pretended to accept her services and gave her a document of supposedly great value. She

PLANNING to SKIP ACROSS the OCEAN

Part Boat, Part Plane, the 19-Year-Old Inventor of This Strange Craft Expects It to Cross the Sea in Half the Time of the Fastest Liners.

"The Silver Eagle will rise on the water like a flat stone skipped from crest to crest."

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

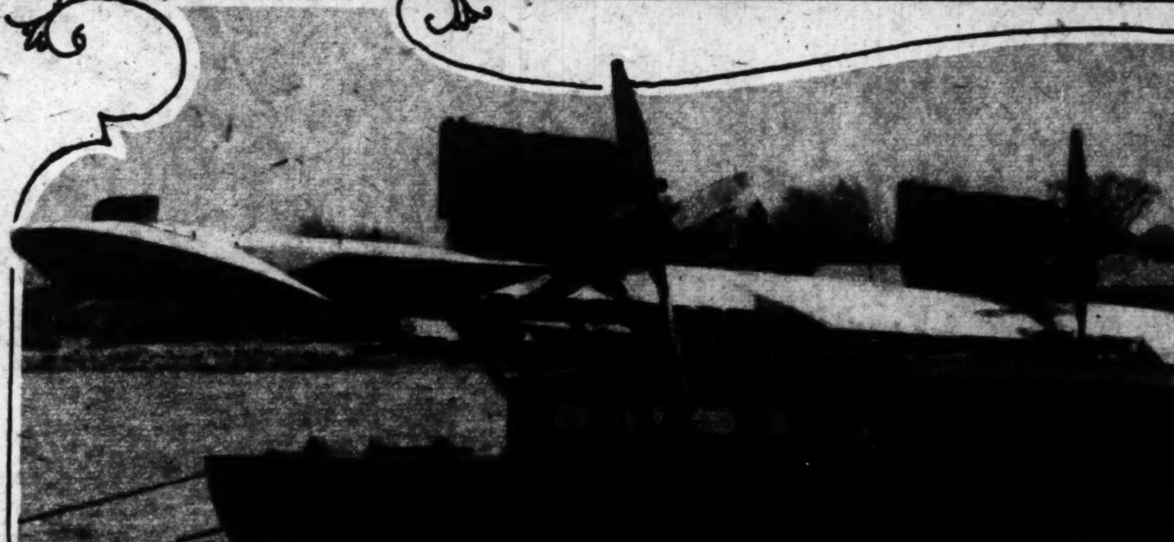
BOSTON.

A STRANGE new speed boat, which the designer and owner, Paul Dudley, a Fitchburg (Massachusetts) lad of 19, believes can cross the Atlantic and cut the crossing records of the fastest ocean liners in half, has just been completed and launched at Quincy Point, Mass., from the shipyard of Lindsley O. Butts. It cost $25,000 and is a combination of boat and airplane, the hull or boat portion being of the sea-sled type and the airplane part consisting of a huge wing across the forward end, an air rudder and double elevators. The craft is powered with two 450-horsepower Liberty 12-cylinder motors, and is expected to develop a speed of between 90 and 100 land miles per hour. Young Dudley, who has been backed in the building of his craft by his father, a Fitchburg granite manufacturer, plans to make a long Southern trip in his boat to shake it down before trying for the trans-Atlantic record.

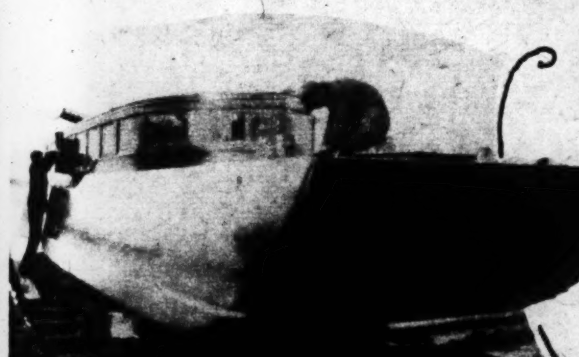
Although Dudley designed the boat himself, he was aided in its construction by a well-known yacht architect and old-time boat builder, E. E. Griswold, who worked out details of the hull. Strictly speaking, the craft might be called a hydro-glider, but Dudley calls it an aero-speed boat and has named it the Silver Eagle. Along the sides are painted the words, "Dudley Aero-Speed Boat." It has been carefully worked out theoretically, and there is a reason for everything about it, based on aerodynamics and ship mechanics.

The hull is 40 feet 6 inches long, 9 feet beam and has a depth of 3 feet 6 inches. When still, its draft is only six inches, and when going at speed but one-and-one-half inches, and that is at the extreme stern, the greater part of the hull being then out of the water. The big idea back of its design is that it will skip from wave to wave, the huge wing giving a tremendous lift when the two motors are full on. It is possible to bring the craft to an elevation 50 feet above the water if desired, so that it will fly along like a seaplane, with the advantage that should it come down hard it would not dive beneath the water, but skip along the surface, though the design of the hull would enable the craft otherwise to float high in the water and ride out a considerable storm.



The "aero-speed boat" Silver Eagle.

THE hull is of mahogany, with a double skin over an oak frame and with an extra vertical sheathing inside the cabin. This cabin can accommodate 30 people. There are seven windows on each side of the cabin, with an entrance at either side through the roof. For ordinary cruising the cabin is fitted with airplane wicker chairs, and for long trips, when there are fewer passengers, with Pullman-berth chairs. Total weight of the craft, with full gas tanks, without passengers, is about four and a half tons. The pilot house is a small, glassed-in space at the forward end of the cabin, and just back of it is a washroom and locker room. The galley, electrically equipped and supplied with current from a generator run from the Liberty motors, which also furnishes current for the lighting system, is at the stern. Ventilators are of the drop type. Around the outside of the flush deck are grab rails for handholds in boarding, or for the crew moving about. Additional hold is afforded by the big, hollow-steel struts that support the wing, running down the sides of the hull nearly to the water line. A canvas strip at the stern buttons down from the top of the cabin to the deck edge to streamline the craft and to obviate suction under the cabin coaming.



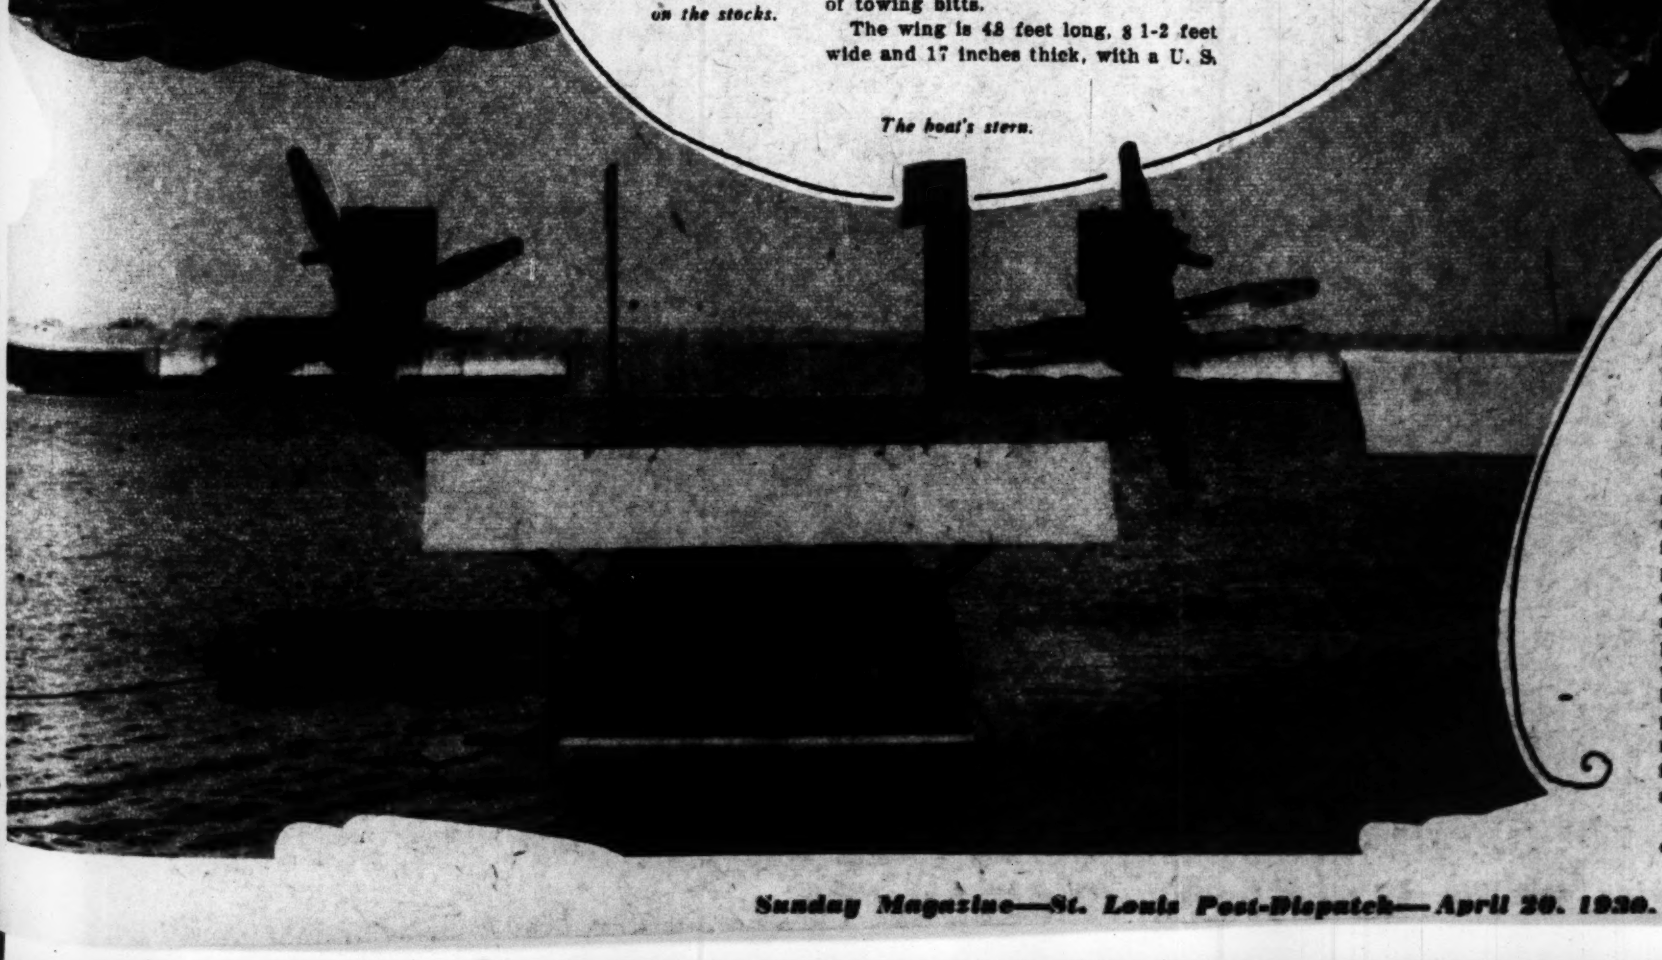
The hull of the Silver Eagle, as it appeared on the stocks.

The bow rounds up like a toboggan and the stern tapers at a sharp angle from the flush deck to the water line, with the bow curve on a 10-foot radius and the stern at 45 degrees angle. The bottom is flat, like a scow, excepting for a water step that begins about 12 feet from the stern, coming up about six inches and tapering to the same plane or level as the forward end, at the extreme stern. This water step makes an air pocket that smooths out the bow wave underneath and decreases the resistance. The air for this water step comes down through the four copper "breathing tubes" spaced across the width of the boat. Thus there is no water under the hull except at the far stern, where the draft is barely one and a half inches when the boat is under full power.

THERE are five separate galvanized gas tanks, two forward to each motor and one holding 500 gallons back of the step, in the hull. Total gas capacity is 1000 gallons, which the owner thinks sufficient to carry him across the Atlantic, and is enough for 1800 miles at cruising speed of 40 miles an hour. There is also a 100-gallon water tank. Built into the bows at the corners are strong, hard-pine bumpers and a pair of towing bitts.

The wing is 48 feet long, 8 1-2 feet wide and 17 inches thick, with a U. S. A. 35-A chord and unusually strong ribs. It is of the so-called ranger type and was built to specifications by the Braun & Downing Aircraft Company, Garfield, New Jersey. With ribs one-third stronger that the average airplane wing of the type, the terrific strain of the water drag in the high speed is allowed for, and the wing has a larger factor of safety, in view of the tremendous power of two such large motors, which weigh 1000 pounds each. The wing has a theoretical lift of 16 1-8 tons, with an actual lift in this particular case of eight and one-eighth tons.

Paul Dudley.



The boat's stern.

At the ends of the wings are ailerons and at the back a 16-foot elevator, to prevent the boat turning turtle from the twisting motion given it by the engine when going at high speed, or going about or banking. Small pontoons were added as a last-minute safety measure, at the ends of the wing. There is a clearance of one and a half feet above the top of the cabin to the bottom of the wing, which is set well forward, though abaft the pilot house and forward of the center of gravity. Struts for support of the motors, which are mounted on heavy plank platforms on top of the wing, extend down the sides of the boat nearly to the water line. The propellors, of the four-bladed type and mounted pusher style, are eight feet in diameter and have a pitch of five and a half inches.

With these two engines the craft is expected to develop a maximum speed of between 80 and 100 miles an hour—really figured out to 92 miles, although theoretically she should make 115 to 120 land miles, with wind astern, the wind overcoming the effect of slip due to the lifting of the boat from the water and the slap of the waves. Probably average speed in fair weather, however, will be 75 miles.

Should one motor fail, the other can carry the boat along at a maximum of 40 miles an hour. A double-extra-sized rudder is mounted at the extreme end of the long cabin, within the wind stream, and is so constructed that it will guide the boat in the event of one of the motors being shut off, compensating for the pull of the other motor.

The wing would make the craft fly, raising it about 50 feet above the water, but the huge elevator at the stern

First Evidence of the Great "Shovel-Tusker" Elephant Is Unearthed

Mastodon, With Largest Jawbone of Any Known Land Mammal, Roamed Nebraska 50,000 Years Ago.

The jawbone of the "shovel-tusker."

LINCOLN, Nebraska.

A FARMER of Southwest Nebraska, digging in an open field a short time ago, came across some strange-looking fossils. They proved to be the lower jaws and tusks of a great "shovel-tusker" elephant, a most important find, for as far as is known the specimens are the only ones of their type that have come to light. This massive jawbone is the largest yet discovered of any land mammal. The shovel-tusker elephant, it is the opinion of Dr. E. H. Barbour, curator of the Nebraska State Museum, is an entirely new link in the progressive development of the elephant family.

Amebelodon fricki, which is the scientific name for the shovel-tusker, roamed the Nebraska country 50,000 years ago. Before the shovel-tusker there was the four-tusker elephant, a long-jawed, low-browed beast, graced with four tusks, as his name implies. The four-tusker was followed by the two-tusker, a short-jawed, high-browed, two-tusked mammal. Then came the shovel-tusker.

The shovel-tusker, with its long, trough-like ivory tusks, was an unknown quantity until the recent discovery. Fossils of the four-tusker and two-tusker are not uncommon.

Something of the size of the shovel-tusker is suggested when the yardstick is put to the fossilized remains. The jaw is six and one-half feet long, indicating that it was approximately eight feet from the tip of the tusks to the base of the skull. The tusks are close-set.

The specimens are perfect in almost every detail. The tusks have the whiteness, density and texture lines of ivory. The bones are whitish. The great teeth of the elephant are unblemished. Each of the grinders is nine inches long, three-and-one-half inches wide, and has five grinding ridges. One toe and a rib were the only other remains in the ancient grave of the shovel-tusker.

The formation of the tusks of this type of elephant suggests the adaptation of the animal to the environment of the North American lands of 50,000 years ago. Unlike the rolling prairie of the buffalo era, the central portion of what is now Nebraska was apparently a marshy, heavily-forested area.

One reason for believing that forests and underbrush covered Nebraska thousands of years ago is that the elephants were not suited to foraging in the short-grass country. Petrified wood, nuts and seeds, which have been discovered, are taken as added proof of the conditions. The shovel-tusker was a resident of the area during the Pliocene or Pleistocene period. Over-population is thought to have been the cause for the extermination of so many of the beasts.

The shovel-tusker mastodon frequented the muddy bottoms of river lands, bayous, marshes and swamps. That was why he found the shovel-tusk useful. The elephant undoubtedly used the great implement to uproot aquatic vegetation. Many of the fresh-water algae would flow down the trough into the elephant's mouth as he swept his long jaw through the water, tearing loose juicy clumps of water grasses.

During last November skeletons of 20 different land mammals were located in Nebraska. It is planned to dig them out this summer.

Mexican Women Who TURNED to DUELING to Settle Affairs of the Heart

"Seconds" and Weapons Were Employed, and Wounds Paid for a Lover's Loss.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MEXICO CITY.

ONE of the results of the revolution in Mexico is that some women, as well as the men, learned what a pistol or a rifle could do. So certain modern women in Mexico, when their honor is touched or they suffer disillusionment, show a tendency to shoot to kill. The way of the betrayer becomes riskier and riskier in Mexico. Nor is it at all times safe for one woman to profit by another's loss. Witness two duels fought between women recently.

Maria Luisa Lopez and Enriqueta Hernandez Juarez were two pretty girls who earned their living in a Mexico City cabaret. Both fell in love with a young man named Sergio Augusto. The cabaret in the Calle de Pino Suarez was one of his haunts. He was what they call in Mexico a "fifi"—a young man about town. He wore form-fitting suits, bright neckties and greased his hair. He talked freely of his conquests.

Sergio flirted with Maria Luisa and Enriqueta indiscriminately. It flattered him enormously to make them jealous of each other. This gave him something to talk about. He was much envied by the other dissolute "fifis" who hung out at this cabaret. Sergio had a doting mother who gave him money. She thought he was "making business," as they say in Mexico. When the allowance was insufficient for his affairs he pawned his mother's jewels

THERE came a night when Sergio found himself up against a choice between Maria Luisa and Enriqueta. He was for taking Maria Luisa. This choice infuriated Enriqueta. First she threatened to kill herself. This threat left Sergio callous. Then she threatened to kill him. He took the second threat seriously and fled. Whereupon Enriqueta challenged Maria Luisa to a duel.

"They had heard of the code of honor," read El Universal's account, "and so they thought it proper to name 'madrinas' (sponsors). The four of them called a jitney and rode to the Calzada del Chabacano—one of the old causeways leading out of the capital. There, in the early hours of the morning, the 'madrinas' measured off the convenient distances.

"The two girls faced each other, pistols in their hands. The 'madrinas' began to count—'Uno, dos, tres!' "

Both pistols cracked on the still air. Maria Luisa fell with a bullet in her shoulder. Enriqueta ran to her side, sobbing. "Jesus de mi vida, perdonadme!" she cried. She became hysterical. Then the gendarmes came.

Two sisters of the Mexican lower middle class, Angela and Domingo Ayala, "sustained," as the Mexico City newspapers have it, "relaciones amorosas"—love affairs—was a "charro" named Dimas Garcia. A "charro" is a countryman; literally, a horseman. Dimas was a gallant from Guanajuato. He took up first with Angela, then, for variety, turned to Dominga. Both resented the promiscuity of his attentions.

THESE two fought it out with knives. Both fell, badly wounded. They were taken to the Hospital Juarez, where, regardless of their jealousy for each other, they were placed in adjacent beds. Seeing each other helpless, they wept and begged each other's forgiveness. They swore that when they got well they would kill Dimas Garcia.

Dimas will, of course, take to cover. When the modern woman of Mexico goes after her betrayer, he must either fight or run.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THERE was a time when Dr. Otto Heller, dean of the Graduate School of Washington University, believed he was capable of becoming a great actor. He was 17. He had left his family to join a troupe of traveling players who were appearing at the town hall in a provincial city in Saxony.

Young Otto Heller was given the role of Kosinsky in Schiller's "The Robbers." Kosinsky, a Polish nobleman, disillusioned by the turn which his worldly affairs have taken, seeks to join a band of idealistic robbers who, like Robin Hood and his men, steal from the rich to give to the poor. During the course of the play Kosinsky delivers a long declamation to the leader of the robber band, expressing his belief in the ideals of the robbers—it is Schiller, the libertarian, speaking—avows his intention of joining the band and claps the sword he has been brandishing into its scabbard.

On the night of his first (and last) appearance Dr. Heller got through the declamation well enough. But he had difficulty with the sword. It was a very long sword and it simply wouldn't go into the scabbard. The young actor was covered with embarrassment until a professional member of the troupe covered up the mishap with a bit of improvised business. "He took hold of the obstreperous sword and proceeded to knight me on the spot! I suppose, therefore, that I am entitled to a 'von,' " Dr. Heller relates.

Even so the novice actor thought he had done pretty well or at least had taken a first step in his career. But the next day he started to read the review of the play in the local paper. He never finished it. For it began, "Our advice to Otto Heller is to seek an outlet for his talent in some other field than the stage. In the first place his unbeautiful stage appearance. . . ."

That was as far as he ever got. With those few words a youthful illusion was dispelled. It was not long afterward that Dr. Heller fixed upon an academic career. It has been a career of the widest range, one that has won for him a name not only as a teacher, but as a critic and man of letters. In fact, H. L. Mencken in his first book of "Prejudices" placed him among the four or five leading critics in America.

HIS family had wanted him to go into either law or medicine. The academic course was a compromise. In the German tradition, he went from university to university, seeking out the leading men in the various fields in which he was interested. During a period of three years he attended the universities of Prague, Vienna, Berlin and Munich.

It was at Munich that he made the acquaintance of some Americans of great wealth. They engaged him as tutor to their son. In 1883 he accompanied the young man to America.

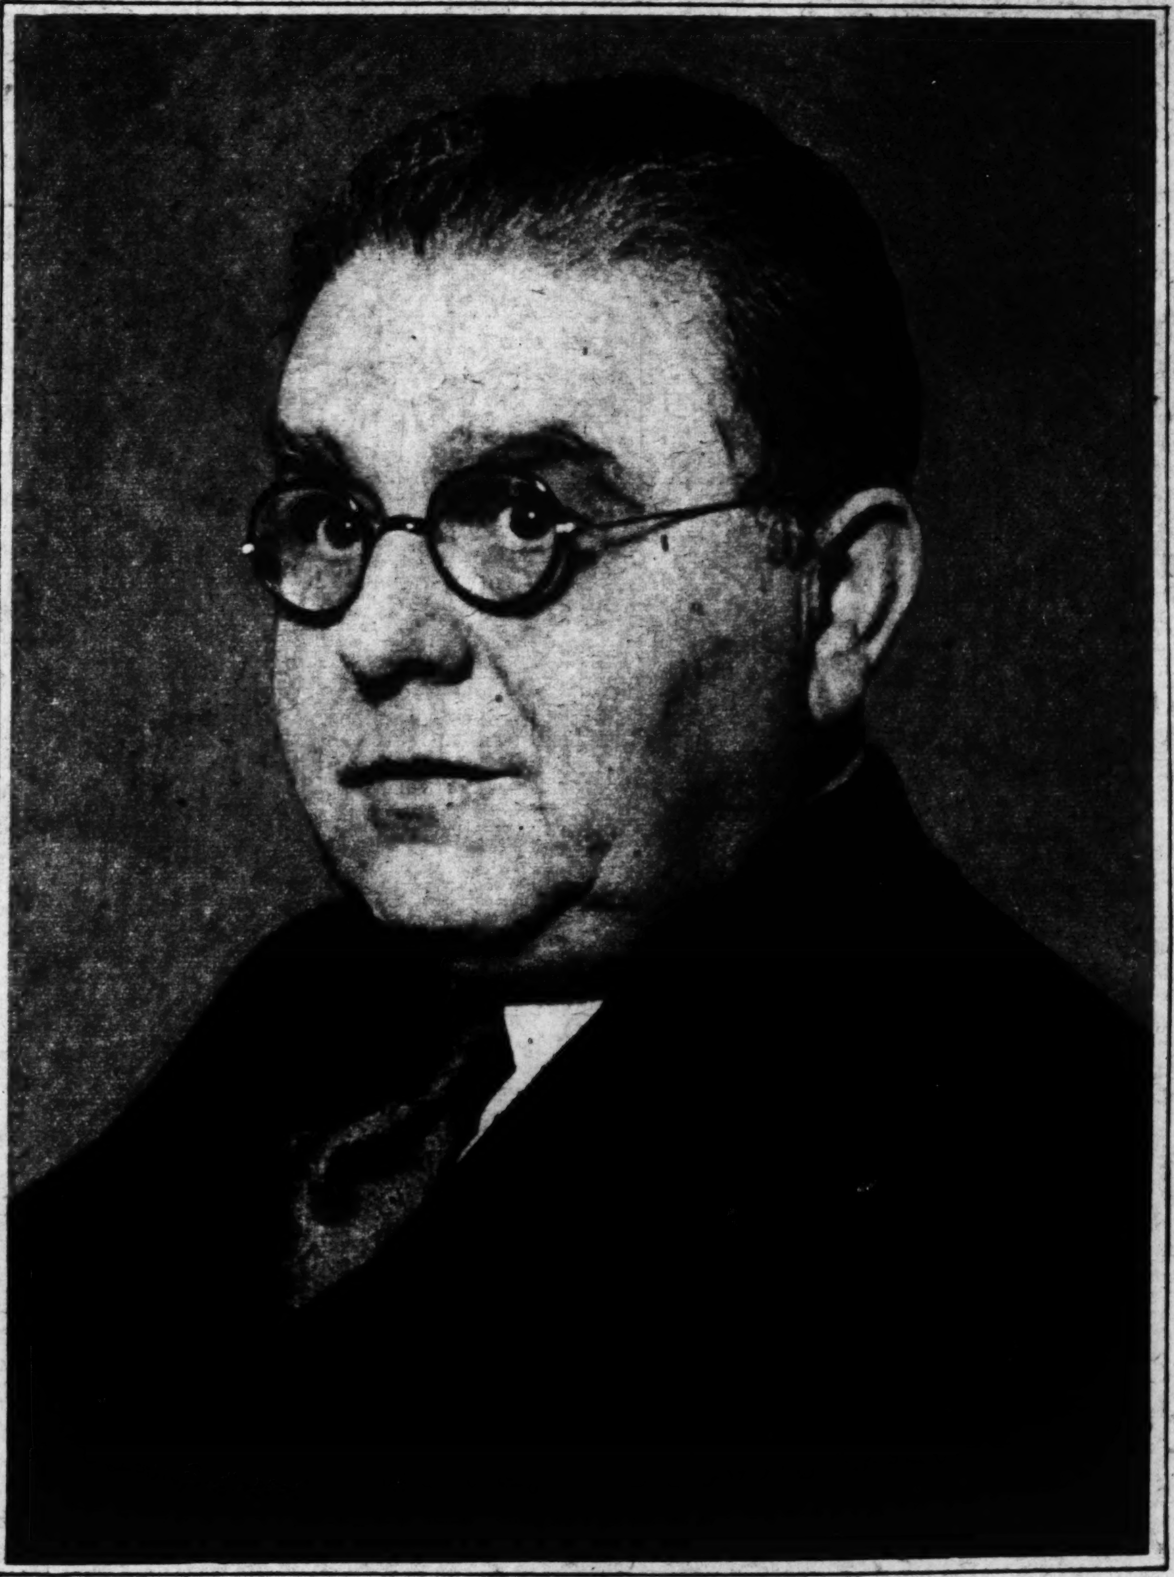
The United States at that time represented to Dr. Heller an ideal. The nation seemed to him the stronghold of liberal humanitarianism. It stood opposed to the hidebound tradition and conservatism of the old world, in the young man's mind. He took out his first papers and was naturalized at the earliest opportunity. The occasion on which he became a citizen of the United States was such an important one, he felt, that he gave a gala dinner for a group of intimate friends.

Since that time he has become somewhat disillusioned with the country of his adoption. It has been a gradual process, one that involves an important distinction between civilization and culture.

"America has made vast strides in civilization. In culture she has not progressed at all for half a century," he says, explaining his theory. "Civilization is concerned with temporal and temporary things. Prosperity, in a broad sense of the word, is its objective, whereas to culture it is not an end in itself, only a means to an end. Culture implies relations with the finer and final values. It arises from civilization but transcends it. Civilization may entirely dispense with art and philosophy or accept surrogates (as we do)—in culture the spiritual concerns inhere.

"We are becoming smug and hypocritical in that we do not conform our conduct to our professed social and political beliefs, but as a rule do the very reverse, or keep them at a safe distance from each other, as a body politic and individually, too. We preach civic virtue plentifully, and ardently cultivate it by means of salesmanship and advertising, nearly always for utilitarian purposes. But we no longer enthuse spontaneously, even in the biggest causes. On the other hand, we can be inveigled into any form of enthusiasm by expert propaganda. Since the time of my naturalization we have become at one and the same time the most lawful and the most lawless of nations. Most lawful—chuck full of laws of every description. Most lawless — leaders in criminality, with an undisputed world record for violence, particularly for sordid, cold-blooded murder. Perseverance in our indifference to this state of affairs is bound in the long run to lead to terrible consequences. Prohibition is not the only factor in the national advance toward lawlessness. Our vision is clear, but very short.

"The composition of Congress, especially the Senate, proves that we draw our leaders from the intellectual hinterland. What chance for public leadership is there for the superior American? And yet they exist in abundance, as of old."



DR. OTTO HELLER.

All this, however, came later. The young man, having given up his tutorial duties, was faced with the practical necessity of earning a living. He secured a position as professor of Greek in La Salle College, a Catholic institution in Philadelphia, and at the same time taught in Forsythe College, a Quaker school. He was also doing some translating and he recalls that on one occasion a publisher sent him a novel by the French author, Ernest-Aime Feydeau.

DR. HELLER, since the publisher was in a great hurry, translated this book of some 40,000 words in one week. For which he received the princely sum of $30. He was not proud of the translation of this work, which took its title from the name of the heroine, "Fanny." It was a peculiar variation of the triangle theme, in which the lover grows so jealous of the husband of his mistress that he shoots and kills him. Having sent off the translation to the publishing office, he promptly proceeded to forget about it. Since he never received a copy of the book, he decided that the publisher had decided to abandon the project. He got his check and was no longer interested in "Fanny."

But one day a year later he was riding on a train. The butcher approached him with his literary wares, paper-back thrillers. No, he was not interested. Several times the ambitious salesman approached him. And at last he took out rather secretly a book from the bottom of the pile. "This is hot stuff," he said, in effect. On the cover was a picture of a scantily-dressed woman in the embrace of a villainous-looking gentleman. The title was "A Strange Woman." Dr. Heller glanced at it more closely and recognized in this curious guise Feydeau's "Fanny," the work he had translated.

It is interesting to compare this with Dr. Heller's translation of Lessing's "Minna von Barnhelm," on which he spent three years. There had never been an adequate translation of this work and Dr. Heller sought to do several things. He wanted to retain the original flavor of the dialogue so as to preserve the characterizations in the original. And he sought to preserve Lessing's style, and also the flavor of the period.

From La Salle College Dr. Heller went as instructor in German and French to Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston. And it was here that he received a call to take the newly created German professorship at Washington University in St. Louis.

At the time of his appointment he was the youngest full professor in any accredited college in the country. That was in 1892.

Thirty-eight years he has taught at Washington University. In 1913 he was given a second professorship, that of modern European literature, and finally he was made dean of the graduate school. Thirty-eight years, and as one graduating class after another passed before him, his circle of influence grew ever wider. For his contacts with students extended beyond the threshold of the classroom, developing often into lasting friendships.

He was making his influence felt in America in other ways, too. The books he has written fill a sizeable shelf. Many of them are of a scholarly nature, of interest chiefly to the members of Dr. Heller's profession. Others are of a general critical nature—"Henrik Ibsen, Plays and Problems," "Studies in Modern Literature," "Prophets of Dissent." Dr. Heller's study of Ibsen has been called by Mencken and others the best work of its kind in English.

Dr. Heller, despite his own contributions, has very serious doubts regarding the influence exerted by the professor in American life. He hasn't any, Dr. Heller says in effect. And he puts most of the blame for this on the professor himself.

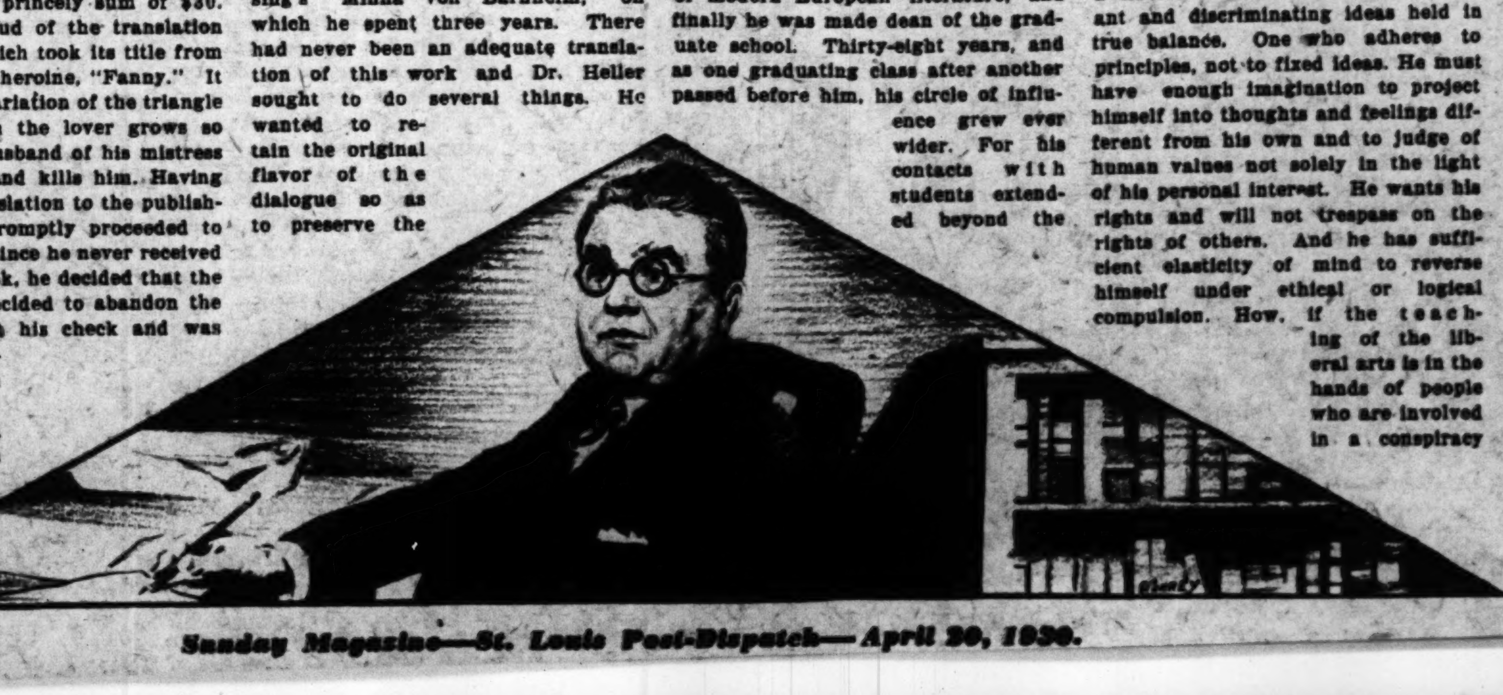
"We are blessed with fine material in our educational system," he says, "and cursed with middling craftsmen. The teacher is either a part of the general mediocrity or he assumes the protective coloring of mediocrity. We are producing the standardized teacher.

"A great deal is heard about the younger generation and its lapses. But the fault, in the matter of education, is that of the older generation.

"The academic man is isolated. He abstains very religiously from expressing an opinion when that smacks of assuming leadership.

"The American professor does not contribute sufficiently to the debarbarization of American life—to its liberalization. Of course, as a matter of fact in this country we do not have liberals and conservatives but radicals and reactionaries. We have no truly liberal voices.

"COLLEGE—when we speak of college it is merely as an abbreviation for college of liberal arts. Ostensibly the business of the college is to make liberals. No one ever thinks of that. By a liberal I mean a person of tolerant and discriminating ideas held in true balance. One who adheres to principles, not to fixed ideas. He must have enough imagination to project himself into thoughts and feelings different from his own and to judge of human values not solely in the light of his personal interest. He wants his rights and will not trespass on the rights of others. And he has sufficient elasticity of mind to reverse himself under ethical or logical compulsion. How, if the teaching of the liberal arts is in the hands of people who are involved in a conspiracy of silence, can we make liberals?"



Dr. Heller believes that this originates from the fact that money is the standard by which all things are judged. And it is no solution, in his opinion, to raise the pay of the teacher.

"I believe that of all the factors that contribute to the educational trend in this country, the teacher is the slightest. We are willing to accept our educational opinions from Henry Ford, say. We regard his words as oracular. Now that is all very well in certain departments. But Mr. Ford is 60 per cent a great man and 40 per cent an old baby, or vice versa.

"If Mr. Ford were to advertise a course in integral calculus, admission $3, the hall would undoubtedly be crowded. But if our professor of mathematics were to advertise a course in calculus, to be free of charge, I think there would be ample room in the auditorium.

"We have spread education until it has become exceedingly thin. That deludes us into thinking we are the most broadly educated nation in the world."

Dr. Heller cites, as an example of the attitude toward the professor, the fact that when President Wilson was under attack the term of greatest opprobrium which certain papers could find to apply was professor. "Professor" Wilson they said, in derision. Also, he relates an anecdote from his own experience.

AS A YOUNG man he was on his way to teach in the summer school of the University of Vermont at Burlington. He had a two-and-a-half-hour wait at Rutland between trains.

"I was somewhat gaily dressed," he relates, "in holiday mood, as it were. I went into a little cafe and had lunch. And when I paid my check, I forgot to take my change. The proprietor called after me, 'Oh, professor, you've forgotten your change.'

"His calling me professor puzzled me. I walked around the town and ran across a little circus, a dog and pony show, and since I had nothing to do I stopped in to see it. Later I returned to the cafe. 'Why did you call me professor?' I asked. And he said, 'Well, you're with the dog and pony show, ain't you?' "

For five years, from 1919 to 1925, Dr. Heller was literary editor of the Post-Dispatch. He was finally forced to give it up, however, as the task of keeping up with the ever-increasing stream of books occupied too much of his time. He has many interesting letters from authors as a result of his reviews during that period.

Maurice Maeterlinck sent Dr. Heller a beautifully-bound volume of his plays inscribed to "The most penetrating and fraternal of all my critics." And following his review of the novel, "Rescue," Joseph Conrad wrote to him, commenting on his discernment and admitting the justice of certain of Dr. Heller's strictures. T. S. Eliot wrote to Dr. Heller to thank him for his review of the poem, "Wasteland," remarking that it was the most understanding of all the criticisms of that strange work.

These and many others Dr. Heller values very highly. He values, too, the friendships he has enjoyed with unusual and distinguished men.

He was a close friend for many years of the late John Fiske, noted historian. Fiske had a very fine singing voice and Dr. Heller recalls listening for three hours while he sang through a whole Schubert or Schumann album.

Another friend was the late William Marion Reedy of St. Louis. Once Reedy telephoned Dr. Heller at 8 o'clock on a Sunday morning to announce that he had two friends whom he wanted to bring to breakfast. The friends were Edgar Lee Masters and Witter Bynner, both poets of note. They came and the breakfast was prolonged until 7 o'clock that evening, when Masters and Reedy had to talk before the Wednesday Club. There was much brilliant conversation. Reedy was one of the most remarkable conversationalists and public speakers he has ever known, Dr. Heller says.

Dr. Heller retains, possibly from his European background, a certain formalism. He has preserved a certain way of life that implies a pleasant, orderly household and an excellent table. "If one complies outwardly with form and convention, it is relatively easy to guard one's central independence. That has been my theory," Dr. Heller explains.

His attitude toward sports, too, is characteristic of his training and back-

WASHINGTON.

IN THE opinion of Surgeon - General Hugh S. Cumming, head of the United States Public Health Service, women's styles have finally got around to the unaccustomed state of being sensible and healthful and something should be done to keep them that way, but probably won't. Not since the days of Ancient Greece, it is declared, has a woman's whole ensemble at any one time been so free from undesirable features—undesirable in the sense of being prejudicial to health. Of course, there is quite a lot of latitude in the fashions of this Easter. It might be possible to pick out a combination of garments that wouldn't win medical approval, but the typical spring costume, picked without any particular attention to the health viewpoint, would be about 85 per cent acceptable to the doctors.

WOMEN have been accustomed for so long to having their clothes disapproved by health authorities that they have almost come to expect criticism from some quarter, so it may be a little disconcerting this year to meet with Public Health Service sanction. This sanction first began to make itself heard last summer when doctors spoke heartily in defense of short skirts, sleeveless blouses, sun backs and the long straight lines of the dress, lines which with a few slight variations have prevailed since 1918. As sun tan and exposure of the body to rays of the sun got more and more popular with women, physicians continued to beam. Women might be foolish about their dieting, they said, and they might be heedless about their thin stockings and low shoes in winter, but so far as their summer clothing was concerned they were at last showing a little sense.

Then, the medical men were almost compelled to swallow their words. It was announced that women's styles were to undergo a drastic change. Long, voluminous skirts were coming back. It might be that they would swish and drag and sweep the streets as they did in the age of innocence. Corsets were to be in style, too. The princess silhouette was quite the thing. Dresses were to fit close to the figure.

But things haven't gone quite so far as that. The case was a bit overstated. Skirts did get longer and developed flares and streamers that did almost sweep the street. And for evening wear these flares and trains held favor. But out of the compromise with short skirts, which stubbornly refused to pass out, there emerged the new set of lines which have won the health department's praise. They have eliminated the flat, boyish figure and replaced it with something more feminine, but still the waistline is where nature intended a waistline to be. Tight brassieres have disappeared —or have almost done so—and another score is marked up on the side of health. The practice of binding the breasts down flat against the chest always was a bad one, the scientists assert. And another thing. The return of the normal waistline and the normal chest obliges women to look to their posture and stand erect with chest out and abdomen in, whereas the boyish get-up fostered the opposite. With the new-style dress a woman can't do a debutante slouch and get away with it. They have to stand just as the doctors have always told them they should stand.

Health officials also speak warmly of the new skirt length. Except for a few extremists, most women now wear sports dresses two or three inches below the knee, afternoon gowns six to eight inches below the knee, and evening dresses really long. This variation in length appeals to the physicians of the health service as logical, as they take the position that different activities require different degrees of freedom.

DOCTOR W. F. DRAPER, assistant surgeon-general of the Public Health Service, says his idea of the very best skirt length of all is one which just covers the knee when the woman sits down. This, he says, gives freedom of action and comfort of mind, whether in action or at leisure.

"When skirts are shorter than knee length a woman becomes self conscious and does not feel at ease," says Doctor Draper. "This is bad for her health. But there is another extreme, and I would like to add a word of caution. The old hobble skirt women used to wear was harmful because it restricted natural movements. The voluminous skirt that swirled around the legs was scarcely any better. Now that the skirts are tending toward greater and greater width, women should beware, for this may be leading them towards the clumsy, yards-and-yards-of-material skirt, which is neither healthful nor comfortable.

"Another thing to be careful about is the belt. Many of these new dresses have belts at the normal waistline, and perhaps some will pull them too tight. A belt should never be so tight that it cuts off ventilation, for that is one of the best features of the clothing which women have been wearing since the time of the war. Moving air next to the body takes care of evaporation and does away with damp, clammy clothing which is so uncomfortable and so bad for one's health."

The natural curves of the body are now the basis of fashion design. But that isn't so simple as it sounds, because many women no longer have a natural body. For years they have been trying to conceal the fact that they had breasts and have endeavored to look as square and straight up and down as a man. Paris dressmakers say all women have to do is to step into one of the new corsets and pull themselves gently into a natural shape. Doctor Draper says he isn't so sure about this, because corsets which do the work of muscles are injurious to health. It's like tying an arm to one's side or carrying it in a sling, he points out. Muscles which are not used become useless. A garment which does the work of muscles makes those muscles flabby.

However, he does not contend that all corsets are injurious. The corset which does not fit tightly enough to restrain the natural movements of the body, and is merely a wisp of porous silk or lace, combined perhaps with a bit of elastic cloth, can scarcely be deemed dangerous. Many of the corsets of today, he points out, have no stays and are as pliable as any other garments.

"Don't diet strenuously so as to get below your normal weight, just to have a slim fashion figure," warns Doctor Draper. "Every woman has a weight at which she feels the best. When she forces her weight down by strict dieting, her system shows the strain. Instead of her slimness making her more attractive, it often makes her less so, because of the worried look on her face and the subnormal tone it is likely to give to her spirits.

"SHORT-SLEEVED and sleeveless dresses are fine from a hygienic standpoint. It is a generally-recognised fact that a moderate exposure to the violet rays of the sun is highly beneficial. Physicians often recommend sun baths in the treatment and prevention of certain diseases. Unquestionably sunlight is a wonderful complexion treatment, beneficial to almost any woman.

"Scant costumes are the most healthful for exercising," he continues, "and I understand they are fashionable as well. Evaporation can take place immediately if little clothing is worn. Otherwise the sportswoman must go around in damp clothing, a practice which may be the cause of bad colds. Think how ridiculous most golfing costumes for men really are. How much more comfortably and healthfully clad are the women on the course in their light silk dresses without sleeves, and cut low at the neck."

Doctor Draper nods an enthusiastic approval of the new "Boy Scout" type of exercise suit donned this year by many a fashionable young woman for such strenuous sports as tennis. Indeed, this suit is a costume very similar to one designed to fit Doctor Draper's ideas of what the ideally-dressed male golfer ought to wear.

This suit consists merely of short trunks and a soft, short-sleeved shirt which lies comfortably open at the throat.

But here again, the women seem to have gained some advantage, for whereas Doctor Draper's suitably-dressed male golfer wore heavy wool stockings with the suit, the girls who are wearing this costume do not bother with stockings at all.

"The only place where I can see that men today have any advantage in the comparative comfort of their clothes is when it comes to their feet," reflects the doctor. "I would certainly hate to walk around on the high heels that most women wear." However, the doctor did not indicate that he thought high heels an immediate menace to women's health.

He just thinks they are silly, and is sure they must be uncomfortable.

BUT high heels are no longer smart for all occasions. With the new tweed dresses or tailored spring suits, shoes with medium high heels of solid leather are fashionable.

Many women find it difficult to change from one type of heel to another. After the muscles of the leg have become accustomed to a certain position, it is often painful to alter their position by changing the height of the heel support from flat to high or vice versa.

Not all women think they must have small feet today to be fashionable. Shoe clerks no longer consider that any size above 5 is unmentionable. Only a few years ago they were in fear of losing a sale if they told a woman the actual size she wore. Consequently, shoe sizes were stamped in the shoes in such a complicated way that the casual customer could not decipher them.

Noting that the new hats are showing brims, Doctor Draper asserts this is desirable, as a medium brim protects the eyes from strain. During the past winter the brimless, off-the-face, helmet-type hat was most popular. Beauty shops, in fact, began to make a specialty of catering to the tired eyes and the lined brows which resulted. Doctor Draper favors porous straws for hats because they allow circulation of air.

He approves of light silks for women's clothing, and cottons, because they can be so easily laundered.

The advantages of convenience in modern dress for women are matched only by their advantages from the standpoint of health.

NEW STYLES in CHURCHES

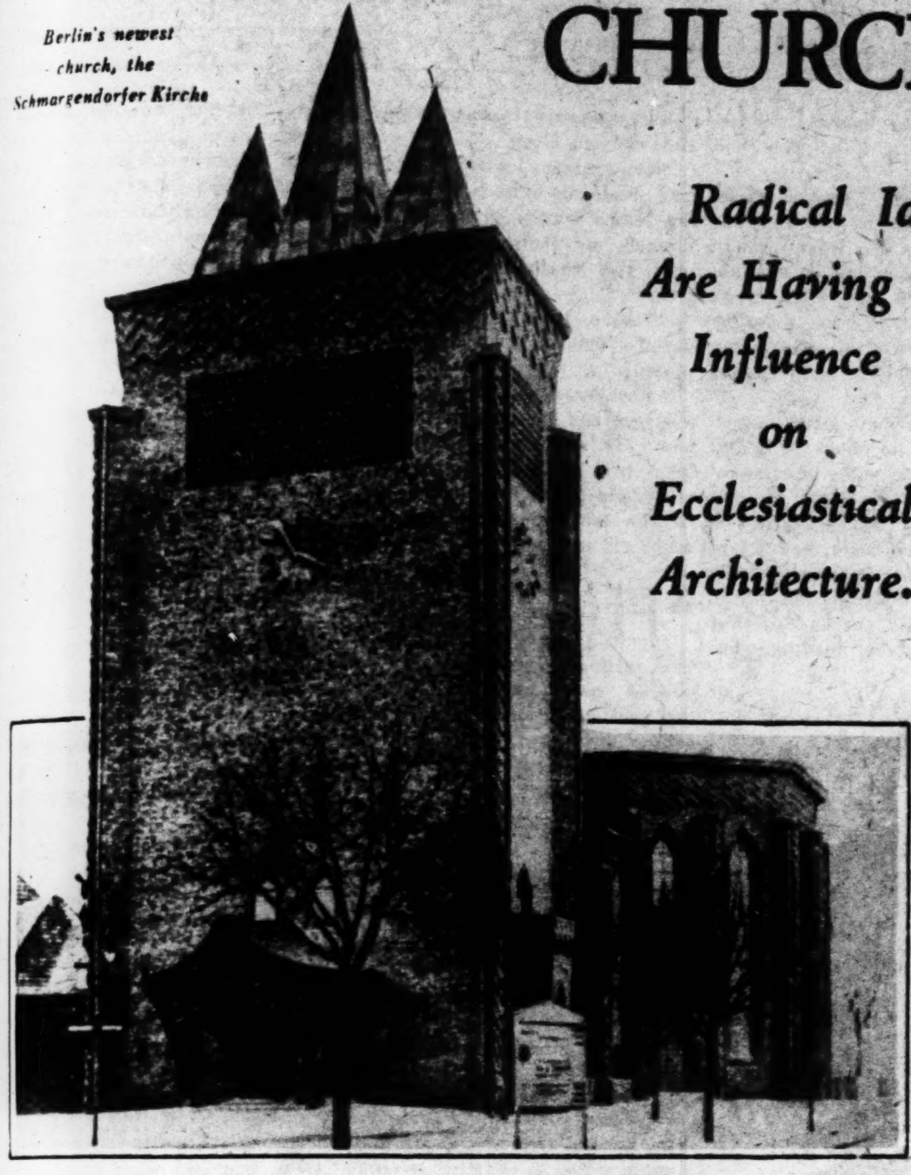
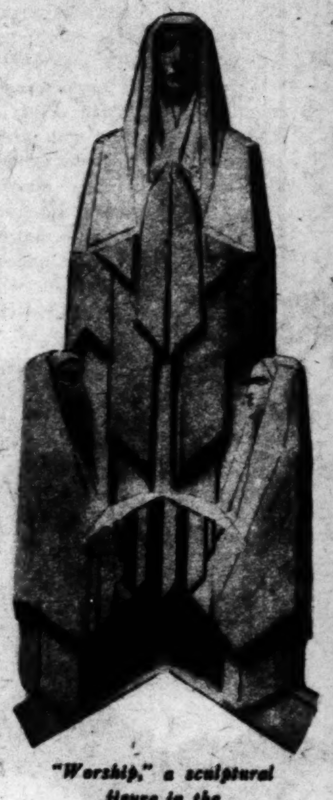
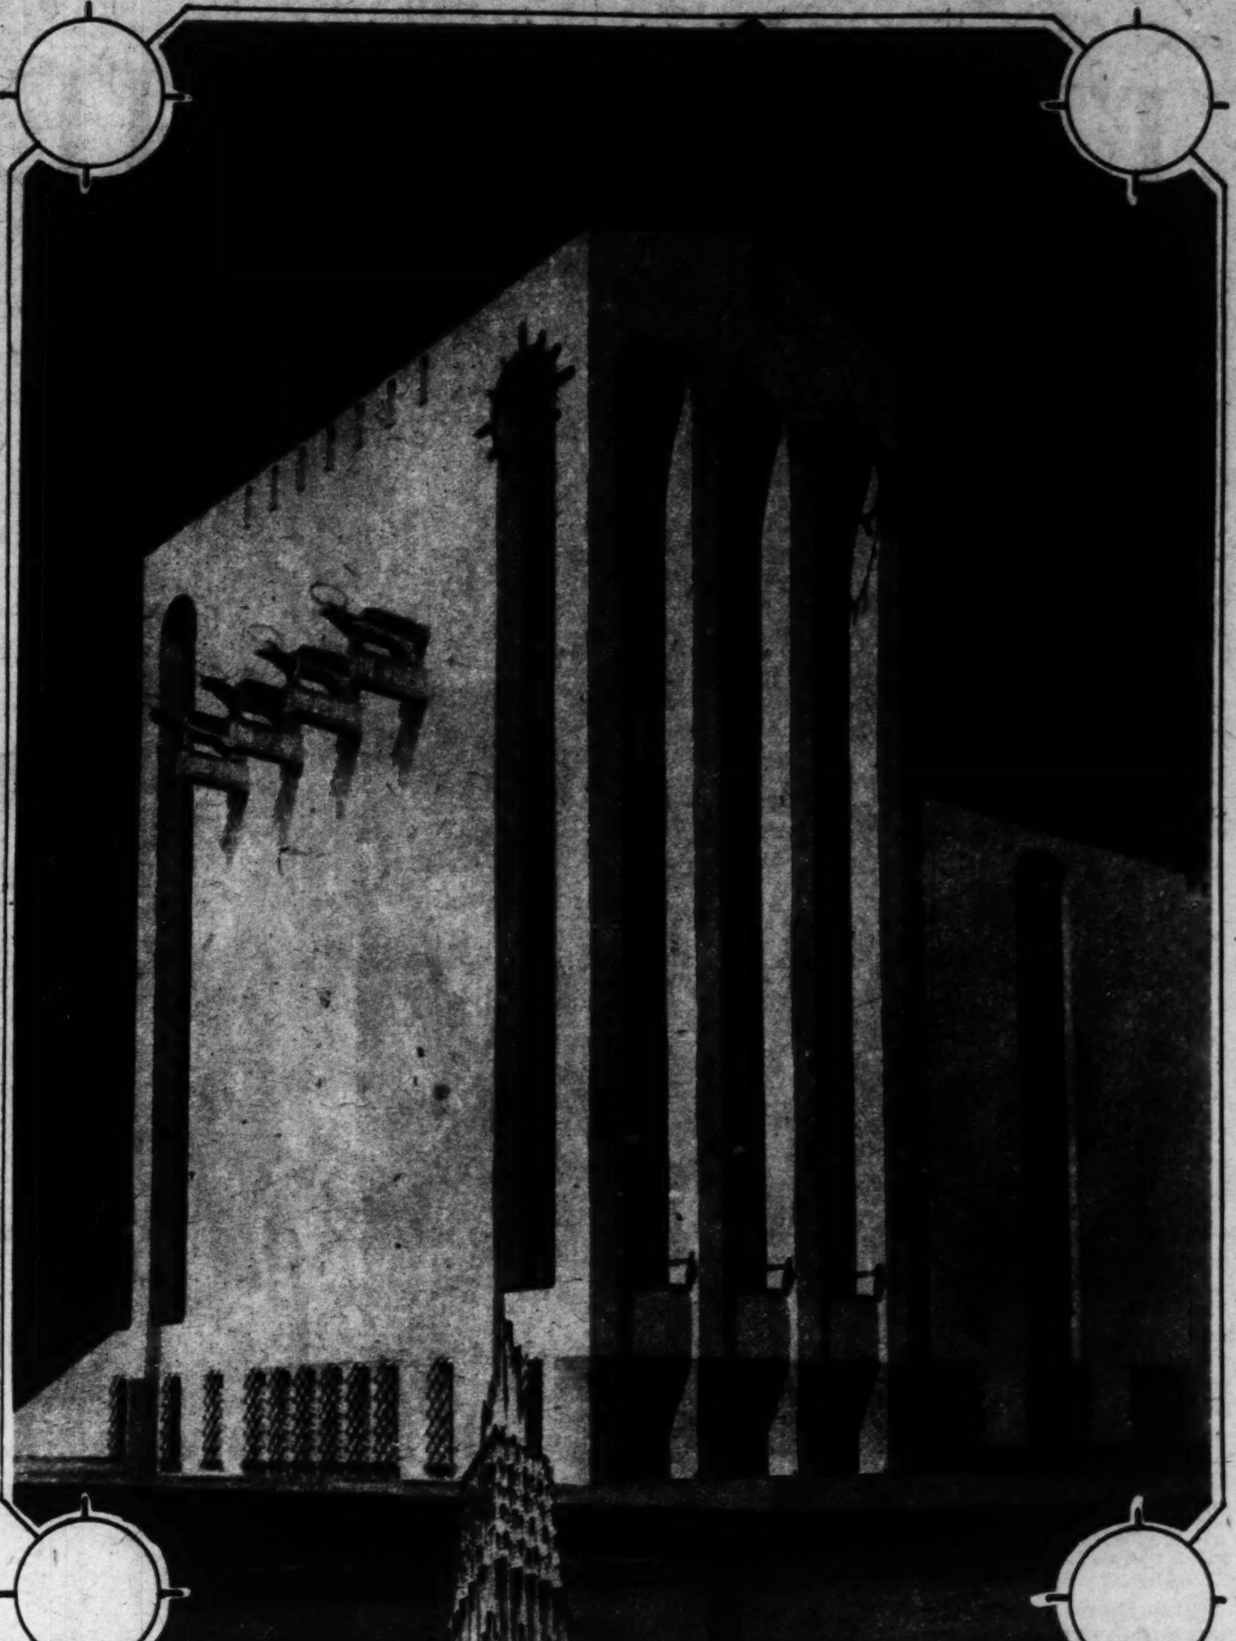
Radical Ideas Which Are Having an Important Influence on Ecclesiastical Architecture.



Berlin's newest church, the Schmargendorfer Kirche



"Worship," a sculptural figure in the Schmargendorfer Kirche.



A newly-constructed Roman Catholic church in Frankfort.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

THE Church, like almost everything else, feels the modern trend. Not so much inside, perhaps—but outside; in its sanctuaries, its chapels, its cathedrals. They have embraced the wonders of steel and concrete, the new fashion in architecture, taken it to themselves, and found something different.

And, strangest of all, the nations of the Old World which centuries ago produced the famous Gothic and Romanesque types of ecclesiastical architecture that have been followed through the centuries—those lands have been the first to desert tradition. Germany leads the way in the new manner, France comes a close second. And Holland, Spain, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway—they have much to show of this new way of things.

The change is natural and in no way sacrilegious. When men first set out to build houses of worship to their God, they wanted them magnificent, stately, beautiful edifices, worthy monuments of their reverence and their faith. And they came by the flying buttresses of Notre Dame, great wings of stone reaching out from the structure's walls, not as a matter of adornment, but as an engineering necessity. For in the handling of bulky blocks of stone and in the necessity of achieving great Gothic spaces high in the roof, those flying buttresses were the stabilizing, basic elements of construction. They made for "safety factors," as the engineers term them.

The results were stone walls that prohibited large windows, lest the support which would have to be withdrawn to accommodate the window space trade weaknesses for security, in the great mass. So instead of spacious openings, permitting light to enter and flood the interior, there were thick walls and deep casements that all but forbade the entrance of light.

NOW all that has changed—or may be changed. Great windows, flush with the walls of the edifice, may welcome in the sun. Towering spires, slender and needle-like, may pierce the sky, winding their way toward heaven. Balls and triangles of glass and metal, concrete blocks, strange structures that resemble gigantic airplane hangars, thin, lofty towers like nothing so much as elevator shafts bereft of their surroundings—all these may lend themselves to the new church architecture, and have pretty much done so at one place or another.

There is good reason. The development of steel and concrete, working together, comes by new miracles. Nothing, within reason, is too tall or slender for its bidding. Great spaces may be spanned by it, resulting in high, wide, twisting roofs. The flying buttress, no longer necessary, is relegated to the museum of architectural curiosities, and the massive wall, with its deep-set windows, likewise becomes antique. No longer are heavy stone masses needed to give support and substance to a structure, for walls become but a building's veneer, mere loads of brick resting, as mendicants, upon the graciousness of the steel and concrete beams that uphold them. The walls are but a building's skin, it is the steel skeleton that plays the part of the building's bones, giving it whatever form the architect wills.

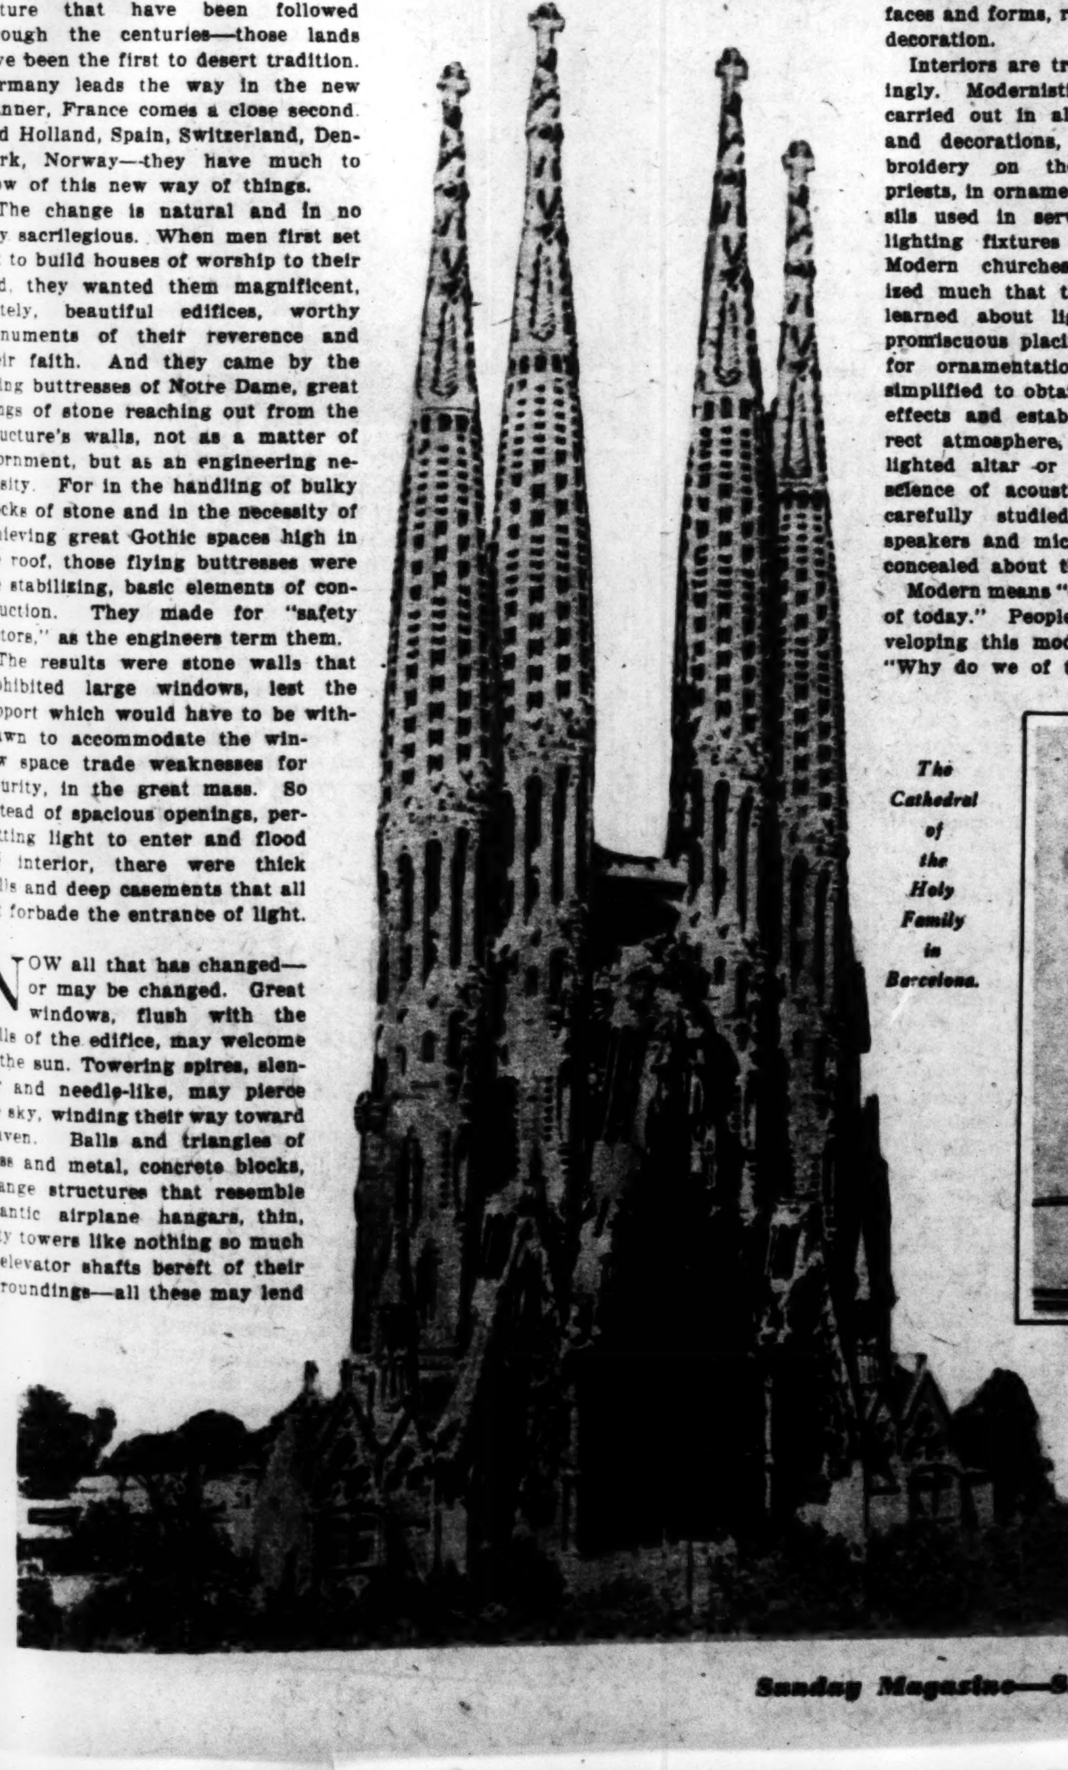
It is worth while to consider this thing in the light of the century which has produced it. Undeniably, there are compensations and explanations which justify these structures as being ecclesiastical, though they bear little resemblance to the traditional Gothic style.

TO COPY the Gothic style and use steel would be a false gesture, the modern school contends. Why not take advantage of the geometric designs offered by steel construction? Both exterior and interior designs are in planes and surfaces and forms, rather than in decoration.

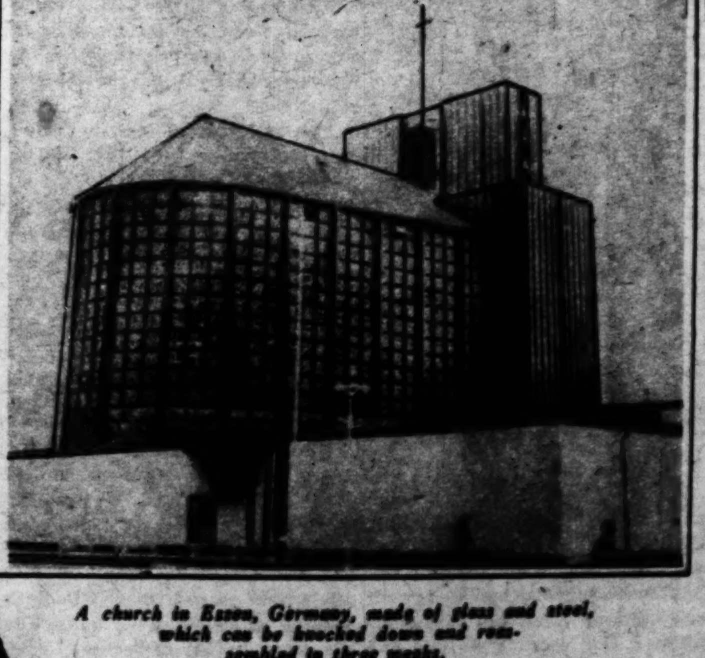
Interiors are treated accordingly. Modernistic effects are carried out in all furnishings and decorations, in the embroidery on the robes of priests, in ornaments and utensils used in services, in the lighting fixtures and effects. Modern churches have utilized much that the stage has learned about lighting. The promiscuous placing of lights for ornamentation has been simplified to obtain the proper effects and establish the correct atmosphere, with floodlighted altar or pulpit. The science of acoustics has been carefully studied, and loud speakers and microphones are concealed about the pulpit.

Modern means "characteristic of today." People who are developing this modern art say, "Why do we of the twentieth century need to copy things, made under such different conditions, for the courts of Louis XIV or XV? Why go back to the eighteenth century in England when the customs were so very different? Why not develop what expresses us and our mechanical age?"

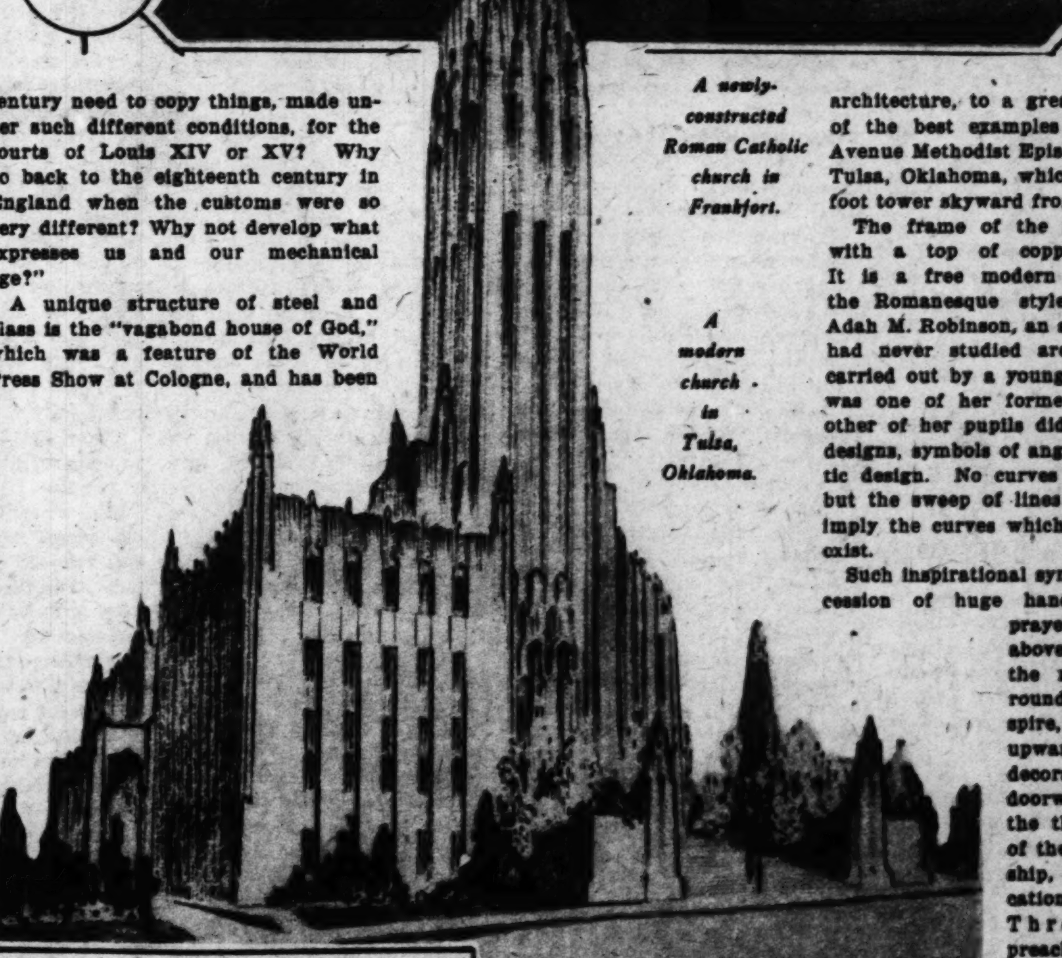
A unique structure of steel and glass is the "vagabond house of God," which was a feature of the World Press Show at Cologne, and has been purchased by the city of Essen on the Ruhr. It can be knocked down, transported and reassembled in three weeks. There you have speed, efficiency, economy and a maximum of light. What could be more modern—more expressive of our economical and mechanical age? It may be sold and moved away if the members tire of it and want a new model. It might even be moved to follow a shifting congregation.



The Cathedral of the Holy Family in Barcelona.



A church in Essen, Germany, made of glass and steel, which can be knocked down and reassembled in three weeks.



A modern church in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

One of the most audacious examples of the departure from all precept in church building is the new Cathedral of the Holy Family in Barcelona. More than any other does this structure resemble liquid stone that is frozen in rhythmic lines and forms; but with all its exotic originality, its beauty is arresting and vital. In its general mass and contours, there is an adaptation of the Gothic, but everything else is daring and new. The four slender spires, designed in corkscrew form, have been compared with the long, slender, tapering lines of the Rhine wine bottle. Extending the figure, the decorations of the lower part resemble nothing so much as foam which has overflowed the bottles and congealed in natural conglomeration of form.

Twentieth-century America has also gone modern in the matter of church architecture, to a great extent. One of the best examples is the Boston Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church at Tulsa, Oklahoma, which flings a 260-foot tower skyward from a broad base.

The frame of the tower is steel, with a top of copper and glass. It is a free modern adaptation of the Romanesque style, designed by Adah M. Robinson, an art teacher who had never studied architecture, and carried out by a young architect who was one of her former pupils. Another of her pupils did the sculpture designs, symbols of angular modernistic design. No curves are employed, but the sweep of lines is such as to imply the curves which really do not exist.

Such inspirational symbols as a succession of huge hands, folded in prayer, that rise above the line of the roof and surround the top of the spire, carry the eye upward. Six groups decorate the main doorway, signifying the three functions of the church: worship, religious education and missions. Three mounted preachers of early curcuit-riding days are above the other entrance. Kneeling figures, all modernistic, flank the sculptured groups.

ANOTHER development of the modern church is the skyscraper building which houses secular as well as religious quarters. One of the best examples of this is the Broadway Temple in New York, whose 719-foot tower is surmounted by a beacon which takes the form of a radiant cross, visible 35 miles at sea.

This building houses apartments, bowling alleys, squash courts, gymnasium and swimming pool and various other enterprises. Similar structures in Rochester, Pittsburg, San Francisco, Miami and Chicago house banks, stores, theaters.

The contentions for this type of church are that the small church in the congested city district is eclipsed and becomes insignificant both in appearance and function; that the church thus built on ground which would otherwise be barred from such use because of its value, serves the people of its vicinity as it could not elsewhere, and that by so being self-supporting, it can extend and increase its services.

ITCHING HEEL

By ROARK BRADFORD

THE white folks had Amos down for a worthless, shiftless, undependable nigger. The black folks said, "Hmmm!" and passed him by. But to himself Amos was a man with a worry on his soul and a run-around on his heel.

Sometimes that worry would be one thing. Sometimes it would be another. But, no matter what it was, it always set his heel to itching.

And when he felt his heel itch he traveled.

The particular worry which sent Amos from his life of comparative indolence in Baton Rouge to Dorlenhorfer's levee camp 12 miles down the river was chocolate brown. Her name was Laura. Laura was all right. She had not changed during the nearly four weeks that Amos had been "sweetheartin' " her.

But Amos could tell by the way his guitar sounded that something was about to happen. He played tuneless tunes and his big E string popped against the neck of the instrument with a toneless thwack.

"Baby," he suggested, "I hyars hit's a heap er work and good money down in de levee camp."

"Humph," grunted Laura. "I knows you ain't huntin' work. And I knows I ain't huntin' no levee camp."

Amos thumped away at his guitar for several minutes:

"Blue jump a rabbit and he run him a solid mile.
Seen he couldn't ketch him, so he cried jest like a chile."

"Laura" — after several minutes— "I can take me a pair er dice and clean me up some money off'm dem levee camp niggers."

"Yeah?" Laura was sarcastic. "And I kin take me a pistol and shoot holes in yo' liver too."

Amos thumped away, but the guitar wouldn't act right. The bass strings popped and the trebles whined wistfully. There was good money in a levee camp. And women, too:

"Po' boy, and he stood on de road and he cried.
Didn't hab no blues; jest can't be satisfied."

When Laura went to the grocery that afternoon Amos took the four dollars she had hid under her mattress, the pistol from under her pillow, and swung his guitar over his shoulder. In a few minutes he was scratching his itching heel on the path that led down the levee toward the construction camp.

Rumors about plenty of work Amos found to be correct. Talk of big money and many women he felt had been exaggerated. But there was plenty of work. The mule feeder—a small, mink-eyed man named Reuben—assured him there was.

"Quick as de boss man comes in f'm de dump," he explained, "well, you take and tell him you kin drive mules. He'll put you on de pay roll."

"What do he pay?" Amos asked.

Reuben looked at him in amazement. "What do he pay?" he repeated. "Boy, de man which runs dis camp is name' ole Doll'n-a-Ha'f. And dat's jest what he pays. And he takes a commissary cut out'n dat for boa'd."

AMOS considered. It wasn't much. But it was a living. And he wouldn't have to be listening to Laura's everlasting jealous whinings.

"How's de grub?" he asked.

"De camp grub?"

"Un-hunnh."

"Rotten."

It was discouraging. That wasn't so promising.

"Y'all boys ever do any gambling?" he asked.

"Tries to," said Reuben. "Round pay day."

That was better. "You don't look like you's starvin' to death," Amos declared.

Reuben grinned. "I got me a woman," he explained. "Jo Hanna. I an' her. Us got a tent."

"Yeah?"

"Yeah."

Amos found the boss man that night and was put on the pay roll, authorized to eat in the mess tent and to sleep in one of the large gang tents. His job was driving a "wheeler." Which is to say he drove a pair of mules to a two-yard scoop for moving dirt from a pit to the top of the levee embankment. The scoop was geared on a pair of wheels so it could be lowered and loaded, then hoisted clear of the ground and carted to the dump. But the details of the operation did not interest Amos. All he had to do was drive. A loader, expert at the job, attended to the loading. A man who drove three mules fastened his team to the end of the tongue to help snatch the big shovelful of dirt. And a dump man tripped the Johnson bar when the dirt was to be unloaded. All Amos had to do was drive his two mules, Ida and Jack.

"Watch out for them mules, boy," cautioned the boss man. "I can hire all the niggers I want, but mules cost money."

"Gy-yyup, Ida," called Amos. "Hit de collar, Jack. Got to haul dis dirt befo' de cap'm gits back." He unconsciously had made up a little song about his team. That night after supper he got out his guitar and made the woods about camp ring. The old guitar worked splendidly. He was happy, and so was the guitar.

"Bawn in de country, and I's raised in de town.
I'm a toker-loker shaker f'm my
haid on down.
I guess I'm satisfied."

"Yeah, now! Listen at him!" It was Jo Hanna. She was sitting on a stump, listening with a dozen or so other men and women to Amos' concert. "Listen at dat crow-colored baboon whup dat box!"

Jo Hanna was not much to look at. She was black and skinny. Her arms and legs were too long; her heels protruded; her mouth was much too large.

"Got no money, and I got no gun.
Got no woman and I don't want none.
I guess I'm satisfied."

A gentle chuckle rippled round the circle and Jo Hanna laughed out loud. "Hit's a good thing," she declared. "'Cause no woman gonter take up wid likes er you."

Amos felt that the woman was taking his song as a personal thing, so he changed the subject:

"Git along da; tighten up, Jack.
Keep de collar hot to de cap'm come back.
I guess I'm satisfied."

LIFE in the levee camp just about suited Amos. The work was steady, but it wasn't hard. Just walking along in the cool, loose dirt, driving his team. The sun was blistering hot, especially when he was in the loading pit. But on top of the embankment the cooling breeze from the river fanned him.

And the food wasn't so terribly bad. It wasn't so very good, either, but a boy didn't have to listen to a jealous woman whine all the time he was eating it and spend an hour arguing about what there would be to eat, and when. All he had to listen for was the cook beating upon the old crowbar that had been bent into a triangle and suspended by a leather ham-string from the limb of a tree. When that triangle rattled it was dinner time. And everybody went in and ate.

"Pass dem cabbages, boy."

"Shoot de bread at me."

"Yeah, cookie, fill hit up again."

Rough food and rough table manners. But plenty of both for a hungry, hardworking boy.

The first couple of days Ida and Jack worried Amos, but he figured out a way to remedy that. Ida was a trick mule, while her mate was sturdy and honest. Ida dodged when he went to bridle her and ran off into the woods every time Amos gave her a chance. But the most irritating thing she did was to walk a little ahead of Jack, keeping the end of the doubletree slightly forward and thereby gain a slight advantage in leverage. It was not much. Just a little. But she did it all the time, and it threw more than a fair half of the load on Jack.

FOR two days Amos patiently tried to "cluck up" the sturdy Jack. Then he resorted to strategy. The pair of mules had been mated together so long that Ida knew exactly how far ahead to keep her nose so she could maintain the advantage on the doubletree. So Amos lengthened her traces by three links.

The scheme worked. Ida kept her nose as far ahead as usual, but the longer traces allowed the double tree to lag back. All day Amos watched it stand squarely balanced across the pole.

"You ain't monkeyin' me now, mule," he chuckled. "Any time you think you's monkeyin' me— well, you's monkeyin' yo'self. Hit never was a she jackass which kin monkey me. I don't keer is it a she mule or a she woman. Ain't nobody kin monkey me. Mule or woman."

That night he added another verse to his already long song:

"Bawn in de country, and I's raised in town.
I'm a hard-tail skinner f'm my
haid on down.
I guess I'm satisfied."

But Ida hadn't been in a levee camp for years just to let the first skinner that floated in get the best of her. Nor were her shoulders and legs covered with jack stripes merely for ornamentation. The very first time the wheeler was loaded the next morning she paid Amos back.

The wheeler had stopped, and the snatch team was hooked on. The loader held the Johnson bar; and Amos stepped close to the snatch-team driver so he could start his team with the leaders. Ida stood in her tracks as innocently as a dove.

"Git away," signaled the loader and both drivers whistled softly to their teams. The mules moved forward slowly, and the lip of the shovel bit into the earth, the straining of muscle and singing of leather, and the wheeler was loaded. It required but a fractional part of a minute. But that was enough for Ida. For as soon as the sudden load bore upon her collar she sat back in her breeching instead of straining forward with the other mules. They not only had to load without her aid, but they had to drag her along while they were doing it.

"You, Ida!" shouted Amos, and he snapped her with the long end of the line.

But when the stinging leather fell across her rump the wheeler was loaded, the Johnson bar in place, and the burden nothing but two yards of loose earth mounted on wheels.

Ida lunged, throwing her 1,200 pounds into the collar and driving the breast yoke into the rumps of the snatching team.

"Boy, whyn't you drive dem mules!" railed the snatch-team skinner.

"How'd I know she was gonter see-saw?" grumbled Amos.

While the teams were being untangled the other wheelers drove up behind Amos and waited. The boss man swore at the delay.

"If you can't drive 'em, I got a man that can," he said. "Knock 'em in the collar or turn 'em in the corral. Don't block the dirt rolling."

The talk, re-enforced by a few jeers from other drivers, made Amos mad.

"I'm gonter git me a club," he promised, "and I'm gonter knock mo' hell out'n dis old strumpet den she got in her."

"Nothin' but leather in dis camp," warned the snatch-team driver. "Did you club one er ole Doll'n-a-Haf's buzzard baits, he'd start a nigger funeral befo' you c'd bat yo' eyes."

AMOS was disgusted, but he was not beaten. He fastened a piece of chain from Ida's doubletree to the axle of the wheeler and then connived with the snatch-team driver. When the loading process started again Ida set back in her breeching, the same as before, while the other mules dug their hoofs into the ground for the pull.

"You, Ida!" shouted Amos, and he stung her with the line. And Ida lunged again.

She did not drive the breast yoke into the rumps of the leaders that time. When she lunged she threw her whole weight into a solid collar. She scrambled and pawed a minute before she regained her feet. The trick had worked.

"Dat fixed her," laughed Amos. "She loaded hit by she-se'f dat time." And that was what she had done. The snatch team had not been hooked on, and Ida's lunge threw her weight into a collar that was connected directly to the axle of the wheeler by the traces and stay chain.

Amos was tremendously pleased. "Yeah, yeah," he chuckled. "Any time you think you's monkeyin' me, you's jest barkin' up de wrong stump." Outsmartin' a smart old levee mule was something to make a boy proud of himself and happy with his job.

But Ida would not have it that way. She tried her loading trick once more, failed and abandoned it. Then she started "spreading" and "picking around," aggravating Amos and imposing upon Jack.

"You need a good beating, mule," Amos declared, and he changed to her side of the team, where he could administer the end of the line more conveniently. The walking was hard. But Ida had to behave.

After a few rounds he changed to Jack's side, and immediately Ida started spreading and prancing again.

"Jest like a dam' woman," Amos declared. "Weary de soul out'n a man." And he changed back to Ida's side.

FOR two hot, weary hours he trudged conscientiously by Ida's side. "I bet I wish I could take a club to you," he grumbled and flapped her with the line. "Ef'n hit ain't one thing, hit's two." Whack! "Wawkin' 'long hyar, cheatin' on dat hard-workin' mule, and devilin' my soul out about nothin'." Whack! "Weary a man's pants off and den cheat." Whack!

When night came Amos was tired. He ate his supper disinterestedly and went to his tent. He sat down and began picking at his guitar futilely. It sounded dead. After a while he applied the steel back of his pocketknife to the frets while he picked the strings. A nasal, wistful whine resulted. He sang sadly:

"Sick and tired and a long ways
f'm home.
Nobody don't love me; got no-
whar to go.
'Cused me of forgin', and I can't write my name.
'Cused me of murder, and I ain't harmed no man."

"Got de old down-in-de-mouts, ain't you, Singin' Boy?" It was Jo Hanna, who had wandered out to listen.

"Killed my triflin' woman, 'cause
she done me wrong.
Sheriff say hit's murder; I ain't harm no man.
I ain't harmed nobody; locked me in de jail.
Killed my triflin' woman; I ain't harmed no man."

"Got em' bad, ain't you?"

Amos played and sang for a long, dreary half-hour, and Jo Hanna listened in silence.

"What you had for supper, Singin' Boy?" she asked finally.

Amos stopped playing. "Nothin' but de same ole 76," he replied. "Cabbages. Whupperwill peas. And stuff."

"I fed Reuben on ham shanks and hot biscuits and stuff like dat," Jo Hanna volunteered. She got up and left, and in a few minutes Amos put away his guitar and went to sleep.

Next morning, when the boss man made his rounds to see that the teams were harnessed and hooked up properly, he discovered the chain on Ida's doubletree.

"Take it off, boy," he ordered. "This ain't no game you're playing."

Amos removed the chain. All the zest had gone out of his job now. It was nothing but work. In a few minutes Ida was back at her old tricks of throwing most of the load on her mate. But Amos did not care.

"HAM shanks and hot biscuits, hunh?" he said. The team walked round and round. The wheeler was loaded and unloaded. "Heap mo' better en dat rotten ole 76 at the grub tent. Cabbages and whupperwill peas. Ugh!"

"Jo Hanna, don't you grieve 'bout
one dime.
Jo Hanna, don't you grieve bout
one dime.
I'll give you mo' money den de wheeler kin haul.
Jo Hanna, don't you grieve bout
one dime."

"Got you singin', is she?" asked the snatch driver. "Well, ole Jo had a heap er mens singin'."

"Jo—who?"

"Who?" repeated the driver. "Yo' feets don't fit no limb, boy. You know Jo who. Dat stingaree woman which is boa'din' de stable boss. Dat's who."

"She think she got a stingaree, hunh?"

"She don't think she got. She got."

"Talk like you knows somethin' 'bout her?"

The driver grinned. "Humph!" he grunted ominously.

"Yeah?" Amos drove on.

"Hungry, tired an' lonesome, blue as I can be.
Woman, woman, woman, don't pull dat thing on me.
Stingaree."

That night Amos took inventory. He had four dollars and a cheap pistol that he had taken from somewhere. Probably some woman. He didn't remember. And almost a full week's wages coming. The pistol would scare off Reuben, and the money would interest Jo Hanna.

He got his guitar down and assumed the role of a bad man. He sang bad songs. Mean, bad songs:

"John Hardy went to de gamblin' house.
Didn't have no money for to spend, Lawd.
'Long come a lady wid a doller in her hand.
Say, leave John Hardy in de game. Lawd, Lawd!"

"Must be gittin' ready to do some gamblin' on pay day," giggled Jo Hanna. "Singin' bout bad old John Hardy."

"He wa'n't no badder den me," Amos declared. And to demonstrate, he pulled the pistol from his shirt front, flourished it, and then put it on the ground in front of him.

"Been to de East, and been to de West.
And I done been alround, Lawd.
Shot me a gambler wid my forty-fo gun.
Now I'm standin' on my hangin' ground, Lawd, Lawd.
Standin' on my hangin' ground."

"Bad nigger, hunh?" Reuben asked coldly and he picked up the pistol.

AMOS started to protest. But Reuben was a mink-eyed man. So he sat quietly while the stable boss broke the gun, took the cartridges from the cylinder and pocketed them and the pistol.

For the next two days the air was charged with talk of pay day.

"Do I make me a killin' dis pay day," confided the snatch-team driver to Amos—"well, I'm gonter hit for Texas. Or maybe N'Awlins. Dey tells me de women is so thick in N'Awlins dat you got to fight 'em off with a stick."

"Yeah?" Amos had heard that

Saturday the men were paid off. The women gathered about the gambling games that sprang up on all sides. Craps, skin and blackjack, mostly. A few conservatives stuck to five-up at a dollar on the corner, but that was too slow. Craps and skin were faster.

Too fast for Amos. Before sundown his whole wages and the extra four dollars he had brought to camp had disappeared. By supper time the word buzzed around that Reuben was "makin' a killin'." "Lucky as a dog," they said. "Done busted up de crap games, an' now he's skinnin' wid his hat full er money and a world full of luck."

NEXT morning was Sunday and there was no work. But Amos was sad. The first news he heard was that Reuben actually had won heavily. "Six hund'ed dollars, and a handful of change." Amos had hoped that some luckier gambler would break Reuben before the money was won. Jo Hanna certainly would stick to Reuben now, and he was dead broke, too.

"Workin' on de railroad, puttin' down cold steel.
Lawd, Lawd, de hotter de sun shine, de better I feel."

His song was interrupted by an argument outside his tent. He stopped playing.

"Naw, I ain't gonter give you no money." It was Reuben. "I ain't gonter give you nothin'. You been doublin' up on me wid dat song-singin' boy, and I ain't givin' you no money nor nothin'."

"Aw, sugar—"

"Yo' sugar ain't gittin' you none 'er my money. I'm gonter take hit to N'Awlins and find me a woman which'll take keer of hit for me."

Amos rolled under the side of the tent and watched the pair disappear into their tent. Jo Hanna alternately begged and cursed, and Reuben steadfastly stood by his decision that he was not going to divide the money.

PRESENTLY Reuben emerged. He was dressed in his best clothes—a gray and black striped suit, a black derby hat and a pair of bright yellow shoes.

"Not a dam' cent ef'n you's dyin'," he declared.

"Aw, baby, now—"

Reuben sat down, removed one of his shoes, and began cutting slashes across the toes of it. "Go on now and shut up," he commanded. "My cawn is hurtin' me, and hit's makin' me mad. I'm liable to git up and stick dis knife in you." He centered his attention on the shoe.

Jo Hanna walked up behind him quietly, opened a razor that she had concealed in the folds of her skirt, and placed the edge of the blade against Reuben's Adam's apple.

"Gimme dat money," she said in a low, cold voice.

Reuben did not even look around. He stuck his hand into a pocket, drew out the roll of bills, and handed it over his shoulder to her.

Jo Hanna stuck the roll into the top of her stocking. "And de change, too," she added.

Reuben produced the change, and Jo Hanna put it in her apron pocket. "Now," she said, "put dat shoe on and drag yo'se'f on away f'm me befo' I gits mad and whittles on you. And don't never come back. Onderstand!"

Reuben understood. He laced the shoe hurriedly, and in a minute he was on top of the levee, headed for Baton Rouge.

Amos waited until Reuben was well out of sight, and then he started singing:

"He left his brown standin' in de do'.
What you reckon she said? 'Can't use you no mo'."

"I sho' can't use dat squinch-eyed runt," Jo Hanna declared with good-natured friendliness. "He w'an't no 'count."

AMOS played and played and sang foolish songs for Jo Hanna. The guitar wasn't going so well, but Jo Hanna seemed to be satisfied.

"I got somethin' good to eat over at my tent, Singin' Boy," she declared. "Mo' gooder den dat whupperwill peas and stuff."

"I might be round for dinner," Amos promised.

"Hit'll be somethin' good for supper, too, maybe," Jo Hanna pressed.

Amos enjoyed the dinner of baked ham, crackling bread and fresh corn. After dinner he serenaded her some more, but his guitar wasn't right. There was a wistfulness in its music that Amos did not intend to put there.

Jo Hanna listened for awhile and finally she dozed. "I believe I'm gonter rest my eyes some, Singin' Boy," she said.

"Go to it, good-lookin'," Amos agreed. He continued to play abstractedly, and the strings continued to cut up. Maybe he was thinking of that job on the Yellow Dog Railroad:

"Workin' on de Yaller Dog, doll'n a dime a day.
Give some fool woman de dollar;
th'ow de dime away."

Jo Hanna snored. Her mouth was open, and her thick lips vibrated noisily when she exhaled.

"Good golly!!" Amos ejaculated. "Face looks like a hollow stump. No wonder Reuben didn't raise no fuss about dat money. Hit's worth mo'n dat to git away f'm dat ugly thing."

Or maybe he was thinking of the women in New Orleans that you had to fight off with a stick.

"Hyared about a yaller woman,
Live over back er town.
Make a jack rabbit fight a bulldog,
Make a mule kick his stable down."

It took money to get a woman like that. Amos knew where there was some money.

He put his guitar down and crept to the side of the bunk where Jo Hanna snored. One hand raised her skirt slightly above her knee, and the other extracted the roll of money from her stocking. "She kin keep de change," he laughed.

In no time he had pocketed the money and gained the top of the levee.

"Buy me a ticket in Baton Rouge," he decided, "and ride de plush into N'Awlins."

HE ARRIVED in Baton Rouge soon after daylight, and after a hearty breakfast at the depot he learned that the New Orleans train was not due until nearly noon. A whole morning with nothing to do but sleep. But where?

Laura! Amos grinned as the idea came to him. He would spend the morning with her, make friends with her and about the time he had done that it would be time to walk off and catch the train. She would be mad at that. He walked up the hill and across town to her house.

"Who dat?" came from within when he rapped.

"Hit's me," he replied. "Amos."

"Amos—who?"

"Who?" he repeated. "Yo' feet don' fit limbs like a who-owl, gal. Open dat do'."

Ominous silence from within. Amos waited for a while.

"Aw, Laura, you ain't forgot me dat quick, I know," he insisted. "An' me down yonder in de levee camp wearin' my knuckles out gamblin' for you."

"Did you winned?"

"'Cose I winned, baby," Amos declared. "An' I brang hit all back to Mamma."

Another brief silence, and the door opened. "Come in, darlin'," Laura invited sweetly.

AMOS walked in, boldly, confidently. Then he stopped suddenly. Back in the corner he spied Reuben, toying with that pistol.

"Well?" Reuben inquired with a cold, proprietary air. "Le's see dat money."

Amos faltered.

"Wha—why—what dis about, gal?"

"No mind," Laura replied. "You hyared my man say le's see 'at money and you better le's see hit too."

Amos hesitated.

"And le's see hit quick, too," urged Reuben. "Or else I'm gonter shoot a little hole right in yo' foot." He pointed the pistol at Amos' underpinnings.

Amos handed Laura the roll of money.

"Now git on down de road," she commanded. "My sweetheart is liable to git mad at you, and I don't want my house gittin' a hard name wid de poleese, jest cause a crazy fool like you gits shot in hit."

Amos walked down the street until he came to a side street that was lined with big trees. He sat down in the shade, took his guitar from his shoulder and began pulling at the strings. They vibrated smoothly:

"Got me a job on de Yaller Dog puttin' down cold steel.
De mo' de women don't bother me, well, de better I feel."

He had a copy of a radiogram in which the German agent in Holland authorized the German agent in Spain to advance her several thousand dollars.

The evidence, as at her trial later, was overwhelming. Except for one or two nervous outbreaks she saw the whole thing through with perfect fortitude. Although Major Coulson says there is strong evidence to show that up to the very last she believed she would be rescued by her influential friends. She had been informed that the bullets in the rifles of the firing squad had been withdrawn and blanks substituted. Which may or may not explain the superb manner in which she met her death. She refused to have her eyes bandaged and stood before the upraised rifles of her executioners with a faint smile on her face and waving a handkerchief at them.

AT PRESENT Dr. Heller is correcting the proofs of his latest book, which he has called "Faust and Faustus." It is a scholarly work, to be published in the series of Washington University studies of which Dr. Heller is editor. It traces the origin of Goethe's "Faust" back to Christopher Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus," through a maze of allusions and references and by way of a penetrating study of the kinship of mind of Marlowe and Goethe. This book will take its place shortly on the shelf beside Dr. Heller's other works, one of which is a novel he wrote in German at 20, called "Revenge." His is the only copy in existence, so far as he has been able to discover.

In addition to his routine academic duties, which take up most of his time, frequent demands are made upon Dr. Heller. Recently he went to Washington to testify before the congressional committee considering the purchase of the Vollbehr collection of incunabula. He often lectures in various parts of the country.

And yet Dr. Heller finds time for diverse personal contacts. He has a very keen eye for the foibles of the human species and, in consequence, a rich store of anecdote.

He tells how he tried to learn to drive a car some years ago. The firm from which he had purchased the automobile sent out a young man to instruct him in the intricacies of gear shifts and stop lights. The instructor first insisted that Dr. Heller back the car out of the garage and down a long driveway. On the first attempt he ran the car into the house. Later, when repairs had been made, the instructor turned the steering wheel over to Dr. Heller in the thick of traffic on Lindell boulevard. For a block or two, until they came to the intersection opposite Jefferson Memorial, everything went well.

BUT here was a crisis. After a minute or two of waiting, the instructor said, "It's your chance, now go." Dr. Heller in a fine frenzy aimed directly at a telephone pole on the opposite corner, and it was only because the young instructor jerked the wheel out of his hand that a serious crash was averted.

When they finally pulled up to the curb, the young man turned to his pupil and said, "Professor, if you want to drive a car, you've got to learn to think."

To lessen the resistance when the boat is going at high speed the inclosed cabin has been streamlined in front and sloped down toward the stern on top. Young Dudley, the owner and inventor, has always been strongly interested in aeronautics and has taken instruction in flying, but failed of a pilot's license owing to his eyesight. He has always been interested in boats, too, and conceived the idea of combining in one craft a boat of the sea-sled type and an airplane of the seaplane type.

The boat part has been called a scow hull, but it is far from that, in spite of its snub-nosed bow and flat bottom. It lacks the bluff lines of a scow, it sits higher in the water and has a much higher bow than the ordinary sea sled. Dudley says that she will rise on the water like a flat stone skipped from crest to crest, barely touching as she goes.

Not the least unusual part of the craft is the steering arrangement. There is a big, automobile-type steering wheel, hung ship fashion, and a dual set of controls with half-wheels that operate the ailerons and elevators. These can be handled separately, by a co-pilot, or together, being of the locking type.

Dudley has patented the craft, and has prepared blueprints for a much smaller size, built on exactly the same lines, to accommodate three people. This would be 18 feet long, and he believes that it can develop a speed of 120 to 140 miles an hour, smashing all existing hydroplane records.

When he starts on his trans-Atlantic voyage he plans not only to cross eastward, but, to make the round trip. He will start for Florida in a few weeks and put the boat through her paces there. Then he will start eastward from Florida and head for Spain, continuing up the coast to England, with the return hop from England to Boston direct.

With him to help navigate, as co-pilot, will be his head mechanic, Herman C. Downing of Chillicothe, Ohio, and D. B. McDonald will go as assistant. If this Atlantic trip is successful, business men stand ready to build a five-motor craft carrying 75 to 100 passengers, to cost $125,000. It will have double deck, staterooms and dining rooms and develop the same speed as the Silver Eagle.

ATTORNEY-AT-LARGE

Advice for Innocent Graduates of Law Schools.

NEXT June American universities will uncork several thousand more lawyers. The vast number of lawyers already loose in this country is shown by the fact there is almost one lawyer for every writer that has a column on New York. When they add the June crop there will be practically one lawyer for every law. If this pace is maintained for a few more years, Congress will have to set aside a preserve for them.

A law school is somewhat different from the other colleges of a university. Boys who attend the colleges of architecture, dentistry or engineering become architects, dentists and engineers, but boys who attend law school never know what business they are going into until after they graduate. A minimum of five years is required to train them for this profession, whatever it is. Hence the various institutions might revamp their courses in order to offer such degrees as "Doctor of Laws and Sheet-Metal Worker," "Doctor of Laws and Piano Tuning" and (what is needed most of all) "Doctor of Laws and Washing-Machine Demonstration."

The graduation harangue of the average dean winds up something like this: "And so, kind friends, it is our great pleasure to send out 233 lawyers to tackle the well-known world. To these gents I need only say that opportunities were never greater, whether they become bond salesmen, jockeys, plumbers, railway mail clerks, house painters, organists, osteopaths or poultry farmers. Now, then, let's all unite in a rip-snorting 'Oski wow wow' for dear old Wayward."

If the dean faints during the exercises it will not be caused by the humidity but by the shock when some graduate declares that he's going to practice law.

The law profession is simply saturated with ethics and one ethic has it that no young lawyer shall make over $7.20 his first three years of practice. This precedent was set some time ago by several of the great jurists now cluttering up our dockets and should be scrupulously observed. Any sum in excess of $7.20 should be turned over to a worth-while charity, either local or national.

It might be well to include a few short notes telling what money looks like, so that no young lawyer will throw away a $1 bill in the belief that it is an advertising circular. The Government puts up its paper money in green certificates, measuring about 6x2 1-2 inches and the $1 bills bear a picture of Washington while the $2 bills have a picture of Jefferson, and it is understood from reliable sources that the $5 bills show a picture of Lincoln. Then there are the various metal coins which may be seen on exhibition in the cigar box of any corner news stand.

IT IS most advisable to have a nice selection of clothes in order to look your best when gentlemen friends pounce on you for gratuitous legal advice and lady friends hand you cases involving maids, cooks, chauffeurs, gardeners, and janitors who can't afford to pay fees. There may not be any money in it for you; but, oh boy, the experience. A fair wardrobe would consist of about 10 business suits, five informal lounge suits, three Tuxedos, two full-dress suits, 16 pairs of shoes, seven hats, golf, tennis and motor apparel and a pair of skiis. Lawyers who live in the Sunny South may omit the skiis but will have to add another pair of flannel trousers.

A young lawyer should always team up with another and establish a firm, as the overhead will be lower and pinochle-rummy is much more diverting than solitaire. Friends and relatives usually send flowers to a new firm just starting in business. If you are smart, you will state on your announcement cards that flowers give you hay fever and that congratulations can be expressed just as effectively in fruit, canned goods, vegetables, pastries and so forth. This move would net you a few days' provisions, which you could keep in a cool, dry and empty place, such as your safe.

In order to create a favorable impression a new law firm should rent about seven rooms in some modern office building, ranging anywhere from 10 to 62 stories in height and equip the suite with well-selected furniture and fixtures. Each desk should be of hand-carved English oak or some other high-class timber and include hot accessories, such as double-barreled telephone, ornamental bronze ash trays (lions, elephants or other mammals) and one of those long, spear-like fountain pens with the individual garage. Put a neat gilt sign on the door such as "Wowser & Zibble, Attorneys, Lawing Done Reasonable."

Study the larger movie theaters for what to obtain in the way of knickknacks. These might include some Arak and Sarouk rugs, a gold-leaf bronze and marble fireside set, French lyre clock, antique chased-silver lamps, hand-painted porcelains, Flemish tapestries and brocade hangings. Such equipment would make your office a very acceptable club for carbon-paper, adding-machine, check-writer and Chinese-bulb salesmen. Don't forget the ivory piano. This could be placed in the reception room and would be appreciated by salesmen who are musically inclined.

IN THE way of pictures, you need a facsimile of the Declaration of Independence, some sketches of famous jurists and a photograph of the current President. The President will doubtless be pleased to send you his photograph for the asking, if you inclose return postage, and you need not trouble yourself to buy pictures of famous jurists. Just browse around in the attic until you find some views of whiskered relatives, place them in your office to represent Blackstone, Coke and John Marshall and nobody will know the difference. If they do notice a discrepancy, they will probably be too polite to mention it.

An adequate corps of stenographers and office boys should be engaged to harmonize with the fixtures. These people will doubtless be pleased to lend cigarette and newspaper money to all members of the firm.

Always bear in mind the ethics. It is considered unethical to accept cases from relatives, neighbors, lodge brothers or people who have the same political affiliation.

By and by a real client will come in. You can always tell a client. He sits down in the reception room and rocks back and forth, moaning and holding his knee or ankle.

"I'm Homer Gilp," the man will tell you. "I tried to pay my fare with a $10 bill, but the conductor wouldn't accept it and threw me off of the car while it was moving. I got a good sock on the jaw and multiple bruises and abrasions when I landed on the coal pile. I wish to bring suit immediately."

"Your case is palpably fraudulent," you reply stiffly, "and I refuse to have anything to do with it. There's no such thing as a $10 bill."

"Oh, yes there is," says the client, producing one. "What do you think this is, a vinegar label?"

Being a truly ethical lawyer, you jump to your feet and confront the man with blazing eyes. He cringes.

"Ask me to take this case, do you?" you snarl. "What brought you here in the first place? Just dropped in because I happen to be conveniently located, eh? Well, that's contrary to the code of our profession. How do you know I'm the best man to handle this suit? Ha, you don't know! Let me tell you, sir, that there are dozens and dozens of lawyers in this town who are very capable indeed, and if you'll take the trouble to look around you'll probably find a better man than I am. Get out of here immediately and don't you dare come back unless you're absolutely convinced that I'm the right counsel for this matter!"

Then you hand him his hat, glare at him scornfully and slam the door in his face.

In time you will probably succeed, despite the ethics. There are some lawyers in the country who are so successful that they don't have to call up the bank every time they pay their office rent. And when they attend the theater they can afford to sit where the programs have covers on them.

All around you, you see them, these modern women who stay young. Their secret—known to millions—is one that every woman with graying hair should know—the famous clear, colorless liquid called Mary T. Goldman's. By this time-tested way women are safely bringing youthful color to faded strands—so evenly and so smoothly that you would think nature herself had put it there.

You Need No Experience

Mary T. Goldman's method is not involved. It can be done at home. Merely comb colorless liquid through the hair. Any type of hair can be matched—whether black, brown, auburn or blonde. The color blends evenly and smoothly. Hair becomes lustrous, live-looking—stays easy to curl or wave. No "artificial" look. Nor will color wash or rub off on linens or hat linings.

Entirely SAFE to Use

Do not confuse this method with radical hair coloring preparations. Mary T. Goldman's has been used successfully and safely by discriminating women for over a quarter of a century. Prominent medical school authorities have pronounced it harmless to hair and scalp.

THE EASIEST BEAUTY HABIT I EVER FORMED

These new Du Barry Preparations and the new Du Barry Hand Principle bring the Beauty Salon to your own home.

DU BARRY
BEAUTY TREATMENTS
HOME METHOD—HAND PRINCIPLE

Of course, Beauty must be a habit. Just imagine what a lovely, soft, glowing skin you'd have—firm, supple, fine-textured—if some professional masseuse gave you her treatments every day.

"That's out of the question," you say. But it isn't. With just your own resilient finger tips and muscular palms, you can give yourself the same care, quite easily and simply, in your own home.

For these preparations were created especially for women who know nothing of professional methods. The sparkling tonic lotions, aromatic oils, soft lubricating creams are the result of years of special scientific research and embody new ingredients never before used in beauty aids, to render them safe, pure and effective for home use.

The treatments are so simple, so easily grasped! With each Du Barry purchase comes the little handbook which explains each treatment in detail. It may be the way to smooth out frown lines that you will want to work on. Or those hateful little lines around the mouth or eyes. Or the way to prevent sagging cheek and chin muscles. Or to bring color to sallow cheeks. Or any one of a number of marks, left by the passing years.

RICHARD HUDNUT'S GOLDEN JUBILEE 50 YEARS OF CREATING BEAUTY PRODUCTS

Each treatment takes only a few minutes—and just the day by day care will bring you a soft, youthful loveliness in an amazingly brief space of time.

This is the Du Barry Way to have a Lovely Neck and Throat

"First a thorough cleansing with Du Barry Cleansing Cream and Skin Tonic and Freshener. Then smooth Tissue Cream or Skin Food generously over the neck, working with both hands from the upper chest to the chin (Tissue Cream is best for normal or oily skins; Skin Food is a special lubricant for skins that are dry and rough). Your hands should circle the neck, pressing, smoothing gently upward along the throat column. When the cream is worked in, oil the inner surface of the hand, palm and fingers, with Muscle Oil, and repeat the upward smoothing motion with alternate hands. . . Then saturate cotton with Special Astringent, and smooth from the base of the neck upward, using the Cushion tips of the fingers."

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Absorb blemishes and discolorations by regularly using Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce, and use as directed. Tiny particles of aged skin peel off, until tan, freckles, large pores and other blemishes disappear. Skin is beautifully clear, soft and velvety, and face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty. To reduce wrinkles and other age lines, use this face lotion: 1 ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel. At Drug and Dept. Stores everywhere.

"Teacher of half the Doctors of Europe"

... he recommends yeast for 3 great modern ills

GERMANY'S most beloved medical figure—Geheimrat Dr. Friedrich Kraus, Professor Emeritus of the University of Berlin!

Half the great doctors of Europe, it is said, have studied under Dr. Kraus. For 20 years he headed Germany's most important clinic.

For three great health troubles—constipation and disorders of digestion and the skin—Dr. Kraus urges the remarkable food, fresh yeast.

"Until recently," he says, "few people realized that constipation is injurious to the whole system. Drastic cathartics and habit-forming pills often were depended on. Little was done to correct the cause of the condition.

"Yeast stimulates the intestines to normal, healthy action. Regular evacuations occur. Normal digestion is restored. Skin disorders such as pimples and boils are combated."

Follow this great physician's advice! Every day eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast. Each cake is rich in two precious vitamins—B and D. At grocers', restaurants, soda fountains. Directions on the label.

"'Yeast will help you,' my doctor explained—"

(Left) "For some time I had suffered from intestinal trouble," writes MISS NORMA HENDERSON from Toronto (at right, in photograph). "I was very weak, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything. When our doctor was consulted he said he thought yeast would do me a lot of good. And it did! My friends remark on how well I seem."

(Right) "Twenty-four boils—all over my back and shoulders!" writes CLIFTON PRINCE of Worcester, Mass. "I was the most miserable person alive . . . Seeing a cake of yeast under a microscope convinced me. It was full of living yeast plants! I started to eat it and the result was miraculous. Since then all my family have eaten it. A doctor advised it for my grandchild. My son eats it as a laxative and tonic."

READ WHAT THESE GREAT DOCTORS SAY · ·

DR. LORENZO CHERUBINI, Professor of Medical Pathology at the University of Rome, declares: "Yeast is invaluable in treating disturbances of the intestines, of digestion and of the skin."

DR. PAUL GERBER, noted internal specialist, says, "The creation of the 'sunshine' vitamin D by irradiating yeast should be a boon to millions who are indoors most of the day. Vitamin D builds hard bones and teeth and helps keep them strong. Because of its richness in vitamin D and vitamin B, yeast is a source of renewing energy and endurance."

Fleischmann's Yeast (with the familiar yellow label) is the only yeast that contains "sunshine vitamin."

Unguarded Women

Soap and water was once all there was to the bath. But now Boyer has developed a measure of protection without which many women and men would not venture forth.

For here is a new habit . . . a luxurious, satisfying habit that perfects the bath . . . a dainty habit that effectively guards against any suggestion of unpleasant body odor, which even soap and water cleanliness does not always remove.

Boyer's After-the-Bath Talc neutralizes body odors and will keep the skin sweet for several hours. Always use it after bathing. This precaution is well worth while, as many women and men know. It insures a personal daintiness that effectively relieves the fastidious from worry.

Soap and water is necessary. Then Boyer's After-the-Bath Talc—Always! A purring shower of its cool softness applied with the luxurious big puff that is in every box. The protection lasts long after the effects of the bath have worn away. Truly a most satisfying perfection . . . no wonder it is so popular.

Perfumed with a subdued fragrance that accentuates the refreshing odor of soap and water cleanliness, Boyer's After-the-Bath Talc leaves the body with a rose petal freshness, characteristic of aristocratic living. Your druggist has Boyer beauty preparations.

Boyer Broadcasts

Tune in on Boyer's programs of appealing love songs. KWK, 10:14 P. M. Wednesdays.

NOTE:
Boyer has induced a titled Parisian, Countess Louise de Lorme, to help his customers with beauty problems. In every Boyer package is a card entitling you to free beauty advice direct from the Countess at Paris.

Science shows you the secret of Old Dutch Cleanser's efficiency, safety and economy

The microscope shows, as pictured in the illustration to the right, that the particles of Old Dutch Cleanser are flaky and flat-shaped. These unique, soft particles lie flat on the surface and come in full contact with it . . . not simply touching the surface with hard sharp points like chunky grit does and naturally they cover more surface. This explains the secret of Old Dutch Cleanser's efficiency, safety and economy.

Old Dutch is perfect . . . it cleans without scratching the surface, it contains no scratchy grit or crude abrasives. You will convince yourself by making this simple test. Sprinkle a little Old Dutch on the porcelain drain board of your sink; take a smooth coin, lay it on top of the cleanser and rub gently. You won't feel or hear the scratching of harsh, gritty particles. Avoid scratchy cleaners. They make scratches which destroy the beauty of the surface and are lodging places for health endangering invisible impurities.

Old Dutch Cleanser is the greatest advance in modern cleaning efficiency. It is the safest, most convenient and practical method of cleaning. The flaky, flat-shaped particles of "seismotite" which form the basis of Old Dutch Cleanser possess a natural distinctive, detergent energy. They capture and remove the invisible impurities as well as the visible dirt. Old Dutch, therefore, protects your home and family with Healthful Cleanliness.

Old Dutch has innumerable uses. In the kitchen; for pots and pans, all kitchen utensils, for cleaning the sink, stove, kitchen cabinet, painted walls and woodwork, etc. In the bathroom, Old Dutch quickly and easily removes the unsightly water rings, stain and soap accumulations in the bathtubs and washbowls, for cleaning metal fixtures, tile, wall and floors, etc.

Old Dutch is perfectly adapted for cleaning modern colored as well as snow-white porcelain and enamel. The use of Old Dutch exclusively assures the lasting beauty of these fine surfaces because it is free from acid and caustic which dull their lustre and it doesn't scratch because it is free from harsh, chunky grit.

There is nothing else like it

Today GULISTAN revolutionizes every existing idea about rugs

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Oriental Rug Luxury at $150

for the 9 x 12 foot size: other sizes in proportion (prices higher in Canada)

Every woman knows why she has longed for Oriental rug luxury.

Because she wants that transformation of glorious beauty which it works in any room.

And now you can have it in an American rug at $150 on the authority of the largest maker of Oriental rugs, Karagheusian.

The same jewel-like colors!

The same masterpieces of characteristic Oriental design!

And above all, the unmistakable lustrous sheen!

Gulistan can only be made by Karagheusian. It is the American product of this famous House, whose native weavers in Persia and China supply America with so many costly rugs.

In Gulistan you have the same sturdy Oriental wool yarns, the finest dyes, the very same finishing processes as you get in a thousand dollar imported Oriental.

Go to your favorite department or furniture store and see Gulistan for yourself.

In the past, families have saved up for years to own such luxury . . and now friends will envy it in your home!

Look for the silken label reproduced below.

This world-famous signature is on the back of every Gulistan Rug.

And remember, the stores have many Gulistan designs to show you as well as the famous one featured here.

500 YEAR OLD DESIGN...WORTH A FORTUNE

recreated in a Gulistan Rug! See it at your store now!

A carpet that "scholars rate among the first half dozen of ancient carpets now in existence."

So says the Official Handbook of the Pennsylvania Museum of Art, where the original of this Gulistan hangs today!

It was woven 88 years before America was discovered, when Tamerlane the Great reached the height of his power in Samarkand! Note particularly the cypress trees, expressing life eternal, which make up the rich field of this rug!

Wealthy collectors have spent fortunes acquiring a rug like this old Persian masterpiece! Museums cherish such rugs as their most priceless possessions.

To have reproduced this famous design in a Gulistan rug, with such amazing fidelity and beauty, represents an outstanding achievement in American loomcraft.

Six different color schemes to harmonize with your interiors. See all six and make your choice.

Pattern number is Gulistan 25082. It is available in twenty-two different sizes, ranging from 22½ inches by 36 inches ($10) to 11 feet 3 inches by 21 feet ($435).

This label is the signature of the largest maker of Oriental Rugs: Karagheusian. It guarantees that you are getting GULISTAN.

THERE'S THE DOORBELL. IT'S THE LANDLORD. I SAW HIM COMING UP THE WALK. DON'T FORGET TO TELL HIM ABOUT—
DON'T WORRY, I'LL TELL HIM PLENTY. LET ME THINK......WHAT ALL CAN I COMPLAIN ABOUT?
SORRY TO DISTURB YOU SIR. DIDN'T KNOW YOU'D BE IN BED. ASLEEP. THIS EARLY IN THE EVENING.
I WASN'T ASLEEP. THE LONG WAIT YOU HAD WAS BECAUSE I WAS TRYING TO OPEN THIS DOOR. IT SWELLS EVERY TIME WE HAVE EVEN A FEW DROPS OF RAIN.
SPEAKING OF DOORS REMINDS ME THAT ALL OF THEM SWELL UP LIKE TOY BALLOONS EVERY TIME IT RAINS. THIS CLOSET DOOR FOR INSTANCE. LOOK! I'M USING BOTH HANDS AND ALL MY STRENGTH TO PULL IT — OPEN!
WHOOIE!
IT OPENED THAT TIME BY CHANCE. HOWEVER LET'S GET TO A MORE IMPORTANT MATTER. JUST STEP AHEAD WITH ME TO OUR BATHROOM.
THESE FAUCETS. NEITHER OF THEM WORK. NOW AND THEN WE GET A LITTLE WATER BUT LATELY........LOOK, I'M USING BOTH HANDS ON THIS ONE AND THE RESULT IS..............MY WORD, WATER! LOTS OF IT! FOR ONCE!
WELL, BUNGLE, I MUST HURRY ON NOW AND—WAIT! THERE WAS ANOTHER MATTER. SOMETHING REAL IMPORTANT. LET ME THINK ....? OH, YES, COME OUT IN THE HALL PLEASE.
THIS CRACK IN THE FLOOR. EVERY TIME I GO IN OR OUT IT THROWS ME LIKE THIS..........I DIDN'T QUITE GET MY FOOT CAUGHT IN IT THAT TIME. WAIT, I'LL TRY AGAIN AND—
NO, I MUST GO NOW.
LISTEN.........ON YOUR WAY OUT. LOOK AT THIS BANISTER.......HOW IT SHAKES WHEN I PUT A LITTLE WEIGHT ON IT. LOOK! MY WORD, IT'S TIGHTER NOW. WONT BUDGE. WAIT, LET ME SHOW YOU.
AU REVOIR!
SUCH LUCK. AFTER KISSING THAT LANDLORD GOODBYE I COME UPSTAIRS AND FIND OUT I JUST HAPPENED TO GRAB THE ONLY TIGHT RUNG ON THAT BANISTER WHILE COMPLAINING TO THAT DIZZY LANDLORD. AND—
AND—WHOO!
WHOOIE! THAT PLACE IN THE HALL THREW ME AGAIN.
AND THOSE FAUCETS DO NOT WORK NOW. I TRIED THEM AFTER YOU AND THE LANDLORD LEFT. AND I CAN'T GET THE CLOSET DOOR OPEN. I JUST TRIED IT NOW.

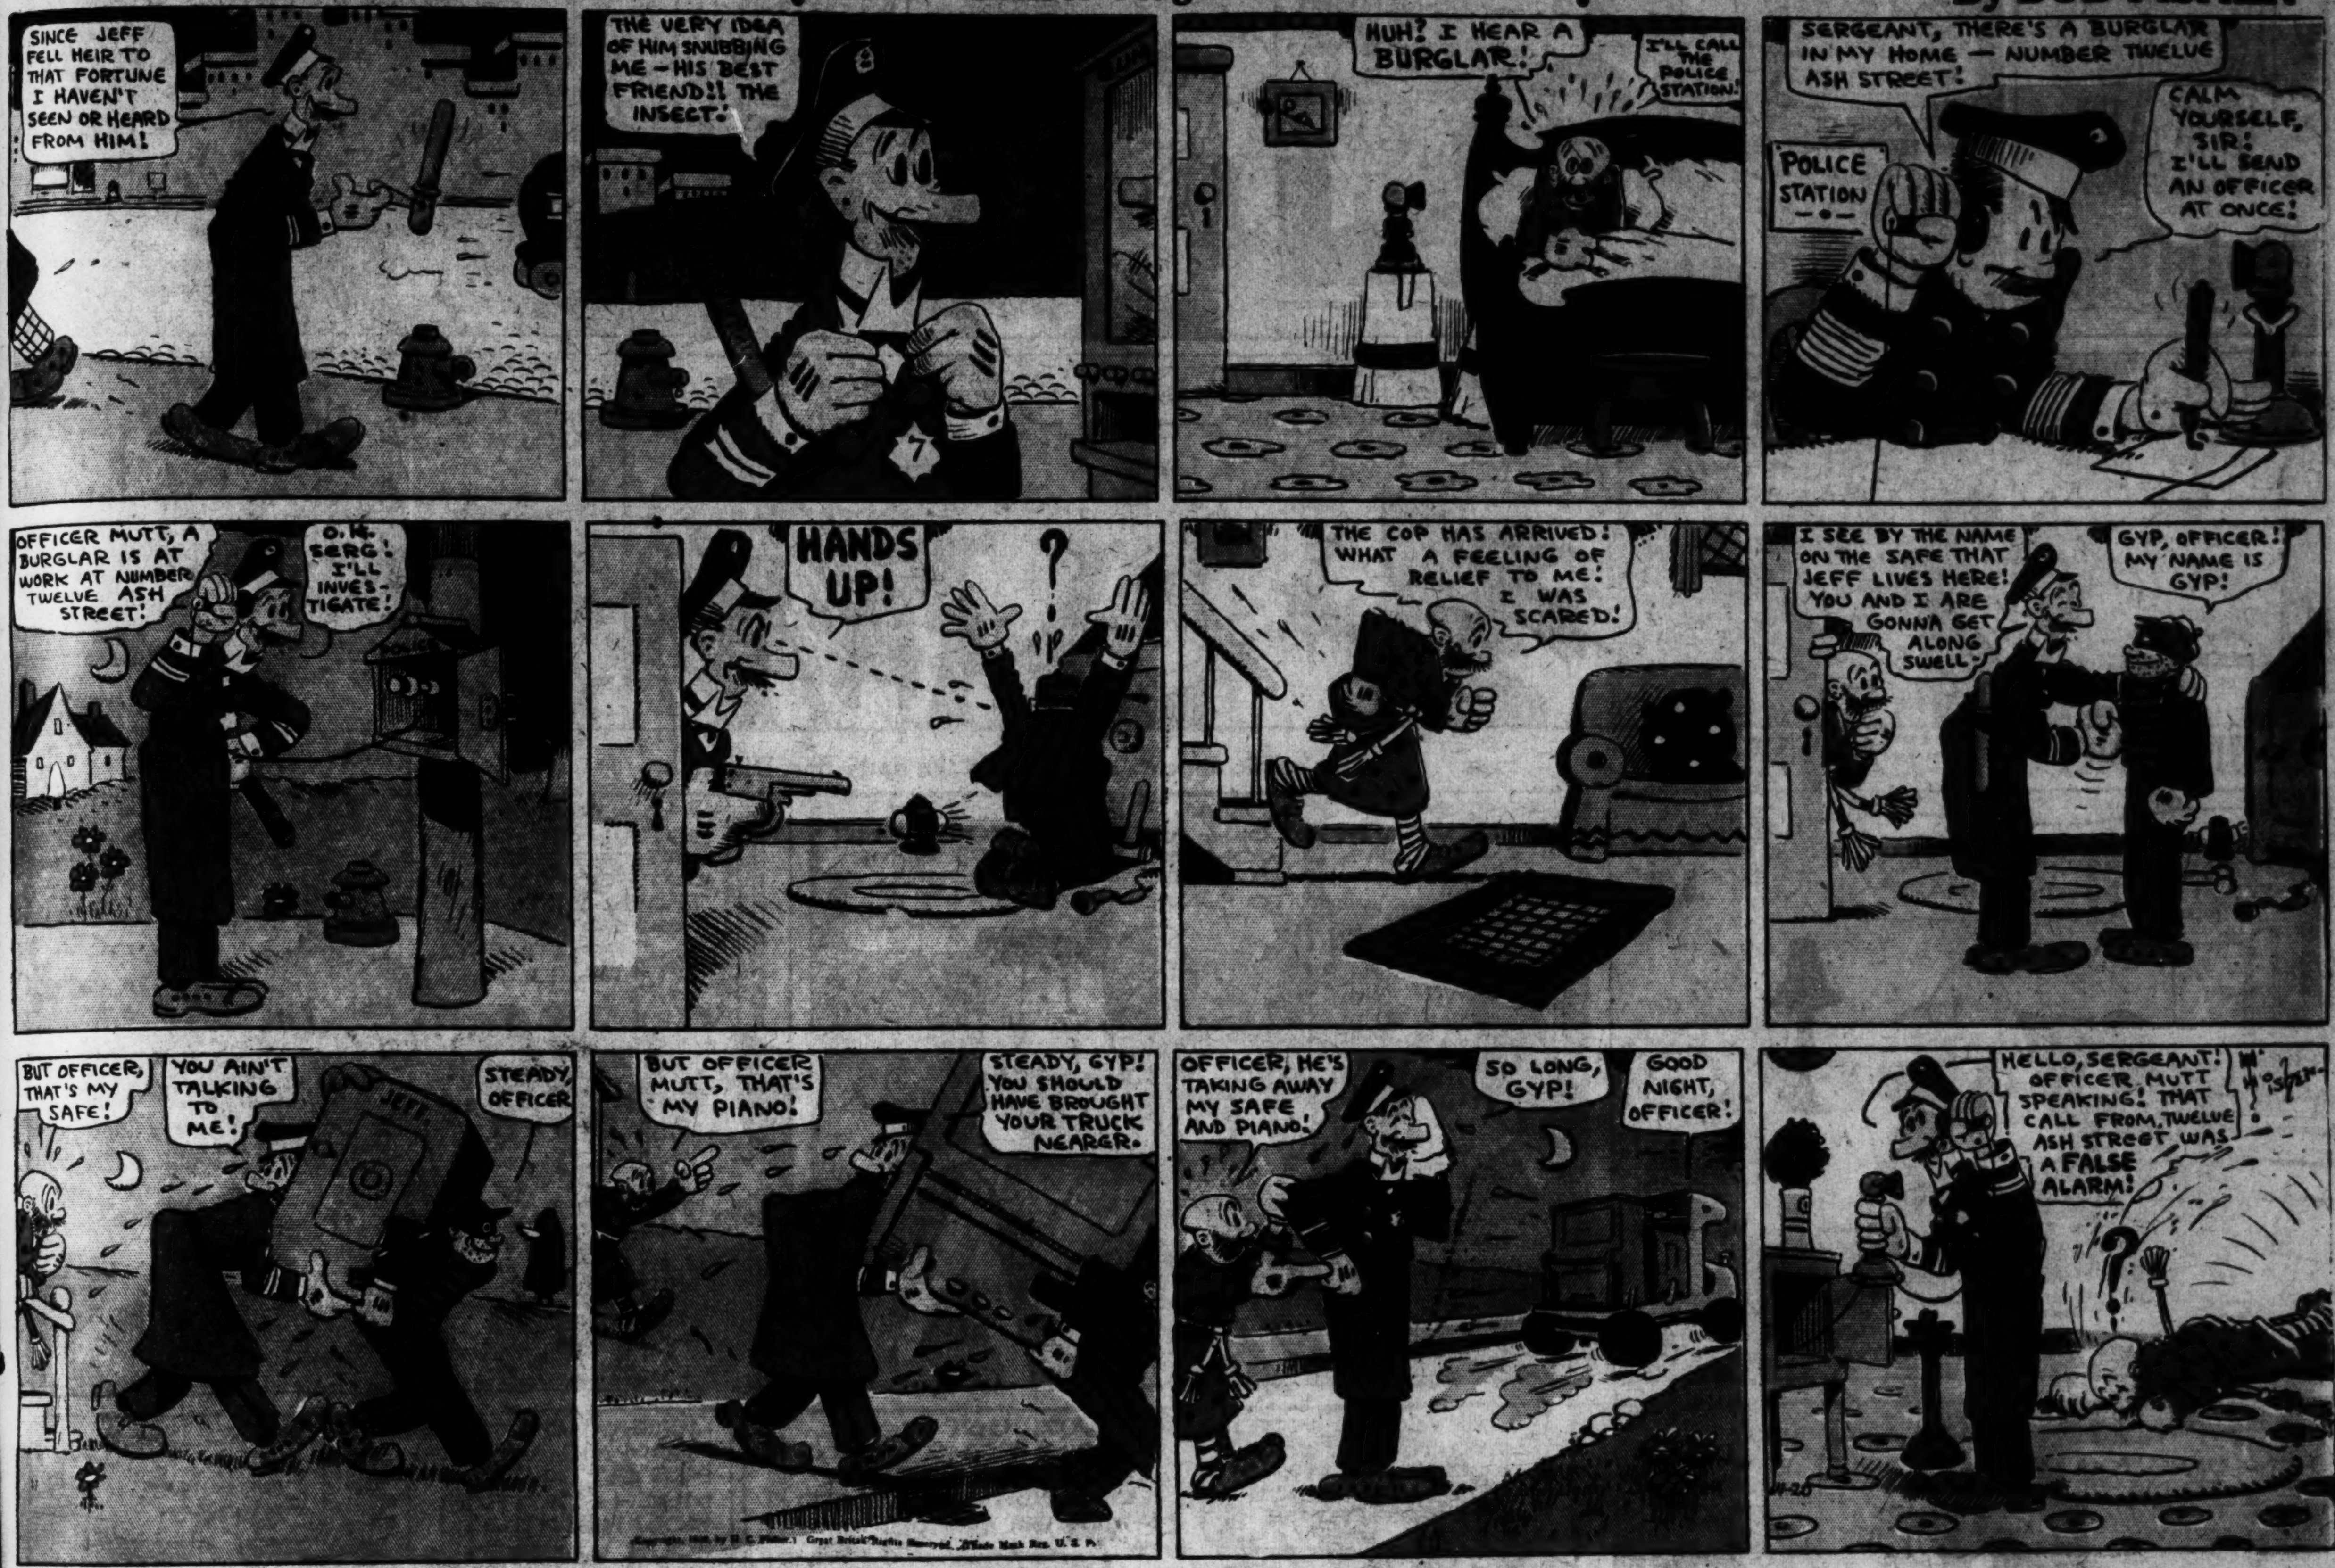
◆ Officer Augustus Mutt ◆

By BUD FISHER



SINCE JEFF FELL HEIR TO THAT FORTUNE I HAVEN'T SEEN OR HEARD FROM HIM!
THE VERY IDEA OF HIM SNUBBING ME—HIS BEST FRIEND!! THE INSECT!
HUH? I HEAR A BURGLAR!
I'LL CALL THE POLICE STATION!
SERGEANT, THERE'S A BURGLAR IN MY HOME — NUMBER TWELVE ASH STREET!
POLICE STATION
CALM YOURSELF, SIR! I'LL SEND AN OFFICER AT ONCE!
OFFICER MUTT, A BURGLAR IS AT WORK AT NUMBER TWELVE ASH STREET!
O.K. SERG! I'LL INVESTIGATE!
HANDS UP!
THE COP HAS ARRIVED! WHAT A FEELING OF RELIEF TO ME! I WAS SCARED!
I SEE BY THE NAME ON THE SAFE THAT JEFF LIVES HERE! YOU AND I ARE GONNA GET ALONG SWELL.
GYP, OFFICER! MY NAME IS GYP!
BUT OFFICER, THAT'S MY SAFE!
YOU AIN'T TALKING TO ME!
JEFF STEADY, OFFICER
BUT OFFICER MUTT, THAT'S MY PIANO!
STEADY, GYP! YOU SHOULD HAVE BROUGHT YOUR TRUCK NEARER.
OFFICER, HE'S TAKING AWAY MY SAFE AND PIANO!
SO LONG, GYP!
GOOD NIGHT, OFFICER!
HELLO, SERGEANT! OFFICER MUTT SPEAKING! THAT CALL FROM TWELVE ASH STREET WAS A FALSE ALARM!

I'D LIKE TO GET A LOAN OF TEN DOLLARS ON MY WATCH - I WANT TO BUY A TICKET TO THE ELITE DANCE TO-NIGHT AT THE RITZ-MORE - THIS WATCH ISN'T WORTH TEN DOLLARS - NEITHER IS THE DANCE - BUT AS LONG AS IT'S YOU I'LL LET YOU HAVE IT -
GEE! NOW I'M FLAT BROKE AFTER BUYING THE DANCE TICKET - BUT I MUST BE THERE AS ROSIE WILL BE THERE AND I'LL MAKE HER FORGIVE ME AND MAKE-UP -
I'LL HAVE PRESS MY OWN PANTS AND COAT AS I'VE ONLY GOT A NICKEL TO GET TO THE DANCE -
I'LL HAVE TO GET CAR-FARE HOME SO I HOPE I RUN INTO SOME ONE, BUT I JUST HAVE TO SEE ROSIE OR MY HEART WILL BREAK - NO - ROSIE AND HER FATHER AREN'T COMING TO-NIGHT - HE IS ILL AND SHE IS STAYING HOME TO NURSE HIM - WHAT?
HUH! TEN BUCKS THROWN AWAY AND A LONG WALK BACK HOME -

BRINGING UP FATHER

I WONDER IF THE WORLD IS GITTIN' WORSE - YOU READ ABOUT SO MANY UNHAPPY MARRIAGES - MAGGIE - DARLIN' - DO YOU THINK THE WORLD IS GOIN' TO THE DOGS?
NOT AS LONG AS WOMEN ARE HERE TO SAVE IT -
BUT, MOTHER - YOU MUST ADMIT THE ARE SOME WONDERFUL MEN IN THE WORLD -
WHO ASKED YOU TO BUTT IN? IF YOU'D GO WITH THE PEOPLE I PICK OUT FOR YOU - YES - BUT THOSE - CAKE - EATERS YOU GO WITH ARE POSITIVELY USELESS -
I THINK I'M OLD ENOUGH TO PICK OUT MY FRIENDS - I CAN'T STAND THE IMITATION NOBILITY YOU PICK OUT -
HOW DARE YOU TALK TO ME LIKE THAT? YOU ARE AN UNGRATEFUL DAUGHTER - WELL - YOU DON'T HAVE TO TALK ABOUT MY FRIENDS -
OH RATS!
WHAT'S THE MATTER - OLD TIMER? YOU LOOK LIKE THE ADVANCE AGENT OF HARD TIMES -
I WUZ JUST WONDERIN' IF THE WORLD IS GITTIN' BETTER OR WORSE - I ASKED ME WIFE AN' SHE — LISTEN - BOY - TAKE IT FROM ME - WOMEN ARE GITTIN' TOO MUCH CONTROL - NOW KIN YOU IN YOUR WILDEST MOMENTS PICTURE A WOMAN RUNNIN' A FIRE ENGINE?
BY GOLLY - YOU THINK UP THE FUNNIEST THINGS - PIPE DOWN ON WOMEN - AIN'T WE GOT WOMEN JUDGES - DOCTORS - LAWYERS AN' AVIATORINES?
OUT IN THE ALLEY - WHO ASKED YOU TO BUTT IN?
JUST A MINUTE - CROWELY -
WHAT KIN YOU DO? IF IT WUZN'T FER JAILS - YOU WOULDN'T HAVE A PLACE TO SLEEP HALF THE TIME -
IS DAT SO? WELL - DE WORLD WOULD BE BETTER OFF IF YOUR FUNERAL WOULD TAKE PLACE THIS VERY DAY -
AW! BOTH OF YOU - SHUT UP
LISTEN - WADHAMS - THIS GUY THINKS HE KIN TELL WHETHER THE WORLD IS GITTIN' BETTER OR WORSE -
WHO SAID EITHER ONE OF YOUSE COULD THINK? I'LL TELL YOUSE ABOUT WHAT'S GOIN' ON - NOW I CONTEND THAT - WHERE DO YOU GIT THAT STUFF? WHY - TIMES WUZ NEVER WORSE - - CAN THAT CHATTER - WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT FINANCE?
OH - YOU'RE JUST CLOGGED UP WID KNOWLEDGE -
JUST A MOMENT - LET SOME ONE WHO KNOWS SOMETHIN' TALK ON THE SUBJECT - OH YEAH IS THAT SO?
WHO DID?
LISTEN TO ME
I KNOW FORGET IT
ALRIGHT
NOW LISTEN
